Slight Tax Hike May Accompany School Issue

By JUDY MEAL

A slight increase in taxes may accompany the approval of the $2 3 million junior high school referendum April 10 in Elk Grove Township Elementary School Dist 59 school officials said yesterday

Officials had been quoted earlier on several occasions that there would be no increase if the referendum passed

However it would cost the average homeowner a $3 increase in the tax rate in 1972 and 1973 the officials said

The school is proposed for a 5 4 acre site on Janice Avenue in Des Plaines across the street from South Park and near St Zachary Catholic Church and school

THE SCHOOL IS proposed to house the increased junior high school population estimated at least at 750 students before 197 5

In early March when the district announced there would be a referendum no schedule of bond and interest payments had been determined

In an effort to provide more definite figures a schedule of costs through 1985 were calculated this week

It shows that the total tax rate in the bond and interest fund will be increasing in 1972 and 1973 without passage of the referendum

This would mean the taxpayer with a $30 000 home will be paying $3 more for that fund for those years if the country s economy remains about the same as it is now

After 1973 the total tax rate in this fund drops rapidly and ends by 1985 without the construction of more schools in the district

IF TAXPAYERS approve construction of the junior high school the tax rate for the bond and interest fund for 1972 and 1973 would increase three cents on $100 of assessed valuation or about another $3 for the average homeowner This would be out of a total estimated elementary school tax for one year of $2)2 for the nine tax funds

After 1973 the tax rate will decline rapidly even if the referendum is approved according to estimates by Arthur Perry finance director

Without referendum approval a taxpayer with a $30 000 home will be paying $50 in the bond and interest fund in 1971 $52 in 1972 $55 in 1973 $51 in 1974 and $47 in 1975 In following years the taxes continue to decrease he said

The figures are based on an assumed assessed valuation increase of $20 million for each of the years until 1975 when it is increased to $30 million

The usual assessed valuation increase is $ 0 million annually but Perry said he used low figures because of the slumping economy

IF THE ECONOMY picks up taxpayers will be paying less Perry said

Based on the same assumptions the tax payments in this fund including the junior high school bonds would be $50 in 1971 $54 in 1972 $ 8 in 1973 $54 in 1974 and $ 0 in 1975 on a $30 000 home

These figures could fluctuate depending on whether the board choses to pay the bonds off over a 15 year period such as Perry used in his estimates The length of time to take in paying off bonds is best decided by the board of education at the time of the sales and the bond market

Referring to the increases in 1972 and 1973 Leah Cummins district public relations specialist said

Those are the peak years with 1974 beginning the decrease that real estate brokers have been promising for years '

People Apathetic? 'Just Busy,' Candidate Says

7 Turn Out To Hear 4 Campaigners

Seven people went to hear the four school board candidates in Elk Grove Township Dist 59 speak and answer questions at Holmes Junior High School in Mount Prospect Wednesday night

The audience didn t even fill one row in the school s multi purpose room And, out of the seven who attended one was a current board member and four were members of a committee working for passage of the bond referendum for a new junior high school

The people aren't apathetic they're just busy said Albert Domanico one of the candidates vying for the two seats open in the April 10 elections

Despite the small audience Domanico, Erwin Poklacki Theodore Staddler and incumbent Allen Sparks answered questions from the audience

Sparks 908 Spruance Des Plaines listed his qualifications and accomplishments as a current board member

We have eliminated part of a budget deficit and reduced borrowing without affecting educational programs ' he said ' I would like to continue to help improve cost efficiency and educational programs

SPARKS LISTED other goals including better communication between the parents and community, increasing the experience of the teaching staff and helping the junior high population problem

Domanico who served on the board for 6 months to fill a vacancy, said as a board member he would want to determine if the district utilizes its staff at maximum efficiency ' He also said more program budgeting to find out where the money is spend specifically is needed

Filling the currently vacant position of an assistant superintendent to handle curriculum is one of Domanico s goals for the district

Domanico 7 Grange Pl Elk Grove Village, also said he would like to see a smoother transition for sixth graders coming to the junior high "

Staddler 1032 Brantwood Ave Elk Grove Village, said the district needs "a creative faculty — one that understands that how a student learns is more important than what he learns

He said it is not necessary to spend more money but that changing the attitude of personnel in the district is what is needed He called the present attitude of teachers, administration and the superintendent insensitive to student need and experimentation "

POKLACKI WHO ran for the board want to do something relevant and per wants to be on the board 'because I want to do something relevant and eprtinent in education

I would begin contributing at the first meeting " said the candidate of 1223 Fernandex St , Arlington Heights "My background as a scientist has taught me how to think logically I am my own man "

Poklacki said he wanted to bring 'openness, responsiveness, innovation and love back on the board of education

The candidates gave their views on merit pay

Sparks said he believed in the merit system ' if a teacher is doing an outstanding job '

I am in the middle ground " Domanico admitted ' I do support performance contracts but want evaluation tools that the profession agrees with "

Staddler "strongly backs merit pay It works in industry It can work in the educational field

'IT SOUNDS like something we should have ' said Poklacki ' But the teachers would probably say they would not want it because the teaching profession is unified for the common good '

The candidates were also asked what they would do as board members if the referendum April 10 for money to build a new junior high school was voted down

If it was voted down " said Poklacki 'I would restrict the junior high to seventh and eighth grade only That would put more kids, then in the kindergarten through fifth grade schools

Domanico said he would favor a split shift but ' hopes the community passes the needed referendum "

Sparks said he had no alternative solution

Staddler said the district would then have o consider the possibilities of six-day week a longer school year or shifts

None of the candidates felt Dist 59 was ready for a 12 month school year

Village Stands To Lose $110,000 On Tax Ruling

The Elk Grove Village municipal government may lose $110 000 in 1972 if the Illinois Supreme Court upholds a ruling that the state personal property tax on corporations is unconstitutional

The figure was released this week by George Coney village finance director and treasurer

Coney said school districts that have overextended themselves will be hurt worse financially by a decision rendered by Circuit Court Judge Walter P Dahl earlier in the week

High School Dist 214 of which Elk Grove High School is a part may lose $1 5 million annually according to Robert Weber, assistant superintendent for financial affairs who commented on Tuesday

Elementary School Dist 59 officials could give no estimate as to how much the district would lose Elk Grove Park District officials also had not computed their loss

Coney said it will be necessary to find other sources of revenue in order to maintain present services

In Springfield there has been mention of an increase in the state income tax to offset the loss in personal property taxes against corporations However there is expected to be opposition to an increase

The personal property tax on corporations yields more than $100 million in property tax collections in Chicago and suburban Cook County in addition to at least $124 million in downstate Illinois

It looks bad ' said Coney adding the outlook for obtaining funds through President Nixon s revenue sharing proposal is not good

And if they take off the sales tax on food and medicine that will also affect us he said

He said the village administration will have to take a ' hard look at the traditional ways of providing police and fire protection" which make up the bulk of municipal expenditures

Breakfast Planned

The Mark Hopkins Parent Teacher Society will host a pancake breakfast tomorrow from 8 to 9 30 a m in the school gym 231 Shadywood Ln

Breakfast will include, sausage applesauce, beverage, and pancakes Admission is 1 25 for adults and 75 cents for children

Harper Receives Full Accreditation

Harper College in Palatine has gained full accreditation from the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools

The North Central Assn. announced yesterday in Chicago. Harper was among five two-year colleges in a 19-state area to gain full accreditation, according to UPI yesterday

The accreditation concludes a six-year process for the college, which was created in 1965 and began holding classes in 1967

Harper first applied for accreditation in 1965 and 1967 it was granted "correspondent" status by North Central. In April, 1969 Harper was granted "candidacy" status prior to the college's development of a self-evaluation.

In January, a team of six educators from the midwest held a two-day examination of the college with the college's self-examination study as a guide.

The next step was for Harper president Robert Lahti to review the results of the study and to respond to any further questions from the team.

Accreditation has been a major goal for Harper officials, as full accreditation means automatic acceptance of Harper courses by colleges and universities across the United States.

The college's self-examination study covered Harper's history, organization, resources, curriculum, faculty morale, student achievement, student life, supporting services to the instructional program and the college's effect on the community.

Lahti will officially announce the accreditation today at Harper, located at Algonquin and Roselle Roads in Palatine.

Dr. Middleton Granted Continuance

Dr James Middleton was granted a continuance in hearing proceedings yesterday by a medical examining committee from the Illinois Department of Registration and Education

Dr Middleton, a Des Plaines area physician indicted by a Cook County grand jury on charges of deviate sexual assault, was granted a continuance to May 6 on charges placed against him by the department for unethical practice and deception in applying for his Illinois medical license

Dr Middleton's attorney, Edward Genson, was granted the continuance on the grounds that Middleton recently hired him and he needed time to get acquainted with the case

ACCORDING TO Edward Price, attorney for the department, Gensen made it very clear that this would be the last continuance he would request "He said he would be prepared for the May 6 hearing and we will subpoena our witnesses," Price said

Dr Middleton is scheduled to appear in criminal court today before Judge Robert Downing He is facing charges of deviate sexual assault originally placed against him by Cook County Sheriff's police who raided his office at 969 Elmhurst Rd. in unincorporated Des Plaines last Dec. 1

Dr Middleton was indicted last February on two separate charges of deviate sexual assault on two of his women patients

Dr. Middleton is also facing federal charges of illegal possession of explosives found in his office Feb. 12 by federal agents. No new action has been taken on those charges

Jim had a zodiac party Saturday that just wouldn't stop. We sat around and grooved to the sounds and rapped about things. I was in a gypsy mood and wore my new midi skirt and peasant blouse. Everybody said my shoes were something else. I found them shopping on Saturday. They're Pocos and the styles are terrific. They've got some of the smoothest leathers and crinkle patents and the colors are out-a-sight. What a decision. I finally chose the right Poco and got some opaque stockings the same color as my skirt. Joe said I was a knockout, but he's prejudiced.

Would Reduce Vehicular Congestion At Intersection

Realignment Of Higgins Rd. Urged

An Elk Grove Village committee has recommended that Higgins Road (Rte. 72) be realigned to reduce congestion at the intersection of Higgins-Oakton-Busse roads.

The recommendation calls for the extension of Higgins Road south to Brummel Street and then east across Busse Road (Rte. 83) to link up with the existing Higgins Road, north of Nicholas Boulevard.

The judiciary, planning, and zoning committee made the recommendation to the village board after reviewing an $18,000 traffic study completed in February by Barton Aschman Associates, a Chicago consulting firm.

WORK ON THE widening of Higgins Road to four lanes along the existing route has already begun by the state.

A realignment such as recommended by the committee would require that rights-of-way be obtained from land developers as well as approval of the state highway department.

The committee, headed by Trustee Richard McGrenera, reported that if the village board does not approve of its recommendation, that it make Howard Street, an east-west street south of Brummel Street, a secondary arterial street with a right of way of 66 to 80 feet to Higgins Road. It recommended there be a 100 foot right of way at the intersections with Busse and Higgins.

Other recommendations the committee made include:

—Widening of Nerge Road to four lanes to link with Devon Avenue at Ill. Rte. 53, then proceed easterly on and as Devon Avenue.

—TERMINATION OF Devon Avenue at Ill. Rte. 53.

SKETCH OF how Higgins Road realignment would look. Drawing is not to scale.

—Termination of Biesterfield Road at Rte. 53 or phase it into a secondary arterial or collector street to prevent transient traffic from using local village streets.

—Widening of Biesterfield Road to four lanes between Bisner Road and Arlington Heights Road.

—Changing the intersection of Tonne Road with Touhy Avenue-Elk Grove Boulevard to discourage east-west industrial traffic through the residential section of the village.

—Termination of Tonne Road at Landmeier as it currently exists.

—Discouraging extension of Oakton Road west of Arlington Heights Road through the Ned Brown Forest Preserve.

—REALIGNMENT OF Nicholas Boulevard at Landmeier Road and "if proper conditions develop" extension of Nicholas south between Pratt Boulevard and Arthur Avenue and from Devon Avenue to Pan Am Boulevard.

—Extension of Pan Am Boulevard west to Lively Boulevard or Wood Dale Road to allow access to the proposed Elgin-O'Hare Expressway.

—Allow for construction of Weathersfield Way, a new street between Plum Grove Road and Meacham Road.

Doggone! Rate Your Pet!

by PATRICK JOYCE

They have the look and sound of three men who have gotten in at the beginning of a boom, prospectors who've struck the mother lode or the men who discovered the hoola hoop.

And maybe they have. The trio has discovered a totally new and almost limitless market for insurance: the owners of an estimated one million pets in the Chicago area.

The three men — Burt Schmarak, Herb Singer and Al Nadolna — are officers of the Pet Health Foundation, Inc., an agency that sells all sorts of insurance for pets: health, accident, theft and even life insurance.

There is a company like this in England," Nadolna said. "They've been in business for 40 years and they have between a half a million and a million dogs insured."

Right now, the Pet Health Foundation is a much more modest affair. Its address is Post Office Box 159 in Wheeling and its office is in the basement of a home in Mount Prospect.

THEIR AGENCY is only a few months old and so far they have had only a few hundred responses to their advertising, but the men see a great future for their business. They even talk of marketing health products for pets.

Schmarak, an insurance salesman and Nadolna, who is in marketing, began talking about pet insurance 18 months ago. They thought of setting up their own insurance company but that fell through when they learned that Illinois insurance regulations would make it too expensive.

Then they learned that the Midwest Mutual Insurance Co. of West Des Moines, Iowa, had already begun its own pet insurance plan. They quickly became the company's sole agent in Illinois.

THEIR HEALTH insurance is called Pet-A-Care and, according to Nadolna, it works just like insurance for humans. Owners have their pets treated by a veterinarian and then send the bill to the insurance company. It pays up to $100 for each sickness or accident.

Even though they have not yet sold much insurance, Nadolna sees a great future for the business and he gives detailed reasons.

"The economic aspect is getting more important," he says. "New animal hospitals are opening all the time and they provide the same service as other hospitals. X-rays and even EKG's. Veterinarians are specializing just like M.D.'s. There are pet cardiologists and even psychiatrists."

And, Nadolna says, Americans are tending more and more to think in human terms about their pets. "A lot of owners feel that the animal is part of the family and they want to know that if their dog needs expensive treatment, they won't have to hesitate."

This kind of sentiment, Nadolna says, also moves owners to buy pet life insurance. "So many dogs are a kid's pet and if something happens to the dog he must be replaced. So, the life insurance is really replacement insurance."

ALTHOUGH THEIR headquarters is in the Northwest suburbs, the trio considers the entire Chicago area their market.

"It's not necessarily the economic situation of the family or the price of the dog that makes people buy the insurance," Nadolna says. "It's the feeling the family has for the dog. Many families in the ghetto feel as strongly about their pets as people in the suburbs."

Science Project Exhibits Slated Saturday At School

Students from about 80 elementary, junior, and high schools in Northern Illinois will exhibit original science projects at Wheeling High School tomorrow.

More than 400 science projects have been entered in the fair by participating school districts.

About 150 of these projects will be chosen to be exhibited in the State Exposition, to be held May 8 at the University of Illinois.

About 150 judges from the fields of industry and education have been chosen to pick the top projects in tomorrow's fair.

Northwest suburban schools which will enter exhibits in the fair include all high schools in Dist. 214, James Fenimore Cooper Junior High in Buffalo Grove, Jack London Junior High and Oliver Wendell Holmes Junior High in Wheeling, Abraham Lincoln Junior High in Mount Prospect.

Drug Abuse Topic Set For Kiwanians

Jan Fabish of Incentives, a psychological motivation center in Des Plaines, will address the Elk Grove Village Kiwanis Club this morning at a breakfast in the Snacktime Restaurant.

Miss Fabish is expected to speak on the center's drug abuse program that treats each patient according to individual needs.

Named Local Mental Health Chairman

Mrs. Ruth Boebel, of 77 Wildwood Rd., Elk Grove Village, will serve as local bell ringer chairman for the 1971 fund-raising campaign in May for the Mental Health Association of Greater Chicago.

Mrs. Boebel will head a group of residents who will call on neighbors. The overall goal in the Chicago metropolitan area is $325,000 of which the bell ringers will attempt to raise $160,000.

The association is a nonprofit organization which receives no financial support from government agencies or local united funds and community chests. It depends upon private contributions from businesses, foundations and individuals.

Just Politics

by Ed Murnane

The Senate voted to stop federal funding of the SST, and the House of Representatives overwhelmingly passed a resolution calling for a constitutional amendment to give 18-year-olds the right to vote in all elections last week in the busiest week yet of the 92nd Congress.

Here is a summary of the activities and voting records on major issues of local elected officials, Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., Rep. Harold Collier, R-10th; Rep. Philip Crane, R-13th; and Rep. Robert McClory, R-12th.

BILLS SPONSORED

—Percy, a series of four bills dealing with transportation problems. They would increase federal grants for mass transportation systems, authorize grants for long range comprehensive planning for mass transportation, assure adequate commuter services and allow states to use highway trust fund money to develop balanced transportation systems.

—Stevenson, a series of nine bills dealing with problems in the District of Columbia.

—Collier, a series of three bills calling for funds for cooperative forest fire protection, to provide funds for urban environmental forestry programs and to provide for the arrest and punishment of persons violating laws relating to public lands.

BILLS COSPONSORED

—Percy, a bill to revise immigration and naturalization laws.

—Percy and Stevenson, a bill to liberalize the Social Security Act governing eligibility of blind persons to receive disability insurance benefits.

Collier, a bill to request the Defense Department to determine disposal dates and methods of disposing of certain military materials.

RESOLUTIONS

—Percy sponsored a resolution asking the Secretary of State to investigate possible means of compensating Germans who were displaced during World War II.

—Collier cosponsored a resolution expressing the concern of Congress with pollution of the world's waterways and stressing the need for coordinated international action to prevent pollution.

ROLL CALLS

Senate, one roll call with Percy and Stevenson both present.

—House, one roll call with Crane and McClory present and Collier absent.

YES — NO VOTES

—To provide continued federal funding of supersonic transport plane development, defeated 51-46.

Group Hits Non-Public School Aid

The Independent Voters of Illinois has charged that public funding of private schools in the state "will underwrite segregation," and is asking state legislators to ignore recommendations of a study commission urging state aid.

The study commission was chaired by State Rep. Eugene F. Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights. Last week, it presented its report to the legislature and called for financial help for non-public schools.

The IVI said such help would provide "an illegal alternative to white parents who wish their children to remain racially segregated."

The IVI also said it believes state aid to parochial schools is a violation of the constitutional separation of church and state and it accused the commission of having a "flagrant philosophic imbalance."

"Most members were either products or associates of parochial or private schools," said Philip Vision, IVI education commission chairman. "Only two, Senators (Harris) Fawell and (Robert) Coulson, exhibited appropriate concern for the value of public education in a free society. The others were openly biased against the public school concept."

VISION ALSO criticized "the lack of objectivity" by research coordinator Donald Erikson.

"A former private school principal, Erikson has frequently spoken and written for the voucher plan. His report is based upon fallacious assumptions," Vision said.

Vision asked legislators to consider a minority report being prepared by Fawell and Coulson in consultation with University of Chicago Professor Robert Havinghurst.

"In Illinois, public funding of private schools will promote and underwrite segregation," Vision said. "Publicly financed private schools will provide an illegal alternative to white parents who wish their children to remain racially segregated. Illinois' public schools are in desperate need of additional funding. To divert these funds is an affront to a democratic society."

Sorry—I am having trouble finding a way to endplay West. He drew trumps and went after hearts. If hearts had broken 3-2 he would have made his slam. The actual 4-1 break means that he had to lose two diamond tricks.

North suggested a more complicated line of play. His idea was that South should have led a diamond at trick two. This would make it possible to discard one diamond on the king of clubs and ruff another one with dummy's nine of trumps.

It looks fine but see what would have happened. East would take his ace of diamonds and just might return a trump. South would win in his hand, lead a second diamond to dummy, discard a diamond on the king of clubs, ruff dummy's last club, ruff his last diamond with the nine of trumps and claim slam except for one minor detail. He would be stuck in dummy with nothing but hearts. West would ruff the second heart and this line of play would fail.

Stop right here and see if you can work out a winning way to play the slam.

At trick two South must lead a heart to dummy. Then he discards his second heart on dummy's king of clubs and ruffs a heart with his 10 spot. Then South enters dummy with the nine of trumps and ruffs another heart. This sets up the rest of dummy's heart suit. Now South draws the adverse trumps and concedes one diamond to the defense.

Collecting Coins

by Mort Reed

Order blanks for proof and uncirculated specimens of the Eisenhower silver dollar will be available June 18. The cupronickel dollars intended for general circulation will not be available until fall.

Mrs. Mary Brooks, director of the Mint, discloses that to assure everyone of an opportunity to buy these coins, order blanks will be available at commercial banks, post offices and local congressional offices.

Collectors who have previously ordered coins from the San Francisco Assay Office will automatically receive official order forms for the Eisenhower dollar. But since there is a limit of five proofs and five uncirculated coins to each person, only the first order received by the mint will be honored. All others will be returned.

The Mint will begin accepting orders on official blanks beginning July 1. Any received before that date will also be returned. So it would not be wise to mail orders before June 28 or 29.

As previously announced in this column, the Mint will issue 150 million 40 per cent silver dollar pieces. Dollars in proof condition will be sold at $10 each and uncirculated specimens will be sold at $3 each.

Those collectors interested in the arts and sciences of numismatics will be glad to know certain famous objects d'art will be appearing more often on foreign silver coins following an overwhelming acceptance of Equatorial Guinea's 100-peseta piece bearing Goya's "Naked Maja."

The Republic of Costa Rica has just released details on its 20 Colones pure silver piece bearing a reproduction of Venus de Milo, the ever popular marble sculpture of the goddess Aphrodite.

The coin, coming in proof with its frosted [illegible] of the armless lady measures [illegible] less than two inches [illegible] and comes either as a single [illegible] or Costa Rica's five-piece [illegible].

Interested readers may address inquiries to Max Hembert, Paramount International Coin Corp., Department 25, Post Office Box 1449, Englewood, Ohio 45322.

These coins set in future issues of these limited editions should ask to be put on a mailing list for full-color brochures usually available in advance of the coinage announcement.

DuBrow On TV

by Rick DuBrow

by DICK Du BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Network television news documentaries in the 1970s will place moe emphasis on substantial contemporary issues and less on 'soft' featurish material according to NBC News boss Reuven Frank

In short he indicated viewers can look for considerably fewer NBC news documentaries of the historical biographical and travelogue kind

Such shows are not being discounted entirely but they will be in the minority In addition Frank noted in an interview the monthly First Tuesday series on NBC offers some feature material besides the straight hard nosed reporting that has won it accolades

Frank s thinking is reflected in a written outline that says video news documentaries through the 1970s will have "strong social economic political scientific or ecological thrust — programs that will result often in some positive action being taken congressional hearings legislation public initiative unblocking of previously withheld information

A SAMPLE OF the kind of documentary the network will emphasize is a May 2 hour 'This Child Is Rated X An NBC News White Paper on Juvenile Justice Another example was last years fine hour about the plight of migrant workers a program that stepped on toes and brought hollers There will be fewer shows like Tuesdays documentary on Scotland Yard

According to Frank there are several reasons for the change in the news documentary area One of his points

'More and more the broadcast news organizations especially we and CBS are veering away from documentaries that try to avoid facing the problems and irritations of the world Our horizons have been expanded A greater percentage of our work in the documentary field will be in expounding some of these problems — not solving, but expounding"

Social Security and You

Q—WHEN MY husband retired he was earning $1,000 a month. Some of his friends who made less are collecting as much as he is. How come? I thought social security cash benefit amounts are figured on earnings before retirement.

A—You're right. Social security retirement benefits are computed on average earnings over a period of years. But this average is based on earnings actually covered by social security contributions. For instance the most earnings anyone could have credited last year was $7,800 — the maximum amount on which social security contributions were based. This yearly maximum was as low as $3,600 before 1951 and it was increased over the years as earnings levels increased throughout the United States. So no matter how high your husband's pre-retirement income was, his average earnings for social security purposes is based on the amount actually covered by social security contributions.

Q—I RECENTLY received my Medicare card but it has my husband's social security number on it. Since I have my own social security number, shouldn't it be on my card?

A—Not necessarily. The number on your card is determined by the work record under which you have your social security coverage. If you are drawing benefits as a wife, your card will have your husband's social security number coded with a 'B' after the number. If you are drawing benefits as a widow, your card will show his number with a 'D' after it.

The Doctor Says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr Lamb I am interested in learning more about hepatitis Is it possible to catch it again? Are there two kinds of it? Explain the differences between them How long will the liver be cured? I understand vitamin pills help Is this right? Are there many who had it years ago because the needles weren't clean? Is it true that the disease would always be in the blood?

Dear Reader Hepatitis means inflammation of the liver (hepar) It can be on a chemical or infectious basis If the liver is damaged enough and the damage persists there will be scarring and changes in the liver which we call cirrhosis

I believe what you are concerned about is the problem of infectious hepatitis caused by a virus There are two kinds of this One results from contaminated food or water One possible source is oysters beds contaminated by improperly treated sewage Like most other infections it can be halted by way of food by strict control is important

Clearly a contaminated water source is one way to transmit this problem from one person to another or for that matter to cause epidemics This form of infectious hepatitis usually occurs fairly early after the infected material has invaded the body

The other form of viral hepatitis sometimes called serum hepatitis is transmitted by the blood stream It may occur six weeks to three months after obtaining a blood transfusion that contains some of the virus It has been known to be transmitted in various forms of vaccinations and as your comment suggests by using poorly sterilized needles

Epidemics of hepatitis have been noted when large numbers of individuals like troops have been inoculated with serums plasma or blood constituents that were contaminated

Serum hepatitis transmitted by needles is a frequent serious complication in drug addicts who get their kicks from playing the role has recently causes of serum hepatitis have been noted to be transmitted by mouth through the nose and through sex organs without any needles necessarily involved

Once a person has recovered from the virus it would be unusual in this country for the virus will not have another attack on the liver Questions as how long liver damage will the person have This can only be judged on individual cases (Newspaper Enterprise Assn)

Please send your questions and comments to Lawrence E Lamb, M D Paddock Publications P O. Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill 60006 While Dr Lamb cannot answer individual letters, he will answer letters of general interest in future columns.

'Issue' Clouds Harper Election

The issue of "tax grinding" students and educators plotting a "takeover" of the Harper College board of trustees has to date overshadowed all other issues in the race for three open seats on that board.

James Hamill, retiring board chairman, has made the attack publicly several times. It has been directed against two candidates, Hannah Wilson of Mount Prospect, a school nurse in Elementary Dist. 57, and Larry Moran of Schaumburg, a student at Northeastern Ill. State College.

We accept Hamill's concern about Harper's future. We are deeply concerned however, by the nature of the attack which has smeared several board members and has stereotyped politically involved citizens as "tax grinders" and bearded persons.

Hamill's attack will make board work difficult after the April 10 election. His criticism of the role of students and educators should have been made well before the election, so it could have been discussed rationally perhaps by the board with the help of an outside party such as an expert in school law.

On the issue of student and teacher membership on a school board, we believe the basic question is not whether a person is a student or an educator, but how well that person can represent the community.

If the candidates did teach or were students at Harper, there would be a legal question about whether they could seek board election. But the question in the Harper situation involves a student and a nurse not part of the Harper "family."

Today's school and college boards face a myriad of complex problems, and there always seems to be a shortage of well-qualified and interested board candidates.

More well-qualified persons are needed, whether they are teachers, businessmen, lawyers, students, butchers or bakers. It doesn't matter what their occupation is; it matters that they can submerge their own prejudices and biases and represent the community at large.

As board members, those persons elected on April 10 will quickly gain an understanding of a school board's need to govern all educational elements — administrators, teachers, service employes and students — with fairness and objectivity.

Today, the public demands responsibility or "accountability." Those board members who cannot be accountable to the general public in protecting its investment in education have no place on a school board — a point which the Herald will not let any board members forget.

There's still time, before April 10, to subject the candidates at Harper or in any other school district to the tests of "knowhow, experience, maturity and proven ability." Let's judge the candidates on those qualities, rather than on such criteria as employment.

On Monday, the Herald will endorse candidates for Harper and Oakton Community College in Niles. Those endorsements will be based solely on how well we feel each candidate, as an individual, can serve the public.

State Commissions Study A To Z

by ED MURNANE
State Editor

Name the topic — motorcycles, nursing homes or a sports complex for Illinois — and the chances are there is a commission or committee studying it in the General Assembly.

The creation of commissions, committees and boards to study and recommend action on various problems has long been one of the characteristics of the federal bureaucracy.

But a glimpse at the Legislative Synopsis and Digest for the current session of the Illinois General Assembly — the 77th — shows state-level politicians rapidly trying to catch up with their Washington counterparts.

From A to Z — Atomic Energy Commission to Zoning Laws Study Commission — there are commissions, committees and boards either in operation now or proposed for future operation.

It's difficult to find the exact number currently in operation because there are so many of them.

But the Legislative Digest's alphabetical listing of subject matters under consideration this year shows that only six of the 26 letters in the alphabet do not have a commission beginning with that letter. They are J, K, Q, U, X and Y.

The commissions cover a multitude of topics. Each one, at some time along the way, will make a report to the legislature and probably introduce legislation to deal with the particular problem or situation.

State Report

So far this session, at least 30 new commissions or committees have been proposed. In most cases, they will be created.

These include a proposed 23-member Illinois Commission on Atomic Energy, which will investigate and report on the impact of the use of atomic energy.

There is also the proposed Illinois Divorce Law Study Commission which will examine state divorce laws and make recommendations for revision.

The late Paul Powell, former secretary of state, would have had his financial affairs investigated by a joint Senate-House commission, but the legislation was tabled in the Senate.

Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie would have been the subject of a study by members of the Senate if legislation had been approved for a commission "to make whatever investigation is necessary to determine the facts and events regarding the purchase of stock in an insurance company by the Hon. Richard B. Ogilvie and to determine the adequacy of present disclosure and ethic laws and the need for new legislation concerning the activities of public officials."

That obviously Democratic-sponsored proposal was rejected.

Two Republican senators, who may have had an unhappy experience with motorcyclists, proposed creation of a Motorcycle Laws Study Commission to report to the legislature every other year. That proposal is still before the Senate transportation committee.

Two commissions have been proposed by sports buffs. One would study and report to the legislature on the establishment of a hall of fame to honor Illinois athletes and another, sponsored by several of the same legislators, calls for a study of possible development of an Illinois Sports Complex.

Other proposed commissions reflect on popular issues facing the state this year.

There is a proposal for a recycling commission to study reduction of wastes, another to create a nursing home study commission, and a third to create a public aid birth control study commission.

There are many more. It's unlikely that all of them, or even most of them, will make any positive contribution to the state - but at least they give the legislators something to do and provide titles for their official stationery.

Candidate 'Fun Night' Falls Flat

B.G.A. Candidates Fun Night?

As concerned voters wanting knowledge of all candidates running for election in Buffalo Grove, we took the opportunity to attend the Buffalo Grove Alliance Party candidates night last Friday, March 26, that was open to the public at the club hours.

We were very enthusiastic at the chance to meet all the candidates and hear of their plans and concern for our village, with the opportunity to be able to ask questions.

Upon arriving there, we received name tags, shortly later greeted by Mr. Sundt. He stated that we looked like new faces and we told him of our interest. He assured us that we would be able to question the candidates after they spoke and "even nail them to the wall."

Needless to say, none of these things happened. That was hogwash. No speeches were given for us to know the candidates better or even question. With the general atmosphere we surely felt as if we crashed a private party.

A short business meeting was held, three school district running candidates were there. One stating that instead of getting "senioritis" there might be "electionitis." A sign was posted above the bar saying that the B.G.A. would get a percentage of every dollar spent at the bar. Another sign saying sandwiches were for sale for one dollar apiece. Also announced was that there were 150 bags of popcorn for sale, bumper stickers, etc. (I wonder how we got in without a cover charge.)

The FENCE POST
Letters to the Editor

After being introduced, some candidates' comments stood out more than others. None too nice. We did learn that each person running for election did have a campaign "co-ordinator."

After being introduced as running for village clerk, Verna Clayton stated, "This has been a fun time and appreciated it all very much."

Chuck Vogt was introduced as one of Lana Turner's seven husbands. He had a paper plan in his hands which was opened and closed but never explained.

Randall Rathjin stated he realized Buffalo Grove has had flood problems but his basement flooded too, and if we were to call when we were being flooded not to worry because he was going to take care of his flooded basement first.

Mr. Armstrong announced himself as known as Gary Armstrong, but better known as DeeDee Armstrong's husband. His statement was that "He was going to make this village a place to have fun in on evenings and weekends."

Helen Melroy asked if we would like a coffee for their candidates in our homes. We said we wanted to hear the candidates first and learn of them. We did, and we won't. Politics should mean some serious business, but a fun party or a fund party? Forget it.

B.G.A. says let the people be heard if we can't. We walked out after the two-and-a-half hours with a feeling of nausea and sick at heart to think this group wants to run our village.

The Choice Is In Your Hands

There's a long list of challenges, headaches and unresolved problems which school boards will continue to face after the April 10 elections.

Earlier this week, another headache was created when a judge ruled illegal the collection of corporate personal property tax in Illinois. It's another dilemma for school districts already hard-pressed by a lack of funds and voter resistance to increased taxes.

In addition to financial needs, districts are facing increased teacher militancy in salary negotiations. The need to fire teachers to cut expenses isn't helping the teachers' moods, either.

Social issues, such as the widespread use of illegal drugs, confront school boards from the smallest elementary to the most sophisticated high school and college district. Campus turmoil and student restlessness are issues felt by most districts today.

Under the burden of problems facing public education in 1971, it is a wonder that 57 men and women are seeking election on 14 local school boards. The candidates are brave souls to seek such a challenge.

The winners of the April 10 election will need a unique mixture of calmness under pressure, considerable expertise in school affairs (or the ability to learn very quickly on the job) and deep devotion in time and energy to the tasks facing education.

The Herald next week begins its endorsement of school board candidates. There's no rigid formula we follow to select the persons we believe are best qualified to serve the public — but we do believe that, if any one quality is necessary, it is dedication to you, the voter, taxpayer and citizen.

We recommend candidates, but the selection process is in your hands. When you vote on Saturday, April 10, keep in mind the qualifications of all of the candidates — and then select those persons who will help shoulder the tremendous burden of public education in the 1970's.

Peace Symbol 'Mark Of The Traitor'

"Kill your parents and I mean that quite seriously because until you're prepared to kill your parents you're not really prepared to change the country. Our parents are our first oppressors." (Direct quotes from a tape recording of Jerry Rubin's speech April 10, 1970, on campus of Kent State University).

This is peace symbol-wearing Jerry Rubin. The so-called "peace" symbol is "The Mark of The Traitor," from a publication "The Peace Symbol" by Dr. W. S. McBirnie, radio commentator of Voice of Americanism.

The "peace" symbol is of ancient origin and resembles a chicken track enclosed in a circle. The circle was not included in the ancient drawings of the symbol, as they appear in mosaics found in excavated palaces of ancient Rome. During the early Middle Ages it was called by various names such as: crow's foot, witch's foot, Nero's cross, goblin foot, and used as an insignia of Satan. (Koch, Rudolf, The Book of Signs, P.83) Confirmation of this Satanic connotation of the peace symbol appears in various writings of medieval authors.

The peace symbol has been widely used throughout the world as a propaganda device against the U.S.A. A slight variation of the peace symbol combined with the communist clenched fist salute was displayed at a Black Panther rally in Los Angeles in January 1970. The Black Panther Party is violently anti-American, advocating the overthrow of the government by armed revolution. The peace symbol is notably absent from demonstrations against communism. In fact there are few anti-communist demonstrators at all, and none by the "peace" groups.

Since the peace symbol is a statement supposedly in favor of peace; which does not argue but simply proclaims, it must be carefully examined to discover what it has really come to mean. The peace symbol does not stand for peace but for neutralizing America's will to withstand communist revolution in the world. It is not a symbol of peace, it is the mark of the traitor, for behind the peace symbol is the determination of the communist conspiracy to paralyze the United States so that communism can roll on across the world unopposed. The communists do not want peace, they want victory without our interference. The peace symbol helps this objective by its anti-intellectualism, and by furnishing an alternative to the Cross of Christ.

Citizen Should Take Pride In Flag

Americans, get off your knees. What is wrong with us that we are ashamed to call ourselves Americans and fly our flag, even on national holidays?

Many countries around the world hate us, ridicule or just plain blackmail this nation. We help them with money, materials and the lives of our young men. They grow stronger as we become weaker.

On television in the papers and on radio some of our learned politicians, religious leaders, teachers and students damn this country for all the ills of the world. The people who are trying to tear down this country and our Constitution are the very ones who want their Constitutional rights.

Americans, start curing ourselves, start to care what happens to our neighbors, extend the hand of friendship to those around us instead of the fist of hate and misunderstanding.

But the Bible said God created man in the Image of Himself and we are doing one hell of a job in destroying that Image. Let us right our wrongs, mend our broken and build instead of destroying, respect rights instead of doing injustices and take pride in ourselves as decent humane beings.

Once this country starts caring about each other, start to build a strong foundation to a good and just country, then other countries will respect us and we will respect ourselves.

This nation has many beautiful symbols — the American Flag, Statue of Liberty, Constitution, Liberty Bell and the Declaration of Independence to name a few. This country holds many different religions, so many cultures, varied races and traditions, this alone makes us a unique country. Let's put backbone into our just laws and once again give dignity and respect to those who wear policemen and firemen uniforms.

Let's show the rest of the world that this young nation with all its growing pains will stand erect, put backbone into our Constitution, take pride in our flag and once again say "This Is God's Country for One and All."

BOSTON (UPI) — For someone who couldn't get into one college because he couldn't speak English, and who took the easiest courses around when he finally got into school, "Rocky" Aoki seems to be doing okay.

Aoki, 30, is a former wrestling champion who masterminds the Benihana of Tokyo steak restaurants which have sprung up across the nation over the last seven years. He plans to have about 20 opened within the year, regardless of the current lethargic economy.

"We use American ideas and we're geared to American dining," he said, sitting down to dinner at his Boston unit. "We serve steak, chicken, and so on."

Aoki, whose real first name is Hiroaki, "started with four tables in New York in 1964," he said. "I learned quickly what Americans wanted to eat — they only eat meat. They just weren't interested in raw fish or octopus. So I made the restaurant into a steak house."

Aoki, who claims he couldn't get into Cornell University "because I couldn't speak English," and later parked cars while studying "the easiest courses I could find" at New York Community College, has devised a cook-in style of restaurant. Everything is prepared on a grill-type table where the customer sits.

The rectangular grill-table seats eight — four on one side, two at each end with the cook operating off the fourth side. Waitresses wear kimonos, and chopsticks are standard.

All help at the restaurants is Oriental, much of it brought in from Japan, Aoki said. "We have a three-month training course, teach them English and bring them over here. It's a dream come true for them."

Aoki said Benihana advertised for two waitress openings in Tokyo at one point last year and got more than 480 replies. Once in this country, the chain's staff can float from restaurant to restaurant after a certain period of time "so they can see different parts of America — get a change of scenery if they want it."

Personal Finance

Another of those cherished notions that used to make life predictable and the world manageable has been knocked in the head.

In judging the "livability" of space to house the family, there were certain standards to go by or tests to apply. Any woman — even a lot of men — knows that you look mainly at the floor plan.

But that's no longer an adequate gauge of livability, at least in the suburban low-rise apartment units that are housing an increasing number of the nation's families. It can even be deceptive, as shown in an audio-visual demonstration.

Two suburban apartment projects, almost identical in "bricks and mortar" qualities, are contrasted in a tape-slide presentation prepared by John L. Schmidt, director of architectural and construction research at the United States Savings and Loan League. Schmidt's lessons are intended mainly for the eyes and ears of real estate professionals — but home hunters can take some valuable tips from his demonstration.

It has been learned, says Schmidt, that plans and layouts by themselves "can sometimes be worse than worthless. Even the experts have trouble visualizing a project's 'livability' qualities from plans and drawings alone."

The comparison of the two suburban units, almost identical in physical construction details, shows that land planning and architectural design mainly determine whether a family will find living comfortable and enjoyable. Tests that home hunters can apply include these:

- Are the buildings attractive when viewed at a distance?
- Has the developer taken advantage of natural land features? Have trees and other natural growth been retained?
- Does the landscaping please your eye? Or is it haphazard, inadequate, poorly maintained — perhaps with bare spots that will be ugly in dry weather and muddy when it rains?
- Are the buildings attractive when viewed close-up?
- Are parking areas relatively close to building entrances, and is the path from the car to the building pleasant?
- Is access to all dwelling units convenient, or must some tenants do excessive walking and stair-climbing?
- Do you enter via protected stair enclosures, and do stairs to upper units, particularly, give protection from rain, snow and ice?
- Are views from inside the units attractive, and is there good ventilation and natural light?
- Are there play areas especially designed for children — and located where the sounds of play will not annoy tenants?
- Are so-called "private balconies" really private — and reasonably isolated from noisy play areas?
- Do special facilities —swimming pools and recreational areas — show good mintenance?

Do-It-Yourself

There is a mistaken notion that a sharp tool is a dangerous tool. A sharp tool misused is a dangerous tool, but a dull tool is dangerous any way you use it. Instead of cutting, it is likely to slip and it still has enough of an edge to injure you. At the very least, a dull tool is an inefficient instrument.

Tools with cutting edges should be kept sharp and it is a job simple enough for you to do yourself

Buy a stone, the silicon carbide variety, to maintain a sharp edge. A mill file also is a handy sharpening tool.

With more experience you may wish to acquire a variety of stones. They come in different shapes, sizes and grits. Since natural stones have been replaced by artificial materials it is possible to get a single stone with both coarse and fine grits.

If you neglect a tool for too long and it gets very dull and nicked, it will need grinding as well as sharpening. Do this with a grindstone or emery wheel. If you use a power-driven wheel, avoid overheating the blade which would cause it to lose its temper. Dip the tool in water to cool it.

Move the tool back and forth so that you grind it evenly. If the tool has a bevel, regrind it so the bevel remains the same. The bevel is usually 25 degrees.

After grinding, sharpen the blade on an oilstone. The oil in the stone prevents the tool from overheating. Use a light machine oil. With use, a stone will become clogged with tiny particles. Heat the stone in an oven and wipe off oil that comes to the surface. This will remove the tiny particles.

Grinding and honing (sharpening) are done against the edge. A revolving wheel should turn toward the tool. Sharpen a blade by rubbing it in a circular motion against the stone with the blade raised slightly. This will put the pressure on the edge.

Keep a mill file handy for sharpening garden tools. Clamp the tool in a vise, if possible. Filing edges of spades and hoes will make your work much easier.

For kitchen knives there are hand-and power-operated sharpeners that work when you draw the knife through. Some people still prefer a sharpening steel. Use this by drawing the knife down it in a partly circular motion.

More people are growing herbs than you can shake a thyme at

There's a challenge to studying, growing, and using herbs for flavoring, perfumery, or medicine

The Chinese administered herbs as cold and flu remedies . the tops for head miseries, the middle for chest aches, the roots for pains in the extremities (Before Excedrin was, ginger was')

Old Chinese proverb say "All of man's diseases enter mouth and all his mistakes fly out of it"

Fish and onions were always considered a pair for gastronomic as well as hygienic reasons, since inland waters of China were not very pure Garlic was considered to have a germicidal effect

MAGIC HERBAL POTIONS were used to cure illness because people knew little of medicine That's how witches, medicine men and their tlk got to be big

The practice of brewing repulsive mixtures as medicine gave us much food for stories Remember MacBeth? When Socrates wanted to fly out on his dramatic last trip he chose biennial hemlock (Socrates was probably the first well-known drug abuse case)

If you had lived in pioneer days, you might have made medicine from ginseng or asafetida (an herb that smells like garlic) A pinch of herbs and a whole lot of superstition were the order of the day

A rattlesnake heart was supposed to cure epilepsy A dead spider hung around the neck spooked ague If they didn t scare a person to death, they cured them

SOME HERBS ARE said to have carminative effects like fennel, anise, and basil. Sage is a nervine and also makes an astringent. (The owner of a Greenwich Village shop called Aphrodisia asserts that she washes her hair with a mixture of sage, camomile and rosemary.) Thyme is a tonic; marjoram, a stimulant

What could be more self-indulgent than a rose-geranium bath? Or a long soak in a tub of flowers? If you grow your own rosemary, lemon balm, lemon verbena, sweet marjoram, lavender or bergamot, you can enjoy a harem-type scented bath

Mrs H R. Ritchie of Palatine, the local herb lady, mentions Stewart Smith, a Grayslake seedsman, is a source of extensive seed varieties Mr. Smith is located at Route 120 and Haynesvile Road.

HERBS are the lazy gardener's helpmate They don't even like a real rich soil If given such a soil, they'll provide large leaves, but little fragrance and flavor Don't fertilize. All herbs ask is good drainage (they hate "wet feet"), sun and alkaline soil

Mix some well-broken plaster, crumbled eggshells or wood ashes into the herb bed, together with a little bone meal and well-rotted manure. Then coast along on the organic goodies without interference.

Before planting herb seeds, soak them for several hours or overnight to speed germination

Another good trick is to mix the little seeds with dry sand for better seed distribution Who needs thinning? You have enough work to do!

Those herbs most frequently used also happen to be the easiest to grow. And that s a comfort

His background is a low income broken home in Chicago his teens were spent as a friendless, introverted bookworm Sesu decided to enlist in the Marine Corps the day John Kennedy was assassinated He served four years — 11 months in Vietnam — was decorated five times and discharged as a non-commissioned officer

I WORKED ODD JOBS, trying to adjust to society after the Marines," he said

His life changed when he worked at the Psychic Research Foundation in Chicago and became a staff member of the Theosophical Society in America "It made me more harmonious with the world," he said

Sesu also is a student at Harper with a major in the theater He plans on going into the arts

Their life style? Basic survival smiled Gregg It's more than living together on a physical level — there is a spiritual togetherness"

Each of them has participated in the real world and each has chosen to live as they are today

"I joined the Air Force for patriotic reasons," Bill said "I got out because I could no longer accept or condone a huge organization that was proud to consider itself the greatest killing machine on the face of the earth"

"I BECAME DISENCHANTED with the business world and decided to live the way I wanted to live Gregg said "I decided not to compromise myself anymore"

"I want to make America smile," said Sesu

The Home Line

by Dorothy Ritz

Dear Dorothy: You help so many — maybe you can help me with my problem. I have a long suede coat which had to be packed and stored for awhile Now it is full of wrinkles and the cleaner I contacted did not want to attempt to remove the wrinkles. I've been told one should never use steam on suede. Can you help? — Margaret Luth.

Your cleaner sounds reliable, not wanting to try something he's not equipped to do. If your coat is clean, you can press out the wrinkles by placing heavy brown paper between the iron and the surface of the suede The iron should be on the lowest setting and never use steam. Press one panel at a time, constantly moving the iron to avoid overheating If the coat needs cleaning, find a cleaner who does this kind of work and the wrinkles will be taken care of in the renovating job.

Dear Dorothy: Is there any way to remove the shell from hard-boiled eggs without pulling or tearing the egg to pieces? — Mrs. W L. Turner.

When the eggs have been boiled the proper length of time, pour off the hot water and immediately plunge them into cold water As the water warms up and you add more cold water, give the eggs a little crack or two so some of the water gets in under the shell If the eggs are very fresh, you're going to have to struggle a bit. Fresh eggs are wonderful for soft boiling but a bit of a problem in removing the shells when hard boiled.

Dear Dorothy My husband pointed out a wonderful parking aid at the airport — the way the aisles are numbered so you can write the location on your ticket and thus not have to wander around aimlessly. — Helen Martin.

Yes, indeed. We've mentioned this before, wishing shopping center operators would follow suit It's so much worse at the big centers because you can never be certain which door you came in through.

Dear Dorothy It's not the same as putting on artificial eyelashes but I find a tiny bit of face powder before applying mascara gives them a more luxuriant look The same trick works on the eyebrows too. — Jill K.

Dear Dorothy Don't think I've seen the following hint in your column and thought your readers might be intrigued. A young neighbor showed it to me. When a hole has become too large for a screw, stuff the hole with steel wool and then put back the screw. It will fit perfectly. — Mrs. Frank A.

Dear Dorothy A simple way to get a whitish discoloration out of a glass vase is to use a tablespoonful of tea leaves and a cup of distilled white vinegar. Let stand overnight, then pour out — Patty B.

The musical "Oliver" will be presented as a spring fund-raising project for St. James Catholic Church of Arlington Heights.

The production will be staged at the St. James Parish Center, 814 N. Arlington Heights Rd., for six performances beginning Friday, April 16.

Inspired by Charles Dickens' "Oliver Twist," Lionel Bart wrote the book, music and lyrics for the stage production "Oliver," which opened in London in 1960 and New York in 1963. It was later made into an award winning motion picture.

In the making since November, the St. James presentation has a cast of 125 men, women and children with an additional 100 persons working backstage.

THE TITLE ROLE of Oliver, the little orphan who searches for love, will be played alternately by Peter Buckley and Michael Muhr, both of Arlington Heights.

Ed Joyce and George Jess, both of Arlington Heights, will play the thunderous Mr. Bumble, keeper of the workhouse, the role of sinister Bill Sikes will be taken by Frank Del Giudice of Rolling Meadows and Greg Ziomek of Arlington Heights.

Pat Gallagher of Arlington Heights and Cherri Howell of Palatine will alternate as Nancy, the good-time girl who is in love with the menacing Sikes.

Fagin, head of the crime school for boys, will be played by the Rev. Bill Zavaski of Arlington Heights and David Schroeder of Palatine. The role of the Artful Dodger, Fagin's loyal recruiter, will be shared by Ed Ebel and Richard Roller, both of Arlington Heights.

ALSO APPEARING in the production will be Jeanette Petrie, Jan Murphy, Slim Petrie, Barbara Finn, Ethel Green and Jeff Baker, all of Arlington Heights.

Other Arlington Heights cast members include Jim Kelley, Jim Murphy, Kathy Wright, Kim Alterini, Bob O'Brien, Ray Becker and Jerry Roller.

Also, Connie Roche, Gene Dougherty, Scott Toplzewski, Bob Ostler, Ray Becker and the Rev. Ray Devereux.

Cast members from Palatine are Margaret Muligano and Jim Eichberger.

The "Oliver" production is under the direction of the Rev. Zavaski, of St. James parish, assisted by Pat Buckley and Alice Olriksen, both of Arlington Heights.

MUSICAL DIRECTOR is Charlene Wright of Arlington Heights, and choreographer for the show is Shirley Hawley of Palatine.

The set was designed by Janis Holian of Mount Prospect. Tom Howell, also of Mount Prospect, is managing set construction.

Ron Umbdenstock of Arlington Heights is technical director. Co-producers of the show are Gene Dougherty and Jim McGrath, both of Arlington Heights.

Performances will be staged April 16, 17, 23, 24, 25 with a special matinee April 18. Tickets, 392-1272. They will also be on sale daily at the St. James Rectory, 841 N. Arlington Heights Rd., 10 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Collecting

with Grace Carolyn

Patty Pincus of Buffalo Grove is a lady with a lot of 'sole.' She comes by it naturally, since both her father, Mr. Jerome Burke, and her husband, Leonard, are in the shoe business.

Bedeviled Patty decided about a year and a half ago to carry on the tradition at home in her collecting, and to date she has about 50 miniature shoes and slippers in pottery, china, glass, leather and wood. Her favorite is a pair of real baby shoes with buckles and buttons, 85 years old, with the wear marks of that long ago little child visible on the toes and heels. They came complete with button hook, as necessary an accouterment a century or so ago as a zipper is today.

Patty's collection contains shoes from America, Japan, Germany, Czechoslovakia and Italy, and she adds it to regularly by visiting shops and shows. "I wear out a lot of shoe leather trotting around looking for items for my collection," she admits, but with the whole family in the business, that should be no problem.

STILL ON HER "want list" are a ruby flashed shoe, a German drinking boot and any other unusual and old examples. She would like to hear from others with the same hobby.

Miniature shoes have long been a favorite whimsey item of many glass and china houses. Ruth Webb Lee, in her "Victorian Glass" book, shows dozens of rare and beautiful glass slippers. These were popular souvenir items, and many are stamped or impressed with World's Fair names and dates. The Centennial at Philadelphia in 1876 (commemorating 100 years of independence,) The St. Louis Exposition in 1904, the Columbian Exposition in 1893, and later, the Century of Progress in Chicago in 1933. Shoe companies, such as Brown & Bros., gave miniature shoes as premiums with each purchase around the turn of the century.

SOME MINIATURES were modified to be used as perfume bottles or smelling salts containers. Tiny boots were match holders or toothpicks, and larger boots were made for drinking vessels. Many of these were blownmolded glass, and thousands were pressed.

The most popular pressed pattern was probably Daisy and Button, and these are still being made today. It is said that the "button" in this pattern was always "dimpled" in the old examples, but I wouldn't rely on this test. Modern reproductions are very good, and one could be fooled. Other pressed patterns were Cane, Sunburst, Diamond and Finecut.

Various heel heights, baby shoes, Persian slippers, men's boots, high buttoned shoes, even shoes on skates — virtually every style worn in every age was made in glass.

ALMOST AS COMMON are the various porcelain or china shoes and slippers. Examples are seen in Staffordshire, Wedgwood, Royal Beyreuth, Belleek, and others which cannot be identified. In more unusual materials, I have seen brass, wood, bone, cork, jade, semi-precious stones, silver and — fit for a Liz or a Jackie — a tiny diamond Cinderella slipper, formed into a brooch.

It would be possible to assemble a collection of hundreds of miniature shoes, and perhaps if Patty Pincus continues as successfully as she has to date, she will soon need a wall-to-wall display cabinet. An antique one, of course!

If you have a collection you would like featured, or a question on collectibles, please address it to Grace Carolyn Dahlberg, Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.

'Washington Slept Here'

Cameo Players will stage the comedy, "George Washington Slept Here," by Moss Hart and George S. Kaufman April 16 and 17 at Prospect High School.

Native New Yorkers, Newton and Annabelle Fuller, attempt to rejuvenate and live in a 200-year-old farm house. They are assisted by a pregnant maid and a droll New England farmhand.

The lives of Newton and Annabelle are made further amusing by the visits of a demanding rich uncle, a couple of amateur actors and a brat of a nephew.

The problems arising from family crises, the Japanese beetle and the price of manure are met head-on with hilarity as the two try to live in the house where George Washington slept. Tickets, 392-1242 or 259-3008.

Show 'Citizen Kane' At Harper

An award winning film, "Citizen Kane," will be shown at Harper College next Thursday in Building E, room 107 at 8 p.m. The film is being presented through the student faculty Cultural Arts Committee.

"Citizen Kane" was produced and directed by Orson Welles in 1941. Welles also starred the lead role and collaborated on the script. Joseph Cotten and Agnes Moorehead are among the cast members.

The movie presents an emotion packed story of a "Goliath" of the publishing world.

As the leading film character dies at 76 in his castle the reason for his last word, "Rosebud" is explored by a reporter. Kane's associates, his second wife and his butler are asked to give their version of the significance of the word.

"Citizen Kane" was given the best picture award by the New York Film Critics and an academy award was received for best original screenplay. The National Board of Review gave it the best picture and best actor rating.

Admission for adults is $1. Harper students are admitted free. Other student admission is 50 cents.

Exhibit Of Canadian Art In Chicago During April

An exhibition of new Canadian art "49th Parallels" opens tomorrow at the Museum of Contemporary Art The show will continue through May 16

Included in the exhibition are 37 paintings and works by Iain Baxter Jack Bush Jack Chambers Brian Fisher Peter Kolisnyk Les Levine Kenneth Lochhead and John Meredith

Also Guido Molinari Michael Snow, Claude Tousignant and Joyce Wieland

Sculptors in the show are Karl Beveridge Robert Murray David Rabinowitch and Edward Zelanak

The above 16 artists were chosen to represent a cross-section of art activity in Canada during the late 60s

Brian Fisher and Iain Baxter are considered two of the most important artists working in Vancouver Fisher's optically complicated paintings with their "exquisite surfaces and subtle light" exemplify West Coast art

JOYCE WIELAND produces a very different art The quilts in the exhibition derive from her preoccupation with 'pop' moviemaking and the occult Her political quilts reveal a good sense of humor blended with strong patriotism

Jack Chambers, a painter of moods, is the only figurative artist in the exhibition His graphite and vacuum-formed plexiglas reliefs contain a photographic realism.

The Museum of Contemporary Art is located at 237 E Ontario St in Chicago

Square Dance News

HAPPY TWIRLERS

The Happy Twirlers will be dancing tonight at 8 p.m. at the Congregational Church, Graceland and Marion streets, Des Plaines. Char-Lee Weiler is caller and director of the group.

Happy Twirler members are "all agog" over the contemplation of the "once in a lifetime" event that will take place in Webster Hall of the Congregational Church on April 16.

When Bob Osgood, editor of the national magazine of square dancing, "Sets In Order," made the statement that a Golden Wedding Celebration of an active husband-wife caller team was "unheard of" in square dance history, he probably failed to realize the repercussions it would bring about in the square dance world. All the square and round dance publications as well as others are "all het up" about it, and are demanding all the details.

When the president of one of the clubs Char-Lee calls for received his "corny" invitation, he exclaimed, "O boy, this I gotta put in a gold frame, because I know I'll never get another one like it."

The only invitations available, other than those sent to the members of the two clubs Char-Lee calls for, are those sent to some very important people. Included among these are Mayor Behrel of Des Plaines, Governor Ogilvie of Illinois, Spiro Agnew and President Richard Nixon.

Happy Twirlers dance every Friday night at 8 p.m. at the Congregational Church in Des Plaines.

LUTHER SQUARES

Russ Lee will be calling the squares tonight at 8 p.m. when the Luther squares meet at Our Saviour's Lutheran Church, 1234 N. Arlington Heights Road, Arlington Heights, for their regular monthly dance.

Refreshments will be served following the dance and members and friends are invited. More information may be obtained by calling 392-4713.

BELLS AND BOWS

Jim Smith from La Grange will be the guest caller, tomorrow night when the Bells and Bows Square Dance Club meet at the Boy Scouts of America Building, 1622 N. Rand Rd. in Arlington Heights.

Squaring up time is 8:30 p.m. immediately following a round dance session with Edna and Jean Arnfield.

Paul "Foggy" Thompson will be the guest caller at the April 17 dance. All area square dancers are invited. Refreshments are served.

SLOWPOKES

The Slowpokes of Mount Prospect are having a "Spring Thing" dance tonight at 8 p.m. at Euclid School, Euclid-Lake and Wheeling Road, one block east of Randhurst.

Gene Tidwell will be calling the squares, with Paul and Bunny Davis cueing the rounds.

There will be refreshments and door prizes, and all area square dancers are invited.

BRONCHO SQUARES

Bronco Squares will hold their regular dance tonight at 8 p.m. at Grove Avenue School, 900 Grove Ave., Barrington, with club caller, Paul "Foggy" Thompson.

Rounds throughout the evening will be handled by Pat and Don Johnson. Refreshments are served and everyone is welcome.

Flea Market To Open

Clowns for the children, marigold seeds for the ladies and an open invitation to the men to display their salesmanship will be available, beginning tomorrow at a unique Swap Shop Flea Market in Wheeling.

The Swap Shop Flea Market will be held every weekend at the Twin Outdoor Theater, 1010 S. Milwaukee Rd. It is open to anyone who wants to sell his unwanted items with his own display or for those people who want to find a "treasure" or just walk around and enjoy other people.

Swap Shop will offer patio dining, playgrounds, music, open air marketing and displays.

Special events planned for the Swap Shop will include: an Easter Egg Treasure Hunt, amateur arts and crafts day, baby orchids for mom on Mother's Day, Circus Day and Boy Scouts Day.

Swap Shop Flea Market is run by Swap Shop, Inc. which says the open-air market makes for a care-free attitude on new adventure. According to Rex Meadows of Swap Shop the Swap Shop Flea Market is like hundreds of rummage sales, antique shows, art fairs, hobby exhibits and discount stores all in one giant market.

Swap Shop Inc. operates another Flea Market in Chicago.

Turnout Is Low For First Candidate Forum

by TOM WELLMAN

There wasn't much of a crowd — about 30 persons were present — but the candidates and the questions were there Tuesday night at Elk Grove High School.

The occasion was the first of three candidate forums sponsored by Educators for Political Action (EPA), a group of educators interested in political involvement

The candidates were present — two of four from Elementary Dist. 59, five of six from High School Dist 214 and six of the eight running for the Harper College board

Each of the candidates had two minutes to make introductory remarks, then questions were welcomed from the floor Here are some of the statements of the candidates

Erwin Poklacki Dist 59 He said he felt he could work with the "traditionally conservative board in Dist 59 and said he would work to include teachers in the selection process of architects for future schools

Ted Staddler Dist 59 The future of the district depends on the development of all parties in it, he said He said we were concerned about "what, not how much, a student learns"

LEAH CUMMINS, Dist 214: She said that the Northwest Educational Cooperative (NEC) was "her baby" and that she had taken the opportunity "to punish it" with criticism She also asserted later that types of vocational education should start earlier than the high school level

Jack Matthews, Dist 214 He'd like to see a merit pay system in which gifted teachers would be rewarded for their performance He wondered, too, if teachers in the district had positive guidelines for handling discipline problems

Don McGlothlin, Dist 214 "Do you want four new high schools? Well, you already have them," he said, in support of [illegible] concept He also urged more vocational education on a [illegible]

Raymond Pettersen, Dist. 214: He said students should have "a parity of choice" between college preparatory and vocational courses. He asserted that he deeply cared about students in the "best district in Illinois."

Robert Winkle, Dist 214: Winkle wants to reestablish the old spirit of cooperation between Dist. 214 and its feeder districts He added that any merit pay program teachers should be administered by them

ROBERT FUCHS, Harper He asserted that a community college has the responsibility of serving the community and local industry, and should continue a strong development of career programs. He's concerned about the college's transfer programs, too

Milton Hansen, Harper: He said the college must work more to sell career programs to the students. Generally, the college has made the right decisions and is heading in the right direction He added the college is working to resolve concerns of students.

Ross Miller, Harper He hopes Hansen will gain reelection. He said the faculty is trying to enter a direct contract with the school itself, and he opposes board control by "special interest groups."

Larry Moran, Harper Moran said attorneys are a faction on the board, said he was "tired of attacks" from James Hamill, singled out several specific problems and said he could be a "neutral and flexible" board member

D Eugene Nugent, Harper: The environment provided by the teaching staff must be conducive to education, Harper's future development must be carefully planned, and the college's $5 million budget needs careful management techniques, which he said he could provide.

HANNAH K. WILSON, Harper: She listed several specific concerns, such as class size money spent on the Learning Resources Center and the administrator-to-faculty ratio. Educational humanization is one of her goals, she said.

The candidates handed out literature at the end of the meeting and chatted with members of the audience. There's at Wheeling High School, and the final forum will be held at 7:30 at Prospect High School.

Champs Debut With Win; St. Viator Trims Fenton

by JIM COOK

If pitching is still the name of the game, St. Viator head baseball coach Pat Mahoney and his crew are probably in for a prosperous and rewarding campaign.

Mahoney unveiled righty Scott Lindberg and southpaw Mike Cook in front of Fenton and the dynamic senior-sophomore duo shared the first victory, 5-2, for the Lions, co-champs in league play last spring and a perennial baseball power.

Lindberg, Viator's quarterback during the fall schedule, started the opener and was tapped for both Fenton tallies in a shaky first inning.

He was labeled for a tumultuous homer off the bat of Bison Glenn Barzo after fanning the first two men he faced. An error and back-to-back singles accounted for another Fenton run before the Lions cut down a runner at third to escape further damage.

Lindberg quickly settled down and after a harmless error in the second, he retired seven straight, without a ball leaving the infield.

Cook looked like anything but an underclassman on the mound during the final three-inning stint. He struck out the side in the fifth and eased out of a bases loaded, one-out jam in the sixth via a strikeout and a weak roller back to the mound.

Viator's bats were hardly silent as they rattled the Bensenville grounds for seven hits — two apiece by Mike Pettenuzzo and Bob Quinnett.

Fenton's early two-run outburst stood pu until the Lions sentthe top of the batting order up in the third inning.After leadoff man Bill Hake popped out to the catcher, Pettenuzzo drilled a standup double down the left fieldline and advanced to third on a wild pitch later.

Mark Rossi followed with a walk and promptly stole second as Tom Smith whiffed for the second out. The Lions finally got a break as a boot by the Bison third baseman opened the gates for Pettenuzzo carrying the season's first run.

Quinett blooped a double into left-center for Rossi's typing marker and moments later, Frank Kotre galloped home with the eventual winner on a wild pitch.

Pettenuzzo added icing on the cake in the fifth when his leadoff single blossomed into the Lions' fourth run on another Fenton wild pitch.

Singles by Kevin Kelly and Cook, sandwiched around a strategic ground out, accounted for Viator's final tally of the well-played contest.

The Lions' initial triumph was strictly a team effort as Mahoney pumped 13 players into the lineup. First-game jitters accounted for three Lion errors and a fat eight in the strikeout department.

All in all, though, it was a promising start for a very promising St. Viator baseball season.

SCORE BY INNINGS:

St. Viator	003	011	10—5-7-3
Fenton	200	000	00—2-4-3

APPEALS FOR JUSTICE

Dear Sirs:

I agree wholeheartedly with your article of Thursday, March 18 (Paul Logan's Column) pertaining to the eligibility of three area athletes. I feel that these boys have been unjustly dealt with and that much reform is needed in our Illinois High School Association rules.

It is my sincere hope that at the next board meeting these young men will be exonerated. The point most extant in your article is the inherent integrity the boys displayed by the straightforward manner in which they attended the event.

If our area can offer every possible educational advantage to our youngsters then we must also insure positive attitudes toward their athletic training.

Michael P. Tikas
Rolling Meadows

Dear Sirs:

I felt your article of March 18, concerning the eligibility of three area athletes was well written and a fair statement of facts. I feel that these boys were unjustly punished after all the facts were heard by the I.H.S.A. board. I sincerely hope the I.H.S.A board will see fit to reverse their decision after the April 3 hearing

One point I would like to emphasize is the lack of knowledge concerning the I.H.S.A. rules. IF A RULE IS TO BE FOLLOWED IT MUST BE KNOWN TO EXIST BY THOSE IT GOVERNS.

If such a consequence as one full year of ineligibility in all sports is attached to breaking on the I.H.S.A. rules, then each person concerned should be specifically informed of all the rules which do or could be applied to him.

Roger M. Wilson, Jr.
Arlington Heights

You gentlemen are definitely in the majority in this controversy. We can only hope that the I.H.S.A. board will see the light in its Saturday meeting and give these three young athletes the justice they deserve — Paul Logan

WANTS RACE STORIES

Dear Sirs:

Last year I was very fortunate to have an article on myself and bicycle racing in this area. Soon after the article appeared, your department started carrying the results of the Thursday night races at Northbrook's bike track. I hope to see these results again this year.

However, while you have recognized track racing during summer, how about printing the results of road races which take place during the spring and summer? Each year during April, May, June, July and August, cyclists from Elk Grove Village, Mount Prospect, Des Plaines and Arlington Heights travel all over the midwest to enter races. In most areas these cyclists place very well in their events. Many of these athletes qualify in the state championships and then go on to the national events.

True, you did have a small article on Bob Vehe, who took fifth in the Junior Men's Division in the nationals, and his brother Rich, who won the Midget Division. But these outstanding athletes deserved more credit than they received. There was also no mention of the other area cyclists who went to these events. Although Tim Zasadny and Tim Jilek of Mount Prospect did not finish in the top five in their events, they did show well against the best cyclists in the nation.

I think you have given more coverage to cycling than most papers would. But I do hope that more space can be devoted to this relative unknown sport in the near future.

Rex Gilmore
Elk Grove Village

Thanks for the suggestions. We'll look into it and see if we can develop more coverage on this interesting sport. Encourage the public relations people involved with racing to supply us with the information. We'll be happy to use it. — Bob Frisk

ORR VS. MAGNUSON

Dear Sirs:

Many of my friends who are hockey fans have been downgrading Bobby Orr (of the Boston Bruins) and calling Keith Magnuson (of the Black Hawks) a better defenseman. I disagree with this opinion.

Many people say Orr is overrated because he scores a lot of points and goals They say he is caught out of position too often because he plays like a fourth forward.

I think they are being very narrow-minded. I agree with impartial experts from Canada who almost unanimously agree that Orr is the greatest in the game, perhaps of all time. This is in all-around ability, not just offensive. It is beyond my comprehension that anyone could say Magnuson is better.

Black Hawk fans falsely assume that just because Orr scores a lot, this means he doesn't play defense. They think this ebcause they don't realize that Orr can do things no other player could do. He has such amazing speed and reactions that he is able to get back and play his position (defenseman) as well as anyone even though he goes for goals. Thus, his defense is still as good as anyone's and better than Magnuson even if you completely disregard scoring. This is just a bonus the Bruins get from Orr.

The telltale proof is the very important statistic showing the difference between the number of goals scored for and against a player's team while he is on the ice. Orr has the best such number on the plus side of anyone in the (National Hockey) league, by far. This wouldn't be the case if he didn't play good defense because he is on the ice so much of the time.

One other thing. I think that Hawk fans who keep assuming that their team will be in the Stanley Cup fianls against Boston are counting their chickens before they're hatched. The Hawks have been coasting all season with no pressure and will have all they can do just to survive the semi-finals, probably against the New York Rangers. The Rangers have the best defensive record in the League. Their won-lost record is about even with the Hawks and they compete in a much tougher division.

Mark Goldberg
Mount Prospect

You sound like a Bruin fan but you have some very valid points. Perhaps Hawk fans should be a little more objective. We can only hope the Hawks and Bruins do meet in the finals of the playoffs so Orr and Magnuson can be further compared. Now, fans, how about a rebuttal from "Maggie's" following? — Larry Everhart

Glenbrook blanked Arlington, 1-0, despite a strong two-hitter by the Cards' John Lane, and New Trier took a doubleheader from Palatine as the Pirates collected only seven hits.

'Fair' Outlook For Hawk Nine

by PAUL LOGAN

Three things appear certain as Harper College's baseball team prepares for its season opener on Saturday — the team will have strength both halfway up the middle and on the corners and the schedule will be the most rugged ever.

The Hawks will be at the Kendall College diamond in Evanston for a doubleheader, barring bad weather, beginning at noon

Harper's pre-season outlook has been tabbed as "fair" by Clete Hinton, the Hawks' head coach It would have been much better had all nine veterans returned. However, only four lettermen are out this year — Steve Bahn, Frank May, Jeff DuPre and Dick Connors.

It will be up to Bahn and May to show the inexperienced pitchers the way. Meanwhile, May and DuPre will be handling the corners and Connors will be trying to keep the outfield sharp.

Bahn, a former star hurler at Fremd in the Mid-Suburban League, was outstanding in his freshman season. He had a record of 4-2, fanned 49 and walked only eight. He paced the staff in the latter two categories.

Although May didn't pitch for Harper last season, he did see plenty of action both on the Des Plaines legion team and while prepping at Forest View. He, too, was all-conference in high school both as a hard throwing righthander and a slugging first baseman.

May hit .311 last year for the college and hammered in 23 runs to pace the team. He also had seven extra base hits among his 24 safeties

Handling the other corner opposite May will be DuPre. Although only coming to hat 28 times, DuPre also was among the hitting leaders with a .321 average.

Connors, the only other letterman, was a pitcher last year. He hurled in 10 games but will be roaming the outfield this time around.

Also back, although not a letterman, is Ray Gross. Hinton is hopeful that he'll be able to help out his mound aces in relief.

Two fine newcomers who will be sharing the pitching chores with Bahn and May will be Buzz Johnson and Pat Doyle. Johnson, an all-conference lefty in the MSL last year, was the ace on the Forest View pitching staff. Johnson is capable of turning in brilliant performances as his no-hitter during last season indicates. He also hurled for the Des Plaines legion.

Doyle, a sophomore from Palatine, gained plenty of experience with the Palatine legion last summer. Hinton is impressed with his strong right arm.

Handling these hurlers will be "the two best catchers I've ever had," according to Hinton. They are Ernie Purcelli and Duke Delano.

Purcelli, former high school catcher at Palatine and a fine legion signalcaller with the Post 690 team, and Delano, a former pro at Glenbrook South, both transferred to Harper this year and are sophomores.

The top contenders for the other infield positions are as follows:

Shortstop — Mike Losch, all MSL and top hitter at Elk Grove, and Ken Dohm, a former Niles West product.

Second base — Tom Stinson, former Fremd player, Kirk Wyatt, a Conant veteran, anl Kim Boley, a Deerfield veteran.

First base — Ryan Maly, an ex-Forest View player who will be called on when May is pitching

Manning the outfield spots along with Connors will be two of the following:

Jeff Boyer from Elk Grove, Wally Wiener, all-conference player from Conant, Bill Maffy from Forest View and Terry Thourson, a sophomore from Niles West

Other players who could still crack the starting lineup are Tom Bruns (Fremd), Kevin Bessee (Palatine), Larry Celeste (Conant), Ron Peliszczak (Conant), Bill Rosenberg (Wheeling), and Terry Goldberg (Niles North).

Making the schedule tough this season will be the likes of Wright, Kankakee, Lewis (junior varsity), Rock Valley and two invitationsl tournaments — at Illinois State and Lake County.

Harper's new home field is "like a sponge right now," according to Hinton. So the Hawks are still not sure where they'll be playing their home opener on Tuesday against College of DuPage.

"I feel pretty optimistic," said Hinton of the campaign. However, he had held just one practice game outside so he still didn't know just how many outstanding new players he had just yet. "There's kind of a lot of question marks going into the season."

Prospect In Debut Today

by JIM COOK

Prospect head basketball coach Bill Slayton guided his all-senior team to the conference championship Knight baseball pilot Larry Pohlman will use basically the same strategy in quest of the identical result

The varsity Knight diamondmen will make their 1971 debut this afternoon at home against Niles North with a lineup of experienced, proven ball players.

"I think our nucleus of seniors makes experience one of our strong points," Pohlman said "A lot, of course, depends on pitching but we've got some good boys back"

Pohlman's biggest blue-chipper is hard throwing Bill "Nate" Thurnhoffer who shared in Prospect's pitching rotation last year. Nate appeared in six games and recorded a 1-1 record off a stingy 1.61 earned run average.

He'll be joined on the mound by Casey Rush who Pohlman figures will have to have a good year if Prospect plans to go anywhere Casey missed part of last season because of an illness, but the lanky senior is ready to silence opposing bats

Dave Lundstedt is another "must" performer if Pohlman's conference championship dreams are to become a reality. A three-year varsity competitor, Dave will have to pitch and hit the Knights to victory

"Dave's got the tools to become more than just an all-conference ball player," Pohlman said "He led us in runs scored and homers and was well up there in runs batted in."

Senior Ron Smoy adds still another dimension to the Knight hurling corps and will be counted on for late inning relief work. "Ron saw only limited action last year, but has matured into a smart pitcher," Pohlman said

The infield is jammed with some familiar names that led the Knights to a 5-9 league season one year ago. At third is three-year veteran Don Koehler, a sure-armed, steady ball player who led the team in stolen bases last year with five

At short, when he's not pitching, will be Lundstedt who covers the ground for a big (6-4) man and will be inserted somewhere near the cleanup slot in the batting order.

Dave Harbach, since converting to a switch-hitter two seasons ago, will bring last year's .300 batting average back into the lineup and play second base.

Thurnhoffer, who swatted opposing pitches at a 429 clip last year, will make the stretches at first base when he's not needed on the mound

The take-charge type of atmosphere will be supplied by Stu White from behind the plate A knowledgeable signal-caller, White hit 282 while appearing in every game for the Knights last year.

Pohlman's "fifth infielder" is Tom Schreiber, a senior who can capably man any of the infield positions when the need arises

The Prospect outfield boasts both speed and the strong arm in Dennis Tite, Rush and Mike Tolzien. Tite, the only junior slated for a starting assignment is being pushed by another good looking junior in Scott Rochelle, according to Pohlman.

Rush, after a tough year at the plate last season, has been stinging the ball real well in practice under the watchful eyes of Pohlman and Assistant Coach Bill Slayton

Tolzien can handle both the outfield and the catching chores as he did during the past legion season when White suffered a broken finger. "He's been a real pleasant surprise for us with his bat," Pohlman said. "He's hitting real well so far this spring."

To reach their goal this season, Prospect will have to come out on top of the close, one-run ball games that haunted them in the past.

"We'll have to have the big hit and the big run batted in," Pohlman said. "Of course, it's all a matter of when we get, but we put a string of seven together a couple of years ago and got to the regional finals That's pretty good for a high school team, and I think we're capable of a couple of strings this year

"We can't be second in the league in hitting and seventh in runs scored, again. We can't afford to leave too many men on base and I think our experience will help that"

If everyone contributes his share for Prospect it could be an instant replay conference championship and possibly even the Paddock Cup for the South Division Knights.

Surge To Win Title

West Davenport, which beat Ottumwa for the Iowa Class AA high school basketball championship, finished its season with a lackluster 11-11 mark. Six of those losses, including a 92-52 rout at the hands of East Moline, came to Illinois teams as West finished fifth in the Quad Cities Metro-League won by East Moline.

Barr Eyes NCAA Crown

"I don't think there is anything else that can be said about Ken Barr," University of Illinois gymnastics coach Charley Pond praised as he worked with the former Prospect High School star in preparation for this weekend's NCAAA competition in Ann Arbor, Mich.

"He's just an exceptional performer on the side horse He walked away with the title in the Big Ten meet and I anticipate he can score as well in this meet "

Barr, a state champ at Prospect, won the Big Ten title with an overall average of 9 6 points out of a possible 10

Ali Wows The Campus

"Look at all that black gold," a coed cooed on the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee campus

She was talking about Muhammad Ali, who was here on a stop in his national tour of college campuses

Ali, 29, earned $2.5 million in his heavyweight champion loss to Joe Frazier March 8, but he reminded students here that the "black gold" referred to by the coed was substantially diluted by state and federal taxes.

"I was left with about $500,000 and I ain't seen a penny yet," he said

That didn't tarnish his image as far as his fans were concerned He came on like a matinee idol to young and old alike

"If I was 16," said a black, middle-aged university staff member, "I would just faint all over the floor "

"He looks better than he does on TV," said another coed "He's pretty. He's beautiful "

A Jack Armstrong Type

The Cleveland Cavaliers burned plenty of midnight oil before they decided to go for Austin Carr instead of Sidney Wicks or anybody else in the NBA draft

"When you draft No 1 you check what he had for breakfast," Fitch says "We couldn't possibly ask for a better performer or more of an all-around high type individual than Austin Carr. If they ever bring back the Jack Armstrong program again, he'll be Jack Armstrong Austin is the kind of person never satisfied with what he did today, he's always concerned with what he's going to do tomorrow."

Palatine Bats Explode In Opener

by LARRY EVERHART

Should the final score be called 9-3 or 16-3?

That doesn't really matter much to anybody. The important thing is that Palatine's hitters have issued fair warning to teams they will oppose this spring.

In their opener of the season at Lake Park (the game had been scheduled for Palatine but was switched because of field condition), coach Roy Schodtler's Pirates exploded for a pair of seven-run innings, two home runs and two individual three-for-four performances at the plate

They had run up a 16-3 rout when the game was called because of darkness in the top of the sixth inning. But it was officially recorded as a 9-3 triumph since there was only one out when the contest was halted and Lake Park didn't bat in the sixth.

Although it was a non-league warmup, Schodtler feels his team is ready.

"We were hitting curve balls," he pointed out. "And the pitchers we faced were not that bad — we just hit them I can only think of two hits that were not solid. The rest were good line drives."

Lake Park coach Norb Wesolowski agreed, saying, "There are no excuses for us. I've got to give them (Palatine) credit "

Bruce Eberle and Rick Zieman each collected three hits in four at-bats for the Pirates, with Eberle smashing two doubles and driving in four runs and Zieman belting a home run.

The other four-bagger was by Keith One. Jim Bambrick also had a two-run double.

Steve Garoutte was the winning pitcher, turning in three strong innings. He gave up two hits (one a homer) and walked two. Mike Hughes hurled the other two frames and also looked good, especially for a sophomore.

Palatine grabbed a quick 2-0 lead in the first inning, then exploded for the first of a pair of seven-run rallies in the third. One led off that inning with his homer, followed by a single by Juan Martinez. Garoutte was hot by a pitch, Zieman poked another four-bagger, and Eberle, Andy Knotek and Bambrick socked three singles in a row.

Lake Park got on the scoreboard in the bottom of the third on a long home run by Bruce Elliott, carried by a strong wind to center field, after a hit batsman.

The host Lancers added their third run off Hughes in the fifth after two were out with no one on. Elliott singles and three consecutive walks followed.

That officially ended the game, as it turned out, but Palatine paraded seven more runs across just for good measure. One walked and Hughes, Garoutte and Eberle strung together singles, Eberle's bringing in two runs. John Berley and Jim Sander then drew free passes. Bambrick chased two more runs home with his double and One again singled.

At that point, the proceedings were mercifully halted.

Palatine is scheduled to host Niles North on the Maple Park diamond Monday at 4:30.

Test a point

It's ride, not price of car

By Dan Jedlicka

Does a higher price tag result in a better riding car? Some 200 California residents recently were blindfolded, priced in a $26,000 imported car, a custom $15,000 American limousine and a $6,000 Mercury Marquis.

They were participating in a test by Nationwide Consumer Testing Institute, New Jersey, for Ford Motor Company's Lincoln - Mercury Division to get consumer ratings of ride characteristics of the cars. Such tests routinely are conducted by automakers, results seldom are made public.

The residents, wearing gloves so they couldn't feel the interior fabric and get cues to the cars' identity, were asked to judge each car on smoothness, steadiness and quietness after they had been driven over 2.9 miles of winding, hilly and rough roads.

The Marquis ride was favored 59 to 31 over the $26,000 car and 57 to 33 over the limousine. Twenty rate the rides even. The participants, says L-M, included businessmen, attorneys, artists, physicians - "most of them fine car owners."

L-M went into the test with its fingers crossed. It timed the results. They were so encouraging that L-M has made a television commercial about the test.

Scrappy Fremd In Diamond Debut

Remember 'Gashouse Gang'? Watch Vikings

by LARRY EVERHART

Scrappy, aggressive baseball — with daring baserunning, sharp fielding, strong pitching and barely enough hitting — are associated with teams like the old "Gashouse Gang" of St. Louis in the 1930's and Chicago's last pennant winner, the 1959 White Sox.

This year's Fremd baseball team seems like the type to bring back memories of that kind of play.

You get that idea from listening to coach Terry Gellinger describe his 1971 squad. Fremd is scheduled to open its season with a pair of non-conference games this weekend, weather permitting, against Barrington Friday afternoon at home and at St. Viator Saturday morning.

"We'll be in a lot of close, low-scoring games," Gellinger predicts. "Probably our strongest suit is pitching and the kids are working on being a team that won't beat itself in the field.

"There's nothing harder to predict than high school baseball. I think if everything goes right we'll have a chance in the conference, but there won't be any laughers for us.

"We led the league (Mid-Suburban) in stolen bases last year and we're still a fast team. We hope to run a lot again, but we'll have to get on base first."

That last task may prove to be the Vikings' biggest problem. Hitting looks to be their weakness just as pitching should be the forte.

"We only hit .186 as a team last year (.204 for eighth in batting in the MSL) and that really held us back," Gellinger went on. "We were no-hit three times but still won 12 out of 21 games."

Fremd's highest batting average in league play in '70 was only .261, and that was by Bob Moloznik who has graduated. Highest mark by a returnee was just .242.

Yet Fremd still managed to put together an 8-6 MSL record for third place. They could do as well or better this time around with the same type of team.

Gellinger has five returning lettermen, all seniors, and two of them head up the strong pitching staff. The most promising is Mark Wicklund, who won two more games than any other hurler in the league last seasm, was fourth in earned-run average with a fancy 0.87, and was 8-2 overall.

Number two on the staff is senior lefty Rick Peekel, who was used sparingly last year but has excellent potential. A strong third man is junior Doug Pettit, who was the league's top sophomore hurler last season with a 10-1 record.

Also available for mound duty are junior righthander Terry Kukla and senior southpaw Bob Riplinger.

"Our pitching should keep us in every game if we don't make mistakes in the field," says Gellinger.

Joining Wicklund and Peekel on the lettermen list are second baseman Bill Cheney, third baseman Dave Wickersham and center fielder Dave Hauswirth. The latter two are moving to new positions, as Wickersham played outfield and Hauswirth first base last year.

Wicklund and Hauswirth are the only two with much varsity experience, so hitting especially is a mystery.

Peekel will probably play first base except when pitching, in which case Randy Hague or Dan McCool will play there. Hague, a senior, is starting his first season on the diamond.

At second, Cheney will be backed up by junior Scott Kellett. Junior John Ericson is top shortstop candidate as is Wickersham at third. Kukla can also play third as well as any other position.

In the outfield the only definite starter is Hauswirth in center. Doug Pettit may start in right and left is a tossup among Gene Bell, Bill Peterson and possibly Kukla.

"The kids are working real hard and hoping for a weather break so we can get the season going," says Gellinger. "We were delayed in indoor practice again this year because of the sectional basketball tournament. That holds us back about a week.

"But I couldn't ask for a better attitude."

But Hitting Is Definite Question-Mark

Pitching Shows Promise In Conant Outlook

by LARRY EVERHART

The popular new expression "Today is the first day of the rest of your life" would be a perfect one for the Conant baseball team to adopt.

The past — last year in particular — was filled with frustration and heartbreak for coach Jerry Cunningham's Cougars. They lost six games by a total of seven runs in 1970, making their 5-9 Mid-Suburban League record and 9-10 overall mark look worse than the team really was.

But with the dawn of a new decade and Conant now embarks on a brand new season, a fresh slate. With just a little luck, the times ahead seem bright.

Conant's season is slated to begin tomorrow (Saturday) at 10 a.m. on their home field against Lake Park, with the usual big if concerning weather and field condition.

Pessimism is hardly necessary for the Lake game, but the Cougars will be a winner in [illegible] the Cougars are in good shape. They have six returnees from last year's squad, all of whom saw a lot of playing time, and four on both the mound and in the batter's box.

Cunningham's pitching hopefuls are [illegible] with only one experienced arm returning. With pitching a strong suit, Conant should be able to beat .500 ball.

Defense is one of the squad's game [illegible] improvement most since Conant was gone up to Division league in [illegible]. The staff earned [illegible] adequate, but Conant's defense [illegible] runs.

Probably the one biggest asset the Cougars have is the stout left arm of John Macdonald. A three-sport standout, Macdonald already has two impressive varsity seasons behind him.

His ERA [illegible] an outstanding [illegible] and 3.53 in 1969 and his record was deceptively mediocre since he got very little hitting support from his mates. With better play backing him up, Macdonald was the potential to be a terror on the mound.

And unlike last year, he won't stand alone as a reliable pitcher. Junior Bill Arkus and senior Randy Jones, who both got plenty of experience last summer, will round out a solid starting threesome.

"If our pitching can come through . . . this will be the key for us," says Cunningham, back for his second season at the helm. "That was our trouble last year — not enough pitching depth."

The other three veterans are Mike Honel, Bob Bain and Rich Gawron. Gawron is not with the team at present but it is hopeful he will return. Honel plays first base or outfield and Bain is tabbed as regular shortstop.

Honel, Arkus, Gawron and junior first baseman Keith Steelman are considered by Cunningham to be the best hitters while Bain, Arkus and senior catcher Rich Gallas appear to be the most reliable on defense.

Others likely to see a lot of action are junior third baseman and relief pitcher Chet Pudlosky, junior second baseman Daryl Drew, and junior third sacker Dave Valerio. With either Arkus or Bain at shortstop, the infield appears very solid defensively.

The big question mark is the outfield, which has no lettermen for regular duty. Center field will probably have either George Pattee (also a relief pitcher) or Arkus, if he isn't playing elsewhere.

Hitting is a question and like pitching can stand a lot of improvement over last year. The three top hitters (Mike Arkus, Wally Weiner and Dave Kellermeyer) as well as both of Conant's all-conference selections (Weiner and M. Arkus) were lost by graduation. Conant was sixth in batting with a .216 team average last season.

But even if the batting punch isn't fearsome, Conant will likely be in most every game on the strength of the pitching. They hope the difference in 1971 will be ability to pull out the close ones.

As for prospects in the conference, Cunningham says, "We should be about as good as anybody in our division (South). I think the other side (North Division) will be a little stronger."

Conant has three non-league games scheduled to warm up for the conference games, which are slated to begin April 12 at Prospect.

Watch Out For Hersey In Baseball

by KEITH REINHARD

From a bark to a growl to a roar

This is the sequence Steve Chernicky has in mind for one growing canine, namely a Huskie and specifically the Hersey baseball program he is heading up for the third time around this season.

Hersey's 1971 baseball campaign begins Saturday with a non-conference affair at Grant. During this outing and three more subsequent exhibition bouts Chernicky hopes to solidify a lineup oozing of potential and thereby thrust his team solidly into the Mid-Suburban league pennant chase this spring.

A strong showing by the Huskies would seem natural. Chernicky was at Wheeling when that school opened and he built the Wildcats up from scratch into a title contender during his four-year stint there.

And the Purdue grad was at Hersey when it opened its doors just a couple of years ago. The first Huskie diamond crew finished up with a 7-11 overall mark and last year they had improved to a .500 ballclub and put a district championship under their belts.

This season Chernicky has seven lettermen back including four entering their third year of varsity ball to help him set his sights even higher. The '71 Huskies appear to be a unit loaded with power and steady in the pitching department.

If the mentor can get a few uncertainties ironed out, they may be on their way.

"We seem to have a pretty strong group. I've made some defensive changes among our veterans that should help but we still have a few unsettled positions and we won't really know how we stack up until I've had a chance to look at some of these players under game conditions."

Among the members of his 22-man roster he won't have to worry about are tri-captains Bruce Frase, Steve Koch and Ken Morales along with Ken Kennepp. Frase is a member of the original Hersey varsity team, a two-time all conference standout, and probably the best all around athlete the school has yet produced.

The other three all joined the upper level team in the midst of the '69 season and have been regular fixtures ever since.

The difference now is that Frase, a shortstop and sometime pitcher, has been put behind the plate, second baseman Kennepp has been shifted to left field, and centerfielder Morales has been moved in to second. Another letter holder, Bill Ludwigsen will slide over from right to roam in center and only Koch remains stationary at first.

No matter where any of them play in the field, their bats will be heard from, especially in the case of Frase and Kennepp who posted .311 and .371 loop batting averages last spring.

Hersey's other lettermen are twirler Terry Smith and catcher Jim Quade. Righty Smith, who posted a 5-3 overall mark last season, figures to head up the Huskie pitching corps while Quade, a good glove man, will back up Frase.

Hersey's mound situation has just about reversed itself from last spring when Chernicky had a trio of good southpaws and only Smith coming in from the right side. This time there is only one lefthander, Terry Moriarity, as opposed to four right handers in addition to Smith.

Two other pitchers have some varsity experience. Greg Prosser saw action in five games last year and Steve Perry worked in four tilts. There is also a move-in, Marty Epperly, and a junior, Mark Leonhard, but these latter two might just see action at other positions.

"We don't have any blazing speed this year," Chernicky observed of his hurling staff. "Leonhard probably throws the hardest but I'll break him in slowly and use him in the outfield in the meantime. The other kids I think will make up in control for any lack of speed they might have."

Leonhard is just one of three vying for that rightfield slot though. Another pair of juniors, Dave Zare and Rich Kornelly, are also in the running and the latter just might have the early edge since he did play some with the varsity team last year.

Epperly on the other hand, can back up Morales at second when he's not pitching, and junior Bob Vercruysse will work behind Koch at first. That leaves the left side of the infield unsettled with junior Brad Smith and Homewood-Flossmoor move-in Bob Andreas shooting for the shortstop berth and junior Steve Kuebler and Texas move-in Steve Heldt out to win the third base position.

A fourth move-in, from Oak Park, is junior Pat Broderick, also a catcher.

Rounding out Hersey's team are junior Dan Crane, another infield prospect, and Bob Dietz, also a junior who Chernicky plans to insert as a utility man and in pinch hitting roles.

The Huskies will move to Maine West for another game next Tuesday and are slated to open circuit action at Forest View April 12. Their schedule:

Milton Richman

NEW YORK (UPI) — Lew Alcindor can put you to sleep.

That's how smooth he is.

The last two professional athletes I can think of who performed with the same ease and grace were Joe DiMaggio and Cary Cooper and long before they were through everybody figured they'd wind up where they did — in the Hall of Fame.

Lew Alcindor, the Milwaukee Bucks' pride and joy and the NBA's MVP and leading scorer, is the most dominant player in all basketball today.

That means all the other clubs immediately go running for him.

"We double-team him, they front him, they set from the weak side, they do everything conceivable to him," says Larry Costello, the Milwaukee coach. "You take Philadelphia. I've seen 'em throw two or three guys in and out of here physically pushing him and trying to get him irritated. That kind of thing hits to whether anybody.

I asked Lew Alcindor how much things "bother" him, bother him and he said no again.

"It's something you have to get used to," he said. "I'm never left alone. But I expected it. That's what I should expect to get as a pro."

Alcindor isn't making himself out a martyr; he's simply saying the opposition keeps bearing down a little harder against him. That's only natural. A pitcher works harder on Johnny Bench than he does on Darrel Chaney, doesn't he?

"I've been playing basketball since I was 9 years old, 7 foot-2 Lew Alcindor can't do. The horrible part about it all — at least from the viewpoint of the other NBA clubs — is that he keeps improving.

"I think my main improvement has been my ability to analyze situations during the game," Alcindor says. "Once you develop that it makes the game a lot easier.

"If the game becomes much easier for Alcindor we should pay them to let him play.

I realize the present set-up though, they're paying him and they're paying him pretty good.

Alcindor gets $250,000 a year, which comes to roughly $5,000 a week, which to Lew isn't rough at all.

"He's worth all he gets," says a spokesman for the Bucks, who now are one up on the San Francisco Warriors in the opening round NBA playoffs. "We averaged 98 per cent capacity attendance at home this season and our last 17 games were sellouts."

All due to Alcindor.

Well, yes, says the man from Milwaukee. I'd have to say he and Oscar Robertson both.

This is the Bucks' third year in the NBA.

They didn't have Alcindor their first year in the league and they finished in the cellar.

Last year Alcindor was the Rookie of the Year and the Bucks made the playoffs only to be knocked off in the semi-finals by the Knicks.

A lot of people think the Bucks can go all the way this year. The reason they think that is Lew Alcindor. "I am only one man and it takes more than one man to win a basketball championship for any team," says Milwaukee's soph center. "If we are to win it will take a collective five man effort."

There is a current article in a national magazine which leaves something of an impression Alcindor isn't exactly enthralled playing in Milwaukee. Speaking about the story he says it failed to include everything he said, which, had it been included, would have explained some of his other statements clearly.

"I did say in the article I have no real roots in Milwaukee and that is true," Alcindor points out. "But I am paid to play basketball, we have very good fans who give us a lot of support and I have nothing against the city."

Occasionally when you see Lew Alcindor out there on the floor he looks as if he'd rather be doing anything else but playing basketball. He may look that way but he says it isn't so.

"I like this work," he said.

Yes, I'm paid to do what I'm doing but I'm not in basketball for the money alone. Money brings material benefits but it certainly doesn't bring happiness. As far as what I'm doing now I'll stay involved as long as I can relate to it."

For the money he's getting to play basketball, Alcindor doesn't figure to un-relate to it for the next few weeks anyway.

Besides he's coming off a pretty fair season.

He not only led all scorers and walked off with the Podoloff Cup as most valuable player, but he also piled up the most lopsided margin in the NBA's MVP history. Alcindor drew 123 first place votes to six for his nearest rival — Jerry West. What made it so personally gratifying to him was that the voting was done by all the NBA players.

"I couldn't ask for more," says Lew Alcindor.

Cautious Optimism Shows In Grove Baseball Camp

by JIM COOK

Youth and experience just don't go hand-in-hand on the high school athletic field — unless you play baseball at Elk Grove.

Grenadier head coach Larry Peddy envisions a .500 or better team at the Grove for at least the next two to three years, and he has the talent to back up his prediction.

He has a pair of juniors that started as sophomores last season,a mature pitching staff and an experienced-deep infield that he calls, "the best hitting club, potentially, since I've been there."

Peddy has five seasons under his belt and has reason to be enthusiastic about the upcoming campaign. Here is why:

Three seniors, two juniors and a sophomore will handle the Grove's pitching chores. The upperclassmen are Luke Wolanski, southpaw Dave Hildebrand and Bob Thulin who is slated for the bullpen.

Juniors Ron Sobon and Casper Weber will also help bolster Peddy's relief staff while soph Jeff Stewart, a hard-throwing righty, is also included in the rotation plans.

Third base is still pretty much of a question mark for the Grenadiers, but the competition among four candidates should present Peddy with a pleasant choice. Rick Hauserman, a junior, caught and played short last year for the sophomores.

Southpaw swinging Scott Pruitt has some outfield experience, but can capably man third if needed. Juniors Jeff Sromkoski and Scott O'Hearnwill also be ready at a moments notice.

Nick Adams, the varsity's regular third baseman last year, will move over to shortstop. The senior letterman and co-captain willbe backed by junior Dan Connelly.

Tom Claes, another scrappy senior, is slated forsecond baseduties and will be backed by Nick DiGilio, a junior. First base will also have aconglomeration of four prospects trying to land the starting no.

Steve Scholten, who can also double as a catcher, lettered as a juniorlast year and will supply the Grenadiers with a home run threat in the lineup. Bob Chen, another junior, and Pruitt, when he's not at third, also rate a shot. Ji mStewart, Jeff's brother, can also make the grade, according to Peddy.

The catching chores can be handled either by Scholten or another returning letterman in senior Neal Noga.

The outfield will have insignia winning Gary Proehl in left, with Mark Workman and Jeff Evans ready to sub. Scott Clinton and Bill Browning, both lettermen, can be counted on to get the job done in center and Tony Tringalli, Bob Chen, John Artemenko and junior Bill Meisenheimer are slated for right.

"Basically, I'd say that they're all pretty equal on defense," Peddy said. On the offensive side of the ledger, the coach feels he has six boys who he knows will be making contact with the ball.

"Pruitt and Scholten can hit the long ball," Peddy said," while Tringalli and Chen are spray hitters and can beat out the infield rollers."

"We're not gifted up the middle with veterans and we don't have overall team speed, but I think we have the potential to make a good run in the South Division."

The Grenadiers will lift the lid off their season this afternoon when Addison Trail visits for a non-conference clash.

Tentatively, Peddy will go with Proehl leading off and playing left, Tringalli batting second and playing right, Chen at first and batting third and Adams, the shortstop, hitting cleanup.

Clinton will bat fifth and play centerfield, Hauserman sixth and play third, Claes batting seventh at second and Noga eighth behind the plate.

Wolanski, Hildebrand and Stewart are all scheduled to see action on the mound as Peddy gets his first peek of game conditions against Addison.

"I think the opposition will have trouble getting past Claes, Tringalli, Chen, Adams, Pruitt and Scholten without giving up a hit," Peddy said.

If two or three years can be classified as a dynasty, Elk Grove is a candidate. On paper, the team has potential to challenge anyone in the South Division. On the field — we'll just have to wait and see

NIMAGA Opens At St. Andrews

The 12th annual Spring Thaw Tournament is here again. That's the one-day tourney, sponsored by the Northern Illinois Men's Amateur Golf Association (NIMAGA), which signals the start of the golf season.

This year's tourney will be held at St. Andrews Golf Club on Saturday, April 17.

Approximately 180 golfers are expected to compete over the 6,660-yard, par 71, No. 1 course. Pay will be in three flights: scratch (0-5 handicap), first flight (6-12 handicap) and second flight (13 and up). Play will begin at 7 a.m.

Since defending champion Bob Augustine has turned professional, the tourney is assured of having a new champ.

After this opener, NIMAGA's net event will be the May Jamboree on May 15 at Cog Hill.

Schaumburg Kings Post Win Over Naperville

The Schaumburg Hockey League Kings in the Squirt Division beat Naperville, 2-1. Jeff Roos was in the nets for the Kings while goals were scored by Danny Gorman assisted by Denny Heurlin and Jim Lynch.

The other goal was scored by Joe Irmin assisted by Gorman and Lynch. The Kings had 17 shots on goal to 11 for Naperville.

Jeff Roos' victory and shutout was spoiled when Dundee tallied with one and one-half minutes left in the game. The Kings outshot Dundee, 13-6.

On Saturday, the Kings traveled to the Wagon Wheel to shutout Rockton, 1-0 on a goal by Heurlin assisted by Phillips. The tremendous penalty killing of Wally Waltz and Rick Walitshek gave Jeff Roos his third shutout of the season.

Meanwhile, in PeeWee action, the Kings upset Dundee, 3-1. Schaumburg scored on a pair of goals by Mike Waghorn and a single tally by John Macilrath. Ed Platt was in goal for the Kings.

A combined SHL PeeWee and Bantam team beat the Rolling Meadows Bantams, 3-1. Schaumburg goals were scored by Scaggs, Ceccia and Weiss. Gary Frontier was in the nets for the Kings.

Sign Up Now For Soccer At Palatine Park District

Calling all soccer players!

All boys eight years of age or older in this area who are interested in playing soccer are now invited to register at the Palatine Park District to compete in league action with one of three teams under the name of the Palatine Celtics.

Boys wanting to play should sign up immediately since the league season begins in less than two weeks. It lasts until the first part of June.

In the Palatine program, there is a junior team for eight and nine-year-olds, midgets for those up to 12 and intermediates for those up to 15. In addition, a special team for boys too old for intermediate may be formed for the first time if there is sufficient response.

Directors of the program emphasize that boys need not reside in Palatine to play, even though the program is sponsored by Palatine Park District. Boys from any neighboring community are welcome.

The team will again play its home games at Maple Park in Palatine.

Other towns fielding teams in Palatine's league this spring will be Oak Park, Niles, Morton Grove, Northbrook and Skokie. Each team is limited to 15 boys.

The Palatine soccer program has been highly successful in its first full year. In their first season last spring, the Celtic intermediates competed against more experienced teams but finished second in both the regular season and playoffs.

With four lettermen in the fold Fremd's tennis team hopes to improve on last year's sixth place Mid Suburban League finish and 6-6 record in the league

The Vikings are short a couple of experienced players they had expected However one of them moved away and the other did not come out for tennis this year

However a pair of letter winners should ps the top two singles positions No 1 will be senior Larry Funk with junior Rich Horne taking the No 2 spot Another junior John Lawrence is set at No 3

The No 1 doubles tandem is made up of the other two lettermen both seniors They are Fred Chin and Russ Kelley No 2 doubles will be a pair of juniors getting their varsity initiation Kim Abbott and George Jayne

Coach Rich Gablenz sees the season as a question mark Hume is the only boy we have who has played singles before so we'll just have to see what happens They're a good group they've been working hard and I'm sure they'll improve as the season goes on

Arlington Tennis Strong Again

Invitational Launches Card Slate

by PAUL LOGAN

The New Trier East Invitational tennis tournament, believe it or not, will be held at Arlington High School's courts on Saturday

"New Trier just doesn't have the facilities" said Tom Pitchford, the Cardinals' head coach, as he prepared his team this season

This all day affair, beginning about 9 a m , will showcase some of the finest prep talent in the state Competing along with the two "hosting" schools will be Rock Island Hinsdale Central Blue Island and Oak Park

The latter is "the best team in the state," according to Pitchford The reason is simple — Oak Park has, possibly, the best young singles player in the nation in Billy Martin, winner of the 16-and-under national title and only a freshman' Along with this young fenom is last year's runner-up state doubles team of John Shostrom and Bill Dutton

Over the years the Cards have placed anywhere from second to fifth in this meet. This year Pitchford isn't quite sure where they ll finish, but he s sure of one thing — they'll play plenty of games and receive an excellent workout

Pitchford has a very pleasant problem this season — many potentially fine players who are all almost equal in proficiency Leading the varsity list is Jim Merkel This talented sophomore has the best shot at being Arlington's No 1 man Last year he was undefeated against Mid-Suburban League No 3 men

Possibly the first doubles combination will be Bruce Starek and Carl McWherter They are both seniors and the former is captain of the team This combo captured first doubles in the MSL

The other two lettermen are seniors Greg Gibbel and John Kovath

The remaining top contenders for singles and doubles spots are Tom Sayre, a senior; juniors Dan Morken, John Deevy, Bob Stubing and Scott Steingraber; and sophomores Don Rodig and Bob Bloomquist

Surprisingly enough these fine varsity players have been pushed pretty hard by some pretty tough sophomores on Coach Gary Brodnan's team Under the capable coaching of Brodnan, Pitchford said he believed next year's team would have great depth

All of this is bad news for the rest of the conference Since Arlington joined the MSL, it has never lost a dual meet (32-0) Naturally, the Cards have always won the first place trophy Pitchford said he knew that at least three schools would give his team some trouble — Prospect, Hersey and Elk Grove

The Cardinals will open up defense of their perennial championship at Hersey on Thursday, April 15 However, before that big meet the Cards will play in another challenging invitational at Evanston on Saturday, April 10

It is Pitchford's hope that these two big invitationals will put his team in top shape for the conference race. Physically, the Cards are there already, as Pitchford explains:

"We started practice on March 1 and have been working every day except Sunday I've worked these kids harder than any I have before from the condition standpoint They think we're back preparing for football"

If bad weather doesn't halt the New Trier and Evanston invites, the Cards should have their games well oiled for the dual season.

Optimistic Outlook

Harper Trackmen Travel

by PAUL LOGAN

The formula for finishing strong at tournament time is simple — start with a solid team, play the toughest competition possible and improve with each meet.

Coach Bob Nolan has what appears to be his best Harper College track team in three years. He also has the most challenging schedule ever. The last part of the winning formula is up to both coach and team. If they can work together, it could be the greatest season ever.

"We're lookng toward the regional this year," says Nolan of his team's goal. "Two years ago we were on the bottom, last year we were in the middle and this year we could be right at the top."

The Regional IV meet, however, is over a month away (May 8). To prepare for that most important goal, the Hawks must improve their skills. The first stop along the way is the season opener on Saturday — the Florissant Valley Invitational.

Nolan says he expects about 25 teams to be cometing at the Missouri meet, including a couple of schools from Kansas and one from Pennsylvania

The Hawks' home opener is scheduled for April 10 against Triton. However, Harper's all-weather track has not been completed so the Saturday meet, scheduled to begin at 1 p.m., will be held at Conant High School.

Nolan has four returning lettermen to rely on — Bob Bachus, Ron Duenn and Bob and Pat Texidor Bachus and Duenn specialize in the half-mile run. Bachus is also on the mile relay team.

Pat Texidor is a hurdle man — the intermediates and the highs. His brother, Bob, excels in the half mile.

One runner who wasn't with the team last year but has lettered two years in cross country is Jim Macnider. Macnider, named the most valuable harrier both times, will be running in both the mile and two-mile events

Three newcomers who also run on the mile relay team are Tom Simpson, Tom Bietzman and Gary Hildebrandt.

Simpson, an Evanston graduate, anchors the team and also is a quarter mile runner; Bietzman, Glenbrook South, competes in the same events as Simpson; and Hildebrandt, Wheeling, likes the same events as the other two and also competes in the half mile.

The four young men who make up the sprint relay team are Vic Michalek, Bob Brown, John Plana and John Blenner. Michalek, a Forest View graduate, also competes in the 100 and 220 yard dashes as does Brown (Evanston), Plana (Glenbrook North) and Blenner (Maine West).

Three other hurdles men are Mike Adams from Hersey, Bob Richter from Maine West and Brad Mason from Barrington.

Leading the field event specialists is Kevin Barthule. This former Wheeling discus star is the best performer Nolan has had since coming to the college.

Going in the shot put event are Tom Henrickson of Niles West, Dave Fishman of Evanston and Eric Murgatroyd of Palatine.

Brown and Piana compete in the long jump, Brown and Blenner go in the high jump and Blenner also competes in the triple jump.

The only event in which Harper cannot field a contestant yet is the pole vault. However, Nolan is hoping that some potential vaulters will decide to come out.

"We're going to be much stronger on the tack in everything," says Nolan. "The distance, middle distance and our two relay teams should do well. If everybody stays with it, we should be stronger than last year.

"I'm kinda optimistic. We should do much better this year. We did a good job in the indoor competition we've had."

If the Hawks continue to improve, May 8 will come quickly. Success may come just as quickly, too.

Northwest 'Y' Boys Third Overall

by JEAN FUNK

The Northwest Suburban YMCA boys swim team climaxed a most successful season with a third place overall team finish in the Illinois State Championships which were held at Peoria Sunday.

The local boys under the direction of Coach John Eliot, were edged only by swimming powers from West Suburban, last year's champion and a strong B. R. Ryall this year's first place winner.

Coach Eliot was disappointed that his boys were not able to bring home the top swimming honor. However, area swim fans can be optimistic that the local swimmers are rapidly gaining recognition throughout the state.

The NWSY Cadets (8 and under) captured the first place trophy beating out a strong Harvey team. Mark Funk set the pace with new state records in two events — 25 yard butterfly (15.2) and 50 yd. freestyle (31.5) — and a first place finish in the 25 yd. freestyle (14.3). Scott Beutler earned third place honors (17.9) in the 25 yd. backstroke just ahead of Kurt Altergott who finished fourth (18.0). Dave Nelson finished seventh while establishing a new team record (20.1) in the 25 yd. breaststroke event.

The cadet relay team of Altergott Nelson, Funk and Beutler splashed to a silver medal in the 100 yd. free relay (1:01.52) and a bronze in the 100 yd medley relay (1:10.9).

The Midget (9 & 10) age group added a third place and new team record (2:01.8) as Mike Walsh, Dan Jump, Dave Doehler and John Eliot combined efforts in the 200 yd freestyle relay. Gary Stark joined Jump, Doehler and Eliot for the 200 yd medley relay which produced another team record and seventh place (2:20.9). Dave Doehler bettered his team mark for the 50 yd. backstroke (35.1) which was good for a sixth place medal. Eliot contributed a seventh place in the 50 yd. freestyle event (30.5) and Stark added 10th place points in the 50 yd. breaststroke event (41.2).

Brad Busse led the Prep (11 and 12) Division with a fourth place win in the 50 yd. breaststroke (35.2) and then combined with Tom Gran, Tom Stahnke and Mike Commerford to take sixth in the 200 yd. medley relay (2:11.0). Stahnke added individual honors with an eighth place in the 50 yd. butterfly (31.4) and joined with Dan Mate, Commerford and Dave Gafrick to finish ninth in the 200 yd. freestyle (1:55.2).

The Junior (13 and 14) team kept pace with fifth place in the 200 yd. free relay (1:43.89) with Gary Gruenwald, Jim Martin, Greg Newcomer and Eric Porter. Rob Carstens, Gary Takata, Martin and Porter splashed to ninth in the medley relay. Porter also added ninth place points for his effort in the 100 yd. butterfly (1:07.6).

The NWSY intermediate (15-17) team captured the second place plaque as a result of a strong performance from team captain Rick Schwarting. Rick splashed to a second place in both the 100 yd. freestyle (52.9) and 100 yd. butterfly (58.8) while taking a third in the 50 yd. freestyle (23.8). Brothers Jim and Steve Smoker added fifth(2:04.0) and seventh (2:06.5) points, respectively in the 200 yd. freestyle. In the 100 yd. breaststroke, Jim Smoker established a new team mark (1:10.3) as he touched out Terry Lemberger (1:11.0) for sixth place.

Individual points were also added by Mike Freeman who placed ninth in the 50 yd. freestyle (24.8) and Screven Farmer with 10th place in the 100 yd. backstroke (1:08.1). Jim Tull joined Farmer, Freeman and Lemberger to swim to a fourth place medal in the 200 yd. medley relay (1:55.1). Finishing the meet were Freeman, Jeff Arhart, and the Smoker brothers, setting a new team mark and placing fifth in the 200 dy. freestyle relay (1:38.9).

'Y' Girls Capture Fourth In State Swimming Test

The Northwest Suburban 'Y' girls swimming team nabbed fourth place in the YMCA girls state meet which was held in Peoria over the weekend.

B. R. Ryall Y won the meet with 686 points followed by Champaign with 461, West Suburban with 456 and Northwest Suburban with 321½. Northwest outscored 17 other teams.

The Junior Division foursome of Kay Corbett, Lee Ann Doehler, Carol Gresler and Karen Jore took first place in the 200-yard freestyle relay with a new state record clocking of 1:49.4. That was the only first place finish that the Northwest lassies garnered.

Taking second places for the Northwest Y were the Prep Division 200-yard medley relay team of Josie Fitzsimmons, Cindy Antonik, Dawn Grunwald and Ann DiFrancesca with a 2:11.7 and Kathy Dalton in the 50-yard freestyle in the Intermediate Division with a 28.9.

Linda Stahnke took third place in the Cadet Division 25-yard backstroke with a 1:30.1. The 200-yard Prep Division medley relay team of Jemma Allen, Cindy Antonik, Dawn Grunwald and Cheryl Takata took third with a 2:36.7 and Lee Ann Doehler was third in the Junior Division 50-yard freestyle with a 26.9.

Other points in the Cadet Division went to the 100-yard freestyle relay team of Sheryl Proctor, Linda Stahnke, Lorraine Belinke and Maureen Comerford which took seventh and the 200-yard freestyle relay team of Barb Schrieber, Barb Belinke, Terri Westdale and Terri Warren which was seventh in 2:45.3. The 200-yard medley relay team of Lorraine Belinke, Maureen Comerford, Linda Stahnke and Sheryl Purchett took 11th place.

Scoring points in the Prep Division went to Cheryl Takata in the 50-yard freestyle with a 28.9, Cindy Antonik in the 50-yard butterfly with a 42.3 and Ann DiFrancesca in the 50-yard breaststroke with a 37.1.

Josie Fitzsimmons was seventh in the 50-yard backstroke with a 34.5 and Cheryl Takata was eighth in the 100-yard freestyle with a 1:01.6.

The Junior Division 200-yard medley relay team of Sue Dragoon, Sue Stahnke, Josh Epstein and Karen Jore took fourth place in 2:10.4. Kay Corbett was seventh in the 200-yard individual medley with a 2:39.8. Taking On More OPELS, Too ...in John Mufich Buicks' 6th ANNUAL SPRING RACE!

In this, our 6th Annual, we're going to concentrate more on Opel than ever in the past because Opel is a better car! Our one big sale of the year! A sale that started as a 400-car effort, was upped to 500 (thanks to you, the public, for your loyal support) and now with a bigger facility and bigger allotment approved and scheduled, it's a 1000 goal! Meaning: hundreds more in savings for you!

OPEL!

Opel, GM's lowest priced car becomes lower priced than ever now! Come in and compare the car, compare the quality, feature by feature and see amazing value coming through for you! We have 'em now . . . more than ever. . . and we'll sell you now. . . for less than ever . . . much less . . . as we zoom for 1000 sales!

A TV progress report on the Kienast quintuplets who recently celebrated their first birthday, will be presented on NBC News' "First Tuesday," April 6 (8:00-10:00 p.m., in color) on the NBC Television Network

Goober (George Lindsey, left) is assigned to play a tree and Emmett (Paul Hartman) is cast as Robin Red Breast in Mayberry's spring pageant, on "Mayberry RFD" Monday, April 5 (8:00-8:30 p.m.) in color on the CBS Television Network.

Internationally renowned educator Dr. Caleb Gattegno and several of his students work with charts employed in his "Words in Color" method designed to help children learn basic reading skills. Dr. Gattegno's theories serve as the basis for "Pop-Up," a series of one-minute animated color films which are featured on the NBC Television Network's Saturday morning program schedule (7 a.m.-12 noon). The color films, which were introduced on NBC-TV earlier this year, progress from single vowels and consonants to simple words to simple sentences, and are designed so that children may view them in any sequence.

With the help of a barber's shears, a powdered wig and his own genius, Peter Ustinov becomes Frederick Lord North, the British Prime Minister who was instrumental in the loss of the American colonies, for "A Conversation With Lord North" to be broadcast Tuesday, April 6 (6:30-7.30 p.m.) in color on the CBS Television Network. On the program, the initial presentation on the CBS News series "The American Revolution: 1770-1783," Ustinov/Lord North is "interviewed" by CBS News National Correspondent Eric Sevareid.

I was wondering why ABC has taken THE IMMORTAL off the air. I would appreciate any information as to why this show was cancelled.

S P
Arlington Heights

Why doesn't James Gunn get another studio to produce THE IMMORTAL the way he wanted it to be? The show could be a success with different scripts.

B R
Mount Prospect

ANSWER

THE IMMORTAL ran into problems in ratings, according to reports. The show had a lot of science fiction elements to it, but it turned out to be a weaker version of THE FUGITIVE or RUN FOR YOUR LIFE. The weekly theme of the story, the cat-and-mouse type of the hero was often neglected in favor of the tired old boy-and-girl chase and escape.

Can you tell me if the series McCLOUD will return next fall?

Kathy Panek
Arlington Heights

ANSWER

McCLOUD, along with SAN FRANCISCO INTERNATIONAL and THE PSYCHIATRIST, three months of NBC's FOUR IN ONE series, will not be back next fall. The fourth segment, Rod Serling's NIGHT GALLERY, however, will be back as a weekly series.

Would you know why WGN-TV is no longer showing the Marx Brothers films, television's best comedy? They used to be on Sundays, then on Saturday nights.

M B Inverness

ANSWER

The old Marx Brothers films, classics in comedy, will no doubt be shown on television for many years to come. The films are picked up periodically and run as a weekly movie special. Keep an eye on the listings, they'll be back.

I would like to know how DAN AUGUST and THE BOLD ONES are doing in the ratings. Will they be back next year?

Wheeling

ANSWER

DAN AUGUST will not be back next fall. On THE BOLD ONES, the segments dealing with the doctors and the lawyers will return. However, THE SENATOR, my favorite, will not return. For the second straight year, NBC has knocked out what I felt was the best of the three segments of THE BOLD ONES.

Help! I need to know where to write to ABC before it's to late. I must complain about them taking DARK SHADOWS off the air.

Karen Smith
Mount Prospect

ANSWER

For all the people who are angry about the removal of DARK SHADOWS from the afternoon viewing list, the address of ABC is 1330 Avenue of the Americas, New York, 10019. Perhaps a loud enough outcry can save the show.

As it stands now, however, DARK SHADOWS is scheduled to leave the air April 5. It will be replaced by that vernerable quiz show, PASSWORD. ABC has even persuaded Allen Ludden to come back as host of the show.

Why do CREATURE FEATURES on WGN-TV have to be on at 10:30 at night? I'm only in the fifth grade and I have a somewhat hard time persuading my parents to let me stay up until 12:00 to see them end! I also usually can't see the second one.

—Mark Olsson
Arlington Heights

Why do they have CREATURE FEATURES on at 10:30? I am always too tired to stay up and watch it.

—Scott Ellington
Palatine

ANSWER.

CREATURE FEATURES, Channel 9's Saturday night spookfest, is obviously quite popular among the younger set, manyof whom have a hard time staying up to watch it, for one reason or another. Anyone who would like to see the spooky movies on at an earlier hour on a regular basis should contact WGN-TV, at the Tribune Tower, Chicago.

What happened to Hugh Hefner's girl friend, Barbi Benton? Recently I noticed a tall blonde girl being escorted around by Hefner on PLAYBOY AFTER DARK on Channel 32. I've noticed this before and am curious about it.

—Wilma Haas
Mount Prospect

ANSWER:

"Hef" and Miss Benton are still very much together, according to last reports, although no firm marriage plans have yet been announced. Hefner is shown with a variety of "dates" on his television show, presumably to keep alive his reputation as a "swinger," with a large number of girls in tow.

About a year ago there was a program called F TROOP with Ken Berry and Larry Storch on WGN. I would like to know what ever happened to it. I would also like to know what the ratings are for STAR TREK.

—Paul Brown
Prospect Heights

ANSWER:

F TROOP, which also starred Forrest Tucker, went into reruns several years ago, and has appeared on many stations since. It will no doubt be back in the Chicago area again. The same is true of STAR TREK, which has proven to be an extremely popular show, even in reruns.

Can you tell me if the PARTRIDGE FAMILY has a high rating or not? I like the show very much. I really dig David Cassidy and their singing is just wild.

ANSWER:

In response to the great number of requests the MAILBAG has received, the PARTRIDGE FAMILY can be written to in care of ABC, at the same address as Robert Young. The show will be back next year.

I have seen Joe Namath on TV several times, on talk shows and football games, and I think he is great. Can you tell me if he will be playing next year and where I can write to him?

ANSWER:

"Broadway" Joe Namath will be back with the New York Jets next season, after missing most of last season with a wrist injury. You can write to him in care of the Jets, at Shea Stadium, New York.

Mrs. Mallgren New Chairman Of Health Unit

A split in leadership responsibilities on the Schaumburg Township Mental Health Board and closer supervision of it by the town board of auditors is the result of recent dissention in the mental health group

The two boards met in joint session Wednesday night to discuss the composition of and membership on the mental health board said Vernon Laubenstein town supervisor who conducted the meeting

After an executive session lasting well over an hour Laubenstein announced selection of Mrs Lois Mallgren to be chairman of the mental health group, and Mrs Beverly Templeton to represent it on the Northwest Mental Health and Retardation Council a four-township group.

'UNDER THE NEW leadership Bev (Mrs Templeton) and Lois (Mrs Mallgren) will be giving, we will see new direction and a lot of sharing of the responsibilities for weeks and months now ahead,' said Laubenstein

In addition, a member of the auditors' board John Jensen is to attend all mental health board meetings as a liaison officer between the two groups The mental health board is to supply the town board with full minutes of all meetings

There is a lot of work to be done, and everybody agrees the important work to be done is to research and learn the needs of people (in mental health) and the number of people that are being served, so we can relate to (mental health) agencies said Laubenstein

The joint session was called as a result of last week's action by the mental health board in forcing the resignation of Dr Bernard Powell as its chairman, publicly criticizing him for leadership deficiencies and creating dissention among members

BECAUSE OF THE public interest generated by that move, there was lengthy discussion Wednesday night as to whether discussion should be held in executive session

Laubenstein said he had consulted the township attorney Norman Samelson, and was told the matter would be "best held in executive session" Individual board members would be free to discuss the session openly later he said

Two mental health board members objected

Mrs Templeton said she interpreted the open meeting law for Illinois to mean an auxiliary board of a governing body could not hold executive sessions, Mrs Mallgren agreed

If this is what our legal counsel says, I see no other choice I would like to see an open meeting but on the advice of our attorney I think we should just have a closed meeting and give a statement to the press," said Mrs Mallgren

Dan Stowe, auditers' board member, said he would not remain in the meeting if it was left open to the press

"I REALLY THINK that if not legally, then morally, that's the only course you can take I am not about to sit in an open meeting to discuss personnel," said Stowe

Laubenstein ended the open part of the meeting, saying, 'I would like to have the free discussion that I know is on your minds in executive session'

Health Board May Change

Membership on the Schaumburg Township Mental Health Board may see some changes in the next few months

At least two members may resign their committee membership according to statements made Wednesday night following an executive session held with the town board of auditors to discuss personnel

When asked if she felt she could remain on the board after recent public furor over the forced resignation of Dr Bernard Powell from its chairmanship Mrs Beverly Templeton said she did not know

'I haven't decided if I can or cannot I think that will be a later decision of mine' she said Mrs Templeton was named temporary representative to a 4-township mental health council a post Dr Powell formerly filled

Robert Rew refused to answer the same question but according to another mental health board member he indicated he would resign during the executive session As the meeting broke up several board members said they hoped he would reconsider his decision The site of future board meetings was also discussed Rew is president of Hoffman Estates Suburban Bank and recent board meetings have been held in the bank

MRS LOIS MALLGREN named board chairman in Dr Powell's place expressed optimism the board would be able to work well together in the future, saying she would remain I'm very optimistic she said

Mrs Connie Schoeld also said she had hopes for less dissension in the future and regarding her future membership said I haven't had any qualms about it

Dr Powell the focus of the openly acknowledged split in the board agreed he would continue to serve as a member in spite of his ouster from chairmanship

'I can work with anybody It just depends on where they put their interest My interest is in mental health, not with individuals he said He added he would stay on the board as long as he can be useful

James Cuthrie also indicated he would remain according to other board members Wally Roginski did not attend the meeting

2 Incumbents, Newcomer Are In Alliance

Nearing the eleventh hour in a race to fill three Schaumburg Park Board seats, two incumbents and a newcomer have announced their alliance as running mates

Robert Bock, a member of the park board since its formation, Raymond C Hum, an appointed incumbent running for the balance of his unexpired term, and Michael P Doherty, who has expressed interest in park affairs over the past eight months, have formed a coalition ticket

Their object is to present a unified effort against three other candidates all of whom are active members of Schaumburg Athletic Association

"Because of the geographic spread represented by the three of us we feel the entire park district can be better served," Bock told The Herald Wednesday

He is a resident of Sunset Hills, while Hum comes from Timbercrest and Doherty from the Lancer Park subdivision

Meet The Park Board Candidates – Pages 4, 5

Their opponents Gordon Frank, Kenneth Zonca and Harely Shackelton, the athletic association candidates, all reside in Weathersfield

"One of our fears is that with three members representing one area of the park district, as well as a special interest group, the major goals of the district will not be accomplished," Bock explained

He also said that there is concern that if Frank and Zonca are elected to full terms and Shackelton to the shorter term, tax monies could be diverted in only one direction

Bock said that the three running mates will distribute campaign materials in the district this weekend which urges people to vote for them

'We feel that if people desire orderly growth and total community representation, as well as expansion of recreation programs, we will best serve their needs as park board members," Bock said.

Also running for a full term is Joseph Sosine, a former park board member who resigned in 1966 to move to California He has since returned to the area and resides in the unincorporated portion of Schaumburg.

Library Bids Below Expected Cost

Low bids for the addition to the Schaumburg Township Public Library were nearly a quarter of a million dollars below anticipated costs The bids were opened by the library board Wednesday night.

A total of 68 bids were submitted in four categories, and the total of the lowest bid from each category amounts to $731,042 Last August, library district residents approved a $1 2 million referendum for the addition, or $468,958 more than construction costs The referendum allowed $980,000 for construction, and the remainder for fees and furnishings

In the general contract category, there was a tie for low bidding position, with two firms submitting bids of $465,000. They were Midway Construction and Engineering and Fred L Ockerlund contracting firms Third lowest bidder was Arthur M Goebelt Builders, coming in at $482,000 The highest of the 18 general contract bids came from Alden Bennett Construction Co , quoting $565,403

VERN SMITH ELECTRIC CO. submitted the lowest of 13 bids for the electrical contract Taking second, third and last place positions respectively were A Rafel and Co , $90 733, M B Nixon Co , $105,372, and Charles Johnson Electric Co , $127,000

A total of 20 firms bid on the heating and ventilating contract, with Warren s Heating the apparent low bidder at $112,500 Northlake Engineering Co was second lowest at $114,967, while Althoff s Inc was third at $116 843 The highest bid, $146,889, was submitted by Tempco Corp

For the plumbing contract, Althoff's Inc., was apparent low bidder with a quotation of $54,320. F. J. Bero and Co. was next in line with $62,450, while Stompanato Plumbing Corp. was third at $62,560. Highest of the 17 bidders was Peter H. Smith and Co , quoting $91,390

No action was taken on any of the bids, although the board hopes to be able to make a decision next Wednesday night. Meanwhile the board's attorney, John Jurgensmeyer, and architect, O'Donnell Wicklund Pigozzi Architects Inc., will investigate the eight lowest bidders in each category

THE INVESTIGATIONS will look into such things as the financial history of the firms, complete inventories of all the equipment they have available and a study of previous jobs each has completed Contracts, by law, must be awarded to the lowest responsible bidders, and library director Michael Madden pointed out the library cannot deny the contract to an apparent low bidder unless it can be proved the firm is in some way irresponsible

However, Madden added, apparent low bidders Wednesday night may not be actual low bidders Each firm was asked to submit a basic bid, and also alternate bids including items not listed as part of basic specifications The figures listed are basic bids. The low bidders on alternate bids might not be the same ones that were lowest in basic bids, he said

Should there still be a tie for low bid in any area, said Madden, the tied firms would be asked to rebid the project.

Each firm was asked to submit a performance bond along with its bid. Performance bonds were returned to all firms not among the lowest eight for each category, said Madden.

THE ATTORNEY and architect were asked to report the findings of their investigations next Wednesday night, if possible Once they do report, the library board will begin awarding contracts according to their recommendations, Madden said.

Among items covered by the referendum, but not covered in this bidding, were architect's fees, $80,000; furnishings, a minimum of $140,000; other fees, $15-20,000, purchase of additional land, $12,000, and incidentals such as landscaping and soil borings, $20-30,000, said Madden.

Madden believes the bids were much lower than had been anticipated because of the general state of the national economy, saying economic conditions were "most fortuhate" for the library.

The library board generally was well satisfied with the bidding.

"We are extremely pleased with the low bids and this will enable us to do many of the things that we've already cut out," said board member Mrs. Ruth Tresselt. Because construction costs appeared to be rising after the referendum, the board eliminated several items from specifications, and cut down on floor space.

THE BOARD also said it would leave some rooms in the library unfurnished, if necessary, to allow as much construction as possible Furnishings would have been added later, as the library could afford them. Furnishings and a bookmobile are among the items Mrs. Tresselt said might be reinstated.

Frank Skinner congratulated the architects for "the professional way they handled the entire specifications" and for obtaining so many bids on the project.

Board member Richard Grote also complimented the architects, but asked them to investigate employment of minority group persons by the low bidders. The board agreed with the suggestion, and said any contractor that can be proved in violation of the Civil Rights Act would be considered irresponsible, and not entitled to a contract.

Water Pollution Ordinance Urged

Hanover Park Trustee Barry Rogers asked his colleagues to consider adoption of a water pollution control ordinance that would ban the sale and use of detergents that contain phosphates in Hanover Park

Rogers brought the ordinance to the board's attention recently noting that if all communities adopt it the efforts of the Northwestern Students for a Better Environment's efforts can be far reaching

The group was successful in bringing the ordinance to the attention of Chicago board members and referred a copy of the ordinance to Rogers

The trustees referred the matter to the public safety committee for study

Candidate Seeks To Continue Work

During the past eight years, Robert Bock, 39, has earned the reputation of being a hard working member of Schaumburg Park Board.

Bock hopes to be elected to a second term Tuesday in order to continue the work he has started and see the district through to even greater accomplishment.

"I've enjoyed these years and during this time I feel the park board has accomplished some very pertinent things," Bock says.

About the length of a six year term, Bock noted "only library board members, park board members and U. S. senators serve this length of time."

He feels it is a bit long, though, and considers a four year term preferable.

Anticipated growth in Schaumburg is going to provide a continual challenge for the park district over the next few years, Bock believes.

Along with Raymond C. Hum, appointed incumbent running for election to a four year unexpired term, and Michael Doherty, a Lancer Park resident, who have recently become his running mates Bock is campaigning against three candidates who are active members of Schaumburg Athletic Association.

"I fear these people could gain control of the park board and perhaps divert tax funds into activities promoted by their group.

"The other problem I see is that all three of these candidates are from Weathersfield and I think good park representation comes when you have a better geographic spread.

"I agree, however, that the park district has probably not been able to provide enough baseball diamonds in the area but we must provide services to all interest groups.

"I guess, I would just feel better if either these people who are running or others from the Athletic Association would take more interest in all park affairs." Bock said.

A self-employed milk distributor, Bock has lived in Schaumburg since 1959 and is presently the only original park board member still serving.

"I am very proud of the record of Schaumburg Park district over the last five years in particular and feel that we have done our best to serve all of the people of the area and I intend to continue doing just that — serving ALL of the people," Bock commented

The candidate and his wife, Joan, parents of two daughters and a son, live at 326 E. Niagara Avenue.

Sosine Bidding For Park Board

Joseph Sosine, 48, served on the Schaumburg Park Board from 1963 to 1966 and would like to come back

Sosine, who left Schaumburg to move to California at one time, says he is now back in the community permanently and is "very interested in things"

"I think the present board is doing a fairly good job but the members have to become more oriented to their designated jobs," Sosine believes

He explained that when he served on the park board, the district was funded by the village and did not have tax monies with which to work

Owner of a building maintenance company in Schaumburg, Sosine feels he can be of particular assistance to the park district in construction and site work

Conversely, he believes serving on the park district will be an assist to his business.

Over the next six years, Sosine feels the park district must better its master plan and work with the village, other villages and Schaumburg Township both in the area of planning and also in attempting to attract more industry to the area

Next Tuesday, Sosine plans to vote for Robert Bock, an incumbent, whom the candidate described as "very dedicated and himself for the six-year terms. For the four-year term, Sosine noted that he plans to vote for Raymond C. Hum, an appointed incumbent

"I haven't been to too many meetings lately, but Hum seems to be pretty well versed," Sosine said.

Among specifics Sosine would like to see in the district he listed additional park construction, ponds, grass and swings for children

He is not opposed to three members of Schaumburg Athletic Association who come from the Weathersfield area but says he is curious as to why they are not more interested in the total problems of the park district.

"I'm not against these people at all and wouldn't be because they come from one area but the park district has to consider other things besides football and baseball but these two areas are important too along with all the rest," he said

Sosine and his wife, Mary Louise, parents of two sons and a daughter, live at 707 Wise Rd. in the unincorporated area of the park district.

Hum: Wants To Be Sure Promises Kept

"Before our successful referendum for park expansion last year, we on the park board made some promises to the voters and I want to be around to make certain that these are kept" says Raymond C Hum, an appointed incumbent park board member who is seeking election to an unexpired four year term Tuesday

Hum 30 was unsuccessful in his bid for park election two years ago having lost by only 10 votes

He was subsequently appointed to the board when John Deuss resigned later that year

Based on his experience in working with the park district's master plan prior to the referendum, Hum feels that the board must now sit down and look at growth which has taken place since then with a definite eye to phase two of the plan

He feels that a six year term for park commissioners is too long and would favor legislation altering the time to four years

Expanding the board to seven members from the present five commissioners could be an assist particularly considering growth being experienced in Schaumburg Hum feels

Hum also proposed a park ordinance recently which will require commissioners to attend a certain number of meetings or otherwise be faced with having their posts vacated

"TEAMWORK IS important and all board members have to pull their share of the load, Hum believes

Hum is personally supporting and running with Robert Bock an incumbent and the only remaining member of the original park board and Michael Doherty a resident of Lancer Park

Bob Bock has done an outstanding job on the board and Mike Doherty has been attending meetings as a representative of Lancer Park Home Owners Association and is up to date on park affairs' he commented

Hum lives in the Timbercrest subdivision and Bock hails from Sunset Hills presenting a variety of representation from areas of the park district

"The other candidates, three of which are backed by another association (Schaumburg Athletic Association) would give the board representation from Weathersfield only which I don't believe is in the best interest of district residents," Hum said

He feels that election of the three athletic association people would provide that group a majority on the board and frankly questions that their decisions would be in the best interest of the total park district

Associate manager of education for Honeywell Information Systems, Inc, Hum also objects to candidates running for the park district who have neither attended board meetings nor become aware of present park business

Hum, his wife, Judith and their son and daughter live at 308 Hackberry Court

Frank: Like Doing Things For Youth

I decided to run for the park board this year because I like doing things for youth and my own have gotten much from various park programs so I thought it time to return the favor says Gordon E Frank a candidate for Schaumburg Park Board

Frank 36 of 1129 Bradford Ln in Weathersfield has lived in the village since 1966 and is employed as personnel director with Patten Industries Inc

I am aware that a number of other candidates are running for the same six-year term on the park board and I think this is an excellent and healthy situation he said

Frank feels it heartening to find such a willingness to become involved and giving on the part of so many with the only reward being satisfaction of a job well done'

'THIS IS WHAT makes Schaumburg so great,' he feels

Frank says he considers each of his opponents excellent candidates and should they win the election they have my promise of full support"

Active in the Schaumburg Athletic Association for the past five years, Frank has worked as a baseball team manager, football trainer and secretary and treasurer of the association several times

Over the next six years Frank lists as one of his main goals insuring that the district continues to offer a wide range of programs

He is also anxious to see park programs and activities as well as facilities extended as new areas of the park district are being developed

'It is important to make sure that children always have a place to play off streets in all areas and too many suburban communities have gone from wide open spaces to forcing kids to play only on that occasional vacant lot" Frank said

He is certain however that this will not happen in Schaumburg and wants to play a role in continuing to maintain adequate and safe free play areas for youngsters

Frank's candidacy as an active member of Schaumburg Athletic Association, has sparked controversy on the part of some who feel that he, and two other members of that organization who are also running, would attempt to divert attention from other areas of recreation

SOME HAVE EXPRESSED fear that tax funds would be extensively used to support baseball and football programs creating a void in other needed recreational activities

Interview stories on the candidates running for the Schaumburg park district board were written by Herald reporter Pat Gerlach Candidates Robert Bock an incumbent Raymond C Hum, an appointed incumbent running for the balance of his term, and Michael P Doherty are running as a coalition Other candidates are Gordon Frank Kenneth Zonca Harley Shackelton and Joseph Sosme

Doherty Can Make Contribution

With the professional background of a city planner experience in urban renewal projects and establishment of tot lot areas in Chicago, Michael P Doherty 27 feels he can make a significant contribution to Schaumburg Park District

Running for election to a full 6 year term Tuesday Doherty who has lived in Lancer Park subdivision for the past two years has become aware of park problems and business presently facing the board through regular attendance at board meetings over the past eight months

Active in the Lancer Park Home Owners Association Doherty has been representing that group at park board meetings

Differing from most other candidates, Doherty does not feel six years is too long a park board term since he feels it takes at least one year to really associate oneself with board business

Spend the first year learning and you only have five left in which to accomplish things he commented

AGREEING WITH most other candidates Doherty would consider expanding the board from five to seven members very beneficial because of the growing district

I think you are going to find in 10 years or so that park boards will be set up on a kind of aldermanic basis with representation coming automatically from various areas' he said

Although I come from Lancer Park I naturally feel closer to that area but I would not expect to merely represent my neighborhood This would be of no benefit and park commissioners must look out for the entire district' Doherty feels

During the next six years Doherty expects that the neighborhood park concept will be expanded even further in the Schaumburg district and also feels that reassessment of the present master plan is mandatory because of continued growth

Employed as general superintendent with Nathan Lann and Sons a contracting firm Doherty lived in Elk Grove Village for three and one half years prior to moving to Schaumburg

He is concerned over the "narrow approach evidenced by three members of Schaumburg Athletic Association presently campaigning for election to the park board

For this reason he has aligned himself with Robert Bock an incumbent seeking a second park board term and Raymond C Hum an appointed incumbent hoping for election to a four year unexpired term

Doherty and his wife are parents of two preschool aged sons and live at 600 Green Ct

Neither Responded To Questionnaires

Information about Schaumburg Park District candidates Kenneth Zonca and Harley Shackelton is not presented along with interviews of the other candidates

Neither Zonca nor Shackelton responded to our questionnaire and were not available when we attempted contacting them personally

Both men are members of Schaumburg Athletic Association and residents of Weathersfield

Zonca is running for one of two full 6 year terms on the park board Shackelton is challenging Raymond C Hum an appointed incumbent for election to a two year unexpired term.

Loss Of Taxes Could Cost Dist. $245,000 A Year

School Dist 21 wil lose about $245,000 in taxes each year if a ruling Tuesday declaring the corporate personal property tax unconstitutional is upheld by the Illinois Supreme Court, Dist 21 business manager Walter Fuller said yesterday

Fuller said the district would lose about $11 million in assessed valuation as a result of the ruling He said he didn't know when this loss would be felt since it is not known now whether the ruling would apply to the 1970 assessment figures or to 1971 assessment figures

In Cook County, over half of the revenue collected on corporate personal property taxes has gone to local school districts

"Just as serious, or even more serious is the fact that this ruling would mean a loss of about $550 000 in our bonding power and push back our building program about a year," Fuller said

"Currently Dist 21 is bonded to the legal limit five per cent of assessed valuation We count on increased assessed valuation to provide us with additional bonding power each year"

"LOSS OF $11 million assessed valuation from corporate personal property would mean that we would have no net increase in our assessed valuation next year, and no net increase in our bonding power," Fuller explained

Supt Kenneth Gill said the loss of assessed valuation could mean that the district may not have the bonding power to award bids this spring on the construction of additions to Booth Tarkington School in Wheeling and the Dist. 21 Administration Building, as has been planned.

"We're close to sinking now. This ruling, if it's upheld, would sink us," Gill said "Everything that's been happening to us in the past year is killing us."

Gill said he has written letters to the three local state representatives andthe state senator for the district to appeal for emergency legislation for school districts if the ruling is upheld.

Recently the district announced that it will lose $400,000 in state aid in the next fiscal year due to a 1969 assessed valuation increase of $28 million According to the state aid formula, the higher the assessed valuation in a district, the less state aid it can receive

LATE TAX BILLS this year will also hurt the district, as it will delay the receipt of new operating revenue by districts Fuller has estimated that Dist. 21 will lose $5,000 per each month of delay in receiving tax bills The money will be used to pay the interest on tax anticipation warrants

The longer the district must delay in paying back its warrants, the more interest it is charged

State Files Suit

Seek Cancellation Of Annexation

The state's attorney's office has filed a suit seeking to cancel Wheeling's annexation of 40 acres south of St. Alphonsus Catholic School. The site is on Wheeling Road, formerly in Prospect Heights.

The suit was filed Tuesday against the Village of Wheeling at the request of a group of Prospect Heights residents called the "Wheeling Road Zoning Committee."

The village recently annexed the land, which is owned by Arthur Liebling, and rezoned it for apartments.

Attorney Don Kreger, who is representing the Prospect Heights group, explained, "We are taking a quo warranto action, which, in effect is an objection to the village exercising jurisdiction over the 40 acres. We are claiming they can't make a ruling on the zoning of the land if the annexation is not valid."

The annexation is not valid, according to Kreger, because there is not "sufficient contiguity." The only portion of the 40 acres that borders the village is the northeast corner. Excluding that corner, the land is surrounded by the proposed City of Prospect Heights

THE SUIT WAS filed by the state rather than the Prospect Heights residents because it is a statutory action, not a common law action. Kreger said the state statutes permit people to question a municipality's jurisdiction over land in the name of the people of Illinois.

Paul Biebel, assistant state's attorney, said he will handle the suit together with Kreger. He said a date has not yet been set for the court hearing.

The Prospect Heights group is composed of five persons: Lloyd Demel, Max Lyle, Fred Darmstadt, John Moss and Sam Beltran. They raised funds for the suit in a door-to-door campaign near the 40 acres

Demel said the fund "is in the four figure range. If any money is left over, the contributors will be paid back in proportion to what they paid.

"We are not just trying to be an annoyance," said Demel. "We believe that the Wheeling officials are indiscriminate in some decision making processes. Our conflict is not with the residents of Wheeling, but with their officials."

The Wheeling Road Zoning Committee is closely affiliated with the Prospect Heights Improvement Association (PHIA). Both groups are represented by Kreger and both groups are opposed to some of the village's zoningpractices.

MEMBERS OF THE two groups have voiced objections to Liebling's proposal to build apartments on his land at recent hearings before the Wheeling Village Board and zoning board. They say the proposal will create problems such as "flooding, danger to children from increased traffic, decreased property values and overloading of schools."

"We want to stop Liebling's development plans and show Wheeling that Prospect Heights has influence," said Jack Gilligan, a PHIA leader, "even though we are not yet a city."

"We're not going to lie down and let them (Wheeling) walk over us," added Gilligan. "Liebling's development is completely and totally unacceptable to us."

Doggone! Rate Your Pet!

by PATRICK JOYCE

They have the look and sound of three men who have gotten in at the beginning of a boom, prospectors who've struck the mother lode or the men who discovered the hoola hoop.

And maybe they have. The trio has discovered a totally new and almost limitless market for insurance: the owners of an estimated one million pets in the Chicago area.

The three men — Burt Schmarak, Herb Singer and Al Nadolna — are officers of the Pet Health Foundation, Inc., an agency that sells all sorts of insurance for pets: health, accident, theft and even life insurance.

"There is a company like this in England," Nadolna said "They've been in business for 40 years and they have between a half a million and a million dogs insured"

Right now, the Pet Health Foundation is a much more modest affaifr. Its address is Post Office Box 159 in Wheeling and its office is in the basement of a home in Mount Prospect.

THEIR AGENCY is only a few months old and so far they have had only a few hundred responses to their advertising, but the men see a great future for their business. They even talk of marketing health products for pets.

Schmarak, an insurance salesman and Nadolna, who is in marketing, began talking about pet insurance 18 months ago They thought of setting up their own insurance company but that fell through when they learned that Illinois insurance regulations would make it too expensive.

Then they learned that the Midwest Mutual Insurance Co. of West Des Moines, Iowa, had already begun its own pet insurance plan. They quickly became the company's sole agent in Illinois.

THEIR HEALTH insurance is called Pet-A-Care and, according to Nadolna, it works just like insurance for humans Owners have their pets treated by a veterinarian and then send the bill to the insurance company. It pays up to $100 for each sickness or accident.

Even though they have not yet sold much insurance, Nadolna sees a great future for the business and he gives detailed reasons.

"The economic aspect is getting more important," he says. "New animal hospitals are opening all the time and they provide the same service as other hospitals, X-rays and even EKG's. Veterinarians are specializing just like M.D.'s. There are pet cardiologists and even psychiatrists"

And, Nadolna says, Americans are tending more and more to think in human terms about their pets. "A lot of owners feel that the animal is part of the family and they want to know that if their dog needs expensive treatment, they won't have to hesitate"

This kind of sentiment, Nadolna says, also moves owners to buy pet life insurance. "So many dogs are a kid's pet and if something happens to the dog he must be replaced So, the life insurance is really replacement insurance"

ALTHOUGH THEIR headquarters is in the Northwest suburbs, the trio considers the entire Chicago area their market.

"It's not necessarily the economic situation of the family or the price of the dog that makes people buy the insurance," Nadolna says. "It's the feeling the family has for the dog. Many families in the ghetto feel as strongly about their pets as people in the suburbs."

Theory Of Four WHIP Candidates

'Independence' A Benefit To Village

The government of Wheeling should be there to serve the people and not vice versa," Otis Hedlund told a crowd of elderly Wheeling citizens at a Wheeling Independent Party (WHIP) "coffee" Wednesday evening.

The forum held at the Cameo Condominiums, drew a crowd of about 35 people to meet and question the WHIP candidates.

Hedlund is running on the WHIP write-in slate with candidates Michael Moran, Harold Fagan, and Donald Duncan.

The WHIP candidates were half an hour late for the forum because of a scheduling mixup. While waiting for the candidates to arrive party chairman Sheila Schultz told the audience about the problems the party had encountered and how the candidates names were removed from the ballot after a municipal electoral board hearing.

The WHIP candidates are concerned about the community. They want the best for Wheeling," Mrs. Schultz said.

She stressed that the organization was volunteer and that its meetings were open to the public.

SHE EXPLAINED that the party was seeking small contributions from a variety of sources rather than a large contribution from any one source. "We want to be independents. We don't want our candidates to be indebted to anyone or owe anyone favors after the campaign is over," she said.

WHIP candidate Michael Moran expanded on the theme of the group's independence after the candidates arrived.

In response to a question about why the WHIP candidates felt they could do a better job than the present administration, Moran said, that the "independence" of each of the WHIP candidates "would be a great benefit to the village of Wheeling."

"Although we're organized as a party for the campaign and we have agreed on basic ideas of what we want to accomplish, we aren't financially bound to anyone and we aren't committed to each other. We simply want to represent the people as individuals, to make decisions on the basis of the evidence in a given issue," he said.

"The party is a vehicle for running, in actuality we are independents even from each other," Moran said.

DONALD DUNCAN told the audience that the party candidates were also pledging an open door policy. He explained that the WHIP candidates would "give answers to why we voted a certain way not just chase citizens out."

Harold Fagan said the WHIP candidates would try to tap the manpower in the community, to "get people involved who do know how to run the government" and "take the interests of the people to heart."

Hedlund cited examples of village board members refusing to explain their actions on the resignation of village manager Matthew Golden, the police strike, the removing of professional qualifications for the village manager post and the approval of the mobile home park.

"They've always taken a hostile attitude. And when you ask for an answer they use the 'cop out' that they 'voted the state statues,'" he said.

"For any decision I make I will have a reason and be willing to talk it over with interested citizens," Hedlund told the audience.

The candidates said that in an effort to seek mass transportation for the village they would apply for federal funds to subsidize a bus line for the village.

DUNCAN SAID the party would also back a plan to extend commuter service from the Chicago and North Western Ry. down a spur line of the Soo Line R.R. tracks which runs through Wheeling.

Merle Willis, a Wheeling Township auditor, asked the candidates if they could tell him what the village has done with the $124,436 it has received in income tax revenues since August, 1969.

Fagn told Willis that the candidates had been unsuccessful in past attempts to attend village budget meetings.

He said the village could not invest any surplus tax revenues because of a state law prohibiting such investments.

Hedlund explained that WHIP plans to reinstitute a requirement of a college degree and five years experience for the village manager post.

He said that if no man or woman could be found to meet the qualifications, an escape clause in the ordinance would allow the board to hire a person with lesser qualifications for two probationary six month terms, then require that retaining the manager be put to the people in a referendum.

FAGAN SAID the party members also wanted the village to revert to following the master plan which shows ideal locations for various kinds of developments including parks, schools, industry, single family homes, businesses, and apartments.

"If the village doesn't follow its own plan how can it expect the county to follow it?" he asked.

Talking about the mobile home park on McHenry road approved by the current board, Moran said "it's going to be a tremendous drain on the rest of the people" because trailers are not taxed as real estate.

Hedlund called the first trailer park approval "opening a Pandora's box," of future similar developments.

He said the village should have fought the case to the state supreme court rather than just "giving in" and allowing the trailer park. Duncan said he would work to get more stringent local ordinances on the kinds of mobile home construction allowed in the village.

On apartments Hedlund explained that a complex can become a tax liability if its rent levels are low enough. Moran pointed out that most one and two bedroom units will pay their share of taxes.

One Candidate, 4 Citizens At Forum

Only one candidate from two elementary districts and four citizens attended the first hour of a candidate's night last night in Wheeling.

Jo Ellen Clawse, 203 N. Parkway, Prospect Heights, was the only one of four Dist. 21 candidates to attend the forum at Wheeling High School, sponsored by the Education for Positive Action (EPA).

She chatted with four residents and the three teachers who conducted the forum.

Two other forums delayed the arrival of other candidates. A forum at John Muir School, Prospect Heights was being held for Dist. 21 candidates.

In Arlington Heights, a forum was being held at South Junior High School for six candidates from High School Dist. 214 and eight candidates for Harper college.

Those candidates were expected to arrive at Wheeling High School at 9 p.m.

Two candidates from Dist. 21, both running unopposed for reelection, did not attend the forum.

MRS. CLAWSE labeled financing as the district's greatest problem. She said that the district has to carefully evaluate administrators. She asserted that every budget has some "fat" in it, and "we can cut other ways than the actual education of the children."

She added later that she was concerned about some board members who are elected to the board of education and "they forgot how they got there."

She also said, "Every once in a while, somebody should remind them."

Loss Of Taxes Could Cost Dist. $245,000 A Year

School Dist 21 will lose about $245,000 in taxes each year if a ruling Tuesday declaring the corporate personal property tax unconstitutional is upheld by the Illinois Supreme Court, Dist. 21 business manager Walter Fuller said yesterday

Fuller said the district would lose about $11 million in assessed valuation as a result of the ruling He said he didn't know when this loss would be felt since it is not known now whether the ruling would apply to the 1970 assessment figures or to 1971 assessment figures.

In Cook County over half of the revenue collected on corporate personal property taxes has gone to local school districts

Just as serious, or even more serious is the fact that this ruling would mean a loss of about $550,000 in our bonding power, and push back our building program about a year," Fuller said

Currently Dist 21 is bonded to the legal limit five per cent of assessed valuation We count on increased assessed valuation to provide us with additional bonding power each year "

"LOSS OF $11 million assessed valuation from corporate personal property would mean that we would have no net increase in our assessed valuation next year, and no net increase in our bonding power," Fuller explained

Supt Kenneth Gill said the loss of assessed valuation could mean that the district may not have the bonding power to award bids this spring on the construction of additions to Booth Tarkington School in Wheeling and the Dist. 21 Administration Building, as has been planned.

"We're close to sinking now. This ruling, if it's upheld, would sink us," Gill said. "Everything that's been happening to us in the past year is killing us."

Gill said he has written letters to the three local state representatives andthe state senator for the district to appeal for emergency legislation for school districts if the ruling is upheld

Recently the district announced that it will lose $400,000 in state aid in the next fiscal year due to a 1969 assessed valuation increase of $28 million. According to the state aid formula, the higher the assessed valuation in a district, the less state aid it can receive.

LATE TAX BILLS this year will also hurt the district, as it will delay the receipt of new operating revenue by districts. Fuller has estimated that Dist. 21 will lose $5,000 per each month of delay in receiving tax bills. The money will be used to pay the interest on tax anticipation warrants.

The longer the district must delay in paying back its warrants, the more interest it is charged

For Village Board

Thorud Points To 'Proven Service'

by PATRICK JOYCE

Allan Thorud

Allan G. Thorud says that his experience on the Buffalo Grove Village Board, including all that he has learned from his mistakes, qualifies him for reelection.

Thorud, 41, is running for a second term on the village board as an independent. However, he has been cooperating closely with Kenneth Felten, another incumbent trustee, who is running for village president as an independent.

When asked what he has to offer voters in the Arpil 20 election, Thorud is quick to say: "Experience, proven service. The complexity of Buffalo Grove government is much greater than when we took office in '67. It takes knowledge and experience to do this job and I've learned a lot in four years."

Thorud was not specific about mistakes he had made as a trustee, but he admitted he had not always been right.

WE MADE EARLY mistakes as trustees by depending for information from older trustees," Thorud said. "I've learned not to rely on anyone. If you have a problem, delve into it yourself."

Thorud, a claim representative for the Unigard Insurance Group, cites his development of a "comprehensive insurance plan for the village and a new bonding system covering all village employes" as two of his achievements as a trustee.

"I also helped establish the board of health which has developed ordinances that protect the prople against unsanitary products. It has started rodent and weed control and hired a sanitarian to enforce the health code."

As a memebr of a committee on building code changes, Thorud said he "helped prevent changes that would have been harmful."

Thorud's plans for a second term, however, are not closely related to these activities of his first term. When asked to name the three biggest problems facing the village, he listed: "flooding, the need for a capital improvements program and better communication with the people."

THORUD SAID flooding "is not strictly a local problem" and he proposed joint efforts of "the village, the county, the state and maybe even the corps of engineers" to improve Buffalo Creek along its entire length. He suggested a "lake-size" retention pond in Lake County as part of the solution.

"However, we will try to take flooding problems that are strictly local, too," he said.

Thorud had two suggestions involving capital improvements. "We must determine what our major problems are and then set priorities," he said. "There is only a certain amount of dollars available, so we need priorities."

In talking about communications, Thorud was more emphatic and specific. "There has been a lack of communication in the past two years," he said. "The people have not been effectively informed. During the water shortage, for instance, there should have been better public relations to inform the people about what was happening."

Thorud said that he and Felten had proposed a system of registering comp plaints from residents but that it was rejected by the village board. "We would not only have taken individual complaints, but we would have kept a file and been able to see the patterns of complaints," Thorud said.

Later, Thorud brought up the communication problem when explaining why he is running as an independent. Four years ago, he ran on a ticket with Donald Thompson, village president. Thompson is heading another slate in this election

"I FEEL HE does not release all the information he could to the board," Thorud said. "When he does release it to the board it is only when he feels like it He is in a very powerful position and people come to him first with information."

Thorud favors the hiring of a village planner "now" and thinks that the creation of a whole planning department should be considered. "In the past perhaps we have not had enough planning, he said.

IN THE FUTURE, Thorud said, the village should consider annexing vacant land to the northeast as a light manufacturing area. It should also seek more commercial development on Dundee Road and along Rte. 83 and Buffalo Grove Road, he said.

Businesses and industry Thorud said, would increase the village tax revenue. However, he said he would seek no new zoning for apartments.

Metropolitan government. "I have mixed emotions. You might have some better services — police and fire — but I worry about representation, the older and larger areas would control the government."

Students Set Exhibits For Science Fair

Students from about 80 elementary, junior, and high schools in Northern Illinois will exhibit original science projects at Wheeling High School tomorrow

The occasion is the North Suburban Science Fair sponsored by the Illinois Junior Academy of Science

The fair will run from 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. in the Wheeling High fieldhouse The public will be allowed to view the exhibits between noon and 2:30 p.m.

More than 400 science projects have been entered in the fair by participating school districts

About 150 of these projects will be chosen to be exhibited in the State Exposition to be held May 8 at the University of Illinois

About 150 judges from the fields of industry and education have been chosen to pick the top projects in tomorrow's Fair

Northwest suburban schools which will enter exhibits in the fair include all high schools in Dist 214, James Fenimore Cooper Junior High in Buffalo Grove, Jack London Junior High and Oliver Wendell Holmes Junior High in Wheeling Abraham Lincoln Junior High in Mount Prospect

17 Hopefuls Attend Forum

It took three hours Wednesday night for the candidates in the April 20 Buffalo Grove village election to present their views and answer questions from the audience at a candidate's forum sponsored by the village womens club.

In all, 17 candidates spoke at the forum at James Fenimore Cooper Junior High School. About 65 people turned out to hear the candidates.

It appeared that the battle lines had been drawn at an earlier forum last Sunday and many of the candidates used the same campaign oratory they presented Sunday

The only candidate that was not present was William Russell, independent candidate for park commissioner.

THE FORUM was moderated by Val Bettin, a professor of speech at Lake Forest College, who had to use all of his gentlemanly demeanor to keep the meeting from getting out of hand at one point late in the evening.

The five-minute speeches at the meeting generally followed the same lines the candidates had held to throughout most of their campaigns, with a few exceptions

Gordon Tierney stuck to his theme of being a "watchdog" for the community and Kenneth Felten and Alan Thorud cited their past experience on the village board and involvement in community affairs.

Felten, however, had two interesting remarks. He proposed the appointment of an ombudsman "with unlimited investigative powers" to investigate complaints from citizens. The ombudsman would be selected by a three man citizens committee, according to Felten's proposal.

IN CONDLUDING his speech Felten asked, "What do you want good grammar or good government?," in apparent reference to his opponents' speech making abilities.

The other independent candidate, Bud Berth, cited his past experience as chairman of the plan commission in explaining his platform at the forum.

The two slates — the Buffalo Grove Alliance headed by Gary Armstrong and the Village United Party headed by Donald Thompson, repeated their platforms. Each member of the slates spoke on a particular plank in their organization's platform, leaving the generalities to Armstrong and Thompson.

Armstrong called his past two years on the village board rewarding but at the same time "frustrating and disappointing." He reiterated that the current village administration is unresponsive to the citizens and that the president is "secretive in his approach to the office "

THOMPSON REPLIED saying, "I feel that the decisions that were made were in the best interest of the total community."

In a mild attack on Armstrong's candidacy for president while he still is a trustee, Thompson said, "Some people feel that state statutes provided for the overlapping of terms to provide the continuity of government are not important. I find it disturbing."

The forum ended with a question and answer period with Armstrong and Thompson fielding most of the questions.

New School Is Main Concern

Dickson: Board Could Move Faster

by SUE JACOBSON

Concern for providing a third school in School Dist 96 is a primary reason for George Dickson's candidacy in the school board election April 10

Dickson has been a resident of Long Grove for the past three years

"Most important to me is to move with all possible speed to avoid split sessions I agree with most of the things the present board has done, but I feel they could have moved with more positive action," Dickson said

I say this with some reservation since I'm sure they have been discussing these things in executive sessions, but it seems that they could have moved faster"

Dickson feels rapidly expanding enrollment will make split shifts inevitable in the future

"We don't even own land for a third school" he said

Dickson said he believes the board acted properly when it condemned 15 acres of land in Buffalo Grove for a third school

I feel they had to condemn land in Strathmore It is unfortunate that things have gone the way they have I feel the price of the land set by the jury in the trial was unreasonable and the board was right in appealing the decision I know the board has been discussing alternate sites They will have to come up with something soon We have to have another school"

Dickson stressed the need for long-range planning to cope with future student enrollment

"The board must look ahead, anticipate the direction development is taking and obtain some land now for future schools Land will increase in value. It makes sense to buy now before it is subdivided and costs more"

DICKSON APPROVES of the guidelines recently adopted by the board concerning suitable sites for future schools and student yield per dwelling.

"I think it was the best they could do They've been sent to all the villages in the district

"How effective they will be remains to be seen."

Although he would welcome donations of land or cash for future schools from developers in the district, Dickson noted that, "Builders can't be forced to donate land to school districts. Whether or not they will can't be answered now, but at the time they come to the villages."

Dickson said he feels it would be difficult to say whether the district will need an increase in the local tax rate "until we see the result of the development of the Kemper property."

The Kemper Insurance Co has announced plans to build a large office development in Long Grove within the next several years.

Dickson noted that Dist. 96 is an almost entirely residential school district. He said that this situation is "bad" for almost any school district, since it means a rather narrow tax base.

"ENCOURAGING INDUSTRY to come in is really up to the village boards, but I don't think it would be wise for the school board to object to almost any proposed commercial or industrial development," he said.

Dickson feels that teachers' salaries in Dist 96 are adequate and competitive with surrounding districts He feels that teachers' associations or unions in the district are "not necessary. They're necessary when communications break down. The district has good communications with its teachers."

Election '71

The candidate said that developing new school curriculum is the function of the administration and teachers, not the school board.

"The two main functions of the board as I see it are to establish over-all policy and provide the facilities to educate the children."

Dickson is vice president and general manager of Standard Safety Equipment Co. of Palatine. He has a bachelor's degree from the University of Illinois and served on the Dist 96 citizens' committee which promoted passage of the building referendum in 1969 that enabled construction of Willow Grove School in Buffalo Grove

Dickson and his wife, Ann, have four daughters. Three attend Kildeer School in Long Grove and one is a student at Willow Grove School.

He is one of three candidates for two seats on the Dist 96 board

One Candidate, 4 Citizens At Forum

Only one candidate from two elementary districts — and four citizens — attended the first hour of a candidate's night last night in Wheeling

Jo Ellen Clawse, 203 N Parkway Prospect Heights was the only one of four Dist 21 candidates to attend the forum at Wheeling High School, sponsored by the Educators for Political Action (EPA)

She chatted with four residents and the three teachers who conducted the forum

Two other forums delayed the arrival of other candidates A forum at John Muir School Prospect Heights was being held for Dist 21 candidates

In Arlington Heights a forum was being held at South Junior High School for six candidates from High School Dist 214 and eight candidates for Harper college

Those candidates were expected to arrive at Wheeling High School at 9 p.m

Two candidates from Dist 21, both running unopposed for reelection, did not attend the forum

MRS. CLAWSE labeled financing as the district's greatest problem She said that the district has to carefully evaluate administrators She asserted that every budget has some "fat" in it, and "we can cut other ways than the actual education of the children"

She added later that she was concerned about some board members who are elected to the board of education and "they forgot how they got there."

She also said, "Every once in a while, somebody should remind them"

140 Expected Food; 45 Ate

About 140 people turned out for a dinner at Fremd High School Wednesday night but only about 45 of them had enough to eat.

It was Fremd's Starvation Supper aimed at dramatizing the fact that only one third of the world's population eats well every day and for Fremd students to earn additional money toward their goal of collecting $1,000 for a Peace Corps project

At the dinner, people bought tickets for a $1 minimum donation which were lettered A, B and C Those holding A tickets got to eat spaghetti, corn, buns, salad and a cookie Those with B and C tickets ate a small portion of rice, three prunes and a cup of tea

ALSO AT THE dinner, a movie on the Peace Corps was shown and Peace Corps representative Paul Mack spoke to the diners

For nearly two months, Fremd students have been trying to collect $1,000 to take part in the Peace Corps School Partnership Program and build a school facility in a foreign country

Money collected by the students will be used to buy building materials for the foreign school The labor on the school will be supplied by the people on the receiving end of this program

After the school is built the people who receive the money for the school will correspond with the students at Fremd

Nicki DeMarco Fremd math teacher and sponsor of the school s student council said it is not known how much was made on the supper since student council has not received a bill for the food yet Over $140 was collected at the supper

Miss DeMarco said the amount collected by the students at the supper should put the project nearly half way toward its $1,000 goal

FREMD SENIORS Gayle Moberg, left, and Nancy Koester eye Steve Bruce, who received a full course meal at Fremd's Starvation Supper. Both girls only got a small portion of rice, three prunes and a cup of tea. The purpose of the supper wa to dramatize the fact that only one third of the world's population eats well and for Fremd students to collect more money towards its project to build a school facility in a foreign country.

Campaign Chatter

A FAMILIAR face is back in the race Pat Castor, former superintendent of Elementary School Dist. 15, is now vying for a seat on the Arlington Heights Library Board.

AND A FAMILIAR MOUTH was swaying to the beat of grass skirts at Palatine Rotary's Hawaiian Night last weekend, button-holing guests and giving them an earful of how the Village Incumbend Party (VIP) candidates are no longer Republican Party members. Noted for his humor, however, the VIPs laughed it off as untrue, but funny—sort of.

DESPITE HARRY TRUMAN'S warning, independent village board candidate Don Metivier is anxious to get in that "kitchen." Trouble is, he can't find a chef. His hopes of having a 99 cent a plate dinner went stale after looking in vain for a caterer that cheap, he says.

PASS THE SALT? Forget it. Pass the hat! Speaking of dinners, one GOP candidate said the biggest financial boost for their campaign came from the GOP Kickoff Dinner at Howard Johnson's on March 13. At $6.50 per couple, and about 450 thirsty guests, wet the end of the pencil and start figuring for yourself.

AND HERE'S HOW to work off that extra poundage: Get in shape for Don Metivier's campaign bike ride through Palatine — he's just waiting for a sunny day.

BUT DON'T RIDE past the League of Women Voters-Palatine Jaycees jointly sponsored candidate night to be held at 8 p.m. on April 6 in the Sanborn School. It should be interesting.

AND REMEMBER, April 6 is also election day for the Palatine Park District candidates Mrs. Carol Wills, Loren Miller, Ed Dittrich and Robert Dellamaria. The polls are open from 6 a m to 6 p m , so exercise your right and try not to "poll" vault our parks.

Countryside 'Y' Fund Drive To Start

At 8 p m today, the Countryside YMCA building fund drive will begin with a special meeting at Howard Johnson's, U S 14 near Rte. 53, Palatine

Leaders are confident that the drive, when it concludes on May 21, will be a success About $1 7 million in contributions and pledges will be needed for Countryside to break ground on its proposed building facility this fall

To be held in two phases, the first of which begins tonight, members of various leadership and investment committees in the drive will be asking everyone in the Countryside service area to contribute toward constructing the Y's building facility.

In the first phase, lasting three weeks, only members and friends of the "Y" will be asked to contribute. On April 23, the second phase of the drive will begin Everyone else will be asked to donate toward the building then

By May 21, the goal should be reached, according to drive chairman William Branham.

Branham said the drive will succeed because of the interest it has already generated

HE POINTED to Countryside's over 2 000 contributing members and to the 10,000 adults and children who took part in the Y's programs last year, despite a lack of a "Y" facility He also pointed to the 750 people taking part in the drive

"With support like this in the community, there is no doubt in my mind that Countryside will be able to break ground this fall and open its building facility a year later," Branham said.

Dr Robert O. Nesheim, chairman of the Business, Industry and Organizations Investments Division of the drive, said he was optimistic that the drive would be a success too.

"Never before has a "Y" gone into a major capitol fund drive like this with such a broad base of support," Nesheim said

Nesheim said he hopes area business and industry will recognize the importance of the "Y" to the community that they live and serve in. He added that he was confident they will.

R. Jack Fisher, chairman of the Residential Investments Division, said he was "extremely confident" that the drive would reach its goal.

Fisher said his confidence was based on the fact his committee has workers from every major community in the area, working for the drive's success He pointed out that he even had a worker helping in Timber Lake, in Lake County.

COUNTRYSIDE YMCA currently serves an area stretching from northwest Arlington Heights and Rolling Meadows to Tower Lake and North Barrington. When built, the "Y" building facility will stand near the intersection of Baldwin and Colfax Roads, Palatine, centrally locating it between the geographical extremes.

Fisher added that this is the first joint community effort to be held in this area.

"We are all involved," he said "We do not call this the Barrington YMCA project or the Palatine YMCA project, but the area YMCA project "

Contemplate Land Purchase

The Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist 15 board will make an offer to purchase about one-half an acre of land in the Dawngate subdivision of Rolling Meadows to provide access to seven acres the district already owns in the subdivision.

The land is located immediately south of Dawngate Lane and east of California Avenue in Rolling Meadows. According to Frank Whiteley, Dist. 15 superintendent the additional one-half acre will be used for construction of an access road to the seven-acre school site off of Dawngate Lane

Although there has been some question as to who exactly currently owns the half acre lot Whiteley said the board will proceed with an offer to purchase from Kennedy Brothers, Inc developers of the Dawngate subdivision who are listed as owners of the land on county records

WHITELEY SAID the purchase should be concluded in approximately three weeks although he said he could not give figures on the purchase until the deal is completed Money from the district building fund will be used for the purchase

There are no definite plans for use of the Dawngate site for construction of a school, Whiteley said. The district purchased the original seven acres in the subdivision in 1965

Whiteley said the district has completed purchase of an additional three and one-half acres adjacent to the Smith Street school site from Carl and Gertrude Bondeson District officials began procedures to acquire the additional acreage two weeks ago

Total property now owned by Dist 15 at the Smith Street site is approximately 19 acres The additional acreage would provide the district, in emergency measures, with enough land to build a small elementary school, if the need would arise, Whiteley said

Construction of Palatine Hills Junior High School on the Smith Street site is expected to begin this summer so the building can be opened for use in September 1972.

Negotiations for acquisition of a 20-acre plot near Bradwell Road in the far northwest section of the district are still being conducted, Whiteley said. Procedures for purchase of the land began two weeks ago.

Flood Asks Meet On CCPA Action

John Flood, president of the Combined Counties Police Association, formerly Cook County Police Association, has requested a meeting with city officials to discuss city patrolmen's decision to join the CCPA, a collective bargaining agency

Sixteen of the city's 20 patrolmen voted two weeks ago to join the CCPA, who will ask to represent the patrolmen on economic and job conditions

A meeting with officials of the bargaining group and Mayor Roland Meyer is expected this month. Before the CCPA can represent the patrolmen, the city council must approve the group as the sole bargaining agency.

Fund-Raising Event Is Scheduled Today

A fund-raising rummage sale will be held today in Palatine's American Legion Hall from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Sponsor of the sale is Young Life, a religious group serving students at Palatine and Fremd High Schools. Proceeds will be used to send local young people to Frontier Camp in Buena Vista, Colo., this summer.

Cliff Anderson, area director for Young Life, said anyone wishing to help the group by donating anything to the sale should bring it to the Legion hall this

Residents Invited To Open House

Palatine area residents have been invited to an open house of the new Christian Science Reading Room at 12 N. Bothwell St., from 10:30 a.m to 5 p.m. tomorrow.

Sponsored by volunteers from the First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Palatine, a large selection of Christian Science literature, publications and tape recordings will be available for public inspection.

The material includes copies in various colors of the King James version of the Holy Bible, of "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy; and the Christian Science Monitor, an internationally circulated newspaper

Most of the publications are on a free library lending basis.

Members ofthe First Church of Christ, Scientist, say the reading room is open to the general public as a "quiet place where one can find spiritual refreshment."

A warm welcome to come in and browse has been extended by Celia Hermesdorf, librarian of the reading room. She said the librarian and the reading room staff are always ready to answer questions visitors might have on Christian Science.

The reading room which used to be quartered in the Palatine Masonic Lodge, is open daily from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. It is also open from 5 to 9 p m. on Fridays.

College Grant Okay Unlikely: Adlai

Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III, D-Ill, said Thursday that higher education institutions are facing a financial crisis but it is unlikely that Congress will pass a $6 5 billion federal grant program for college students that he is cosponsoring.

Stevenson, speaking to the Illinois Financial Aid Administrators at the Arlington Park Towers Hotel, said the bill he and Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., have introduced would cost $5.5 billion more than a Nixon administration bill that places heavy emphasis on student loans, rather than grants.

"I don't know if anyone can make any intelligent predictions about what will happen in the 92nd Congress," Stevenson said. "But the Nixon administration is already predicting an $11 billion deficit for the next fiscal year and if that prediction is as inaccurate as the last one, the deficit could run to $30 billion."

Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III

Stevenson said budget problems would hamper increased aid to students.

HE TOLD the administrators, who are responsible for student aid programs at Illinois colleges, that he hoped a compromise "pay as you earn program" could be worked out

"I don't think it's the best answer but I think we ought to consider a program similar to the Yale University plan in which graduates pay a small percentage of their income after graduation," he said.

He said such a program could last as long as 26 years after a student's graduation.

Under the Yale program, students with higher earnings after graduation pay more to the university than do students with lower earnings.

"I think the program could be run on a federal level, rather than by the universities," Stevenson said. "And possibly we could allow students to decide if they wanted to seek conventional loans or the pay-as-you-earn loans. I think the pay-as-you-earn program would be more attractive to students expecting to enter lower paying fields after graduation."

STEVENSON SAID institutions of higher education ar facing a financial crisis and that many of them have responded by passing increased costs on to the students, making it more difficult for students to attend college.

"The real paradox is that our society is demanding more and more education but the rising costs of that education are making it more and more difficult for low and middle income families," he said

"Our institutions of higher learning are becoming citadels for the privileged" Stevenson said

He said access to higher education is rapidly being determined by family income rather than intellectual ability

Stevenson said most families hoping to send their children to college need financial assistance and that the average cost to send a student to college is 18 per cent of the nation's median family income — higher than annual tax payments.

One Candidate, Four Citizens At Forum

Only one candidate from two elementary districts — and four citizens — attended the first hour of a candidate's night last night in Wheeling.

Jo Ellen Clawse, 203 N. Parkway, Prospect Heights, was the only one of four Dist. 23 candidates to attend the forum at Wheeling High School, sponsored by the Educators for Political Action (EPA)

She chatted with four residents and the three teachers who conducted the forum.

Two other forums delayed the arrival of other candidates. A forum at John Muir School, Prospect Heights was being held for Dist. 23 candidates.

In Arlington Heights, a forum was being held at South Junior High School for six candidates from High School Dist. 214, and eight candidates for Harper college.

Those candidates were expected to arrive at Wheeling High School at 9 p m.

Two candidates from Dist. 21, both running unopposed for reelection, did not attend the forum.

MRS. CLAWSE labeled financing as the district's greatest problem. She said that the district has to carefully evaluate administrators. She asserted that every budget has some "fat" in it, and "we can cut other ways than the actual education of the children."

She added later that she was concerned about some board members who are elected to the board of education and "they forgot how they got there."

She also said, "Every once in a while, somebody should remind them."

Salt Creek Rural Park District Candidates

Salski: Needs Communication

Candidate Ronald A Salski said he was running for a seat on the Salt Creek Rural Park Board because he felt the park district was not meeting the needs of the community

"I am running because I feel the problems of the district is a definition of needs" he said "Some people feel we need a swimming pool Others feel the district didn't need a field house Others just want a fence"

However these needs are getting sidetracked by Salt Creek factionalism, Salski said

He said he has been to Salt Creek meetings coffee klatches and home owners' meetings that discussed the district's problems

"Nobody asks if they need any park equipment Salski said They all talk about factionalism"

He said factionalism kept him off the Salt Creek ballot two years ago Salski and other candidates were taken off the ballot when irregularities were found on their candidacy petitions

"WHEN I RAN I and two other candidates who lived in Winston Park Unit 6 were accused of 'trying to take over the board'" he said "This was not true"

Salski indicated these suspicions may be flourishing due to a lack of communication between the board and the community He said the board would survey the people to find out what they want out of the district

He added that the board members as elected officials owe it to the public to communicate with them However, the community never even finds out who nominates people to fill vacancies on the board let alone who gets the appointment

Salski said he doesn't feel the proposed dissolution of Salt Creek is an issue this year He did, however, criticize the Palatine Arlington Heights and Rolling Meadows park districts for going ahead on the matter without consulting with the residents of Salt Creek

"THIS REALLY BURNED me up" Salski said "Nobody surveyed us to get our opinions, but Palatine wants to annex Winston Park Unit 6 and triple our taxes in return for two and a half months of swimming each year

An Arlington Heights lawyer indicated there was some prestige connected with going with the other park districts districts He said we should pay our debt before we can be admitted"

Salski said dissolution will eventually be decided by the people

He also said Salt Creek should shorten its board terms to two years, due to the transient nature of the community The entire board would be elected every election year, he said

Schnell: Issues To People

If elected, candidate Denis L Schnell promises to take the issues concerning the Salt Creek Rural Park District to the people

He said the current board is not talking with the people and lacks professionalism When an issue comes up before the board it takes several months before anything is resolved In the meantime the board just talks

Schnell who has been attending Salt Creek board meetings for the past year as a concerned citizen, said the board should try to present the issues or its plans to the people to see how they feel about them

He referred to the district's plan to hire Ron Greenberg the Prospect Heights park director, to work part-time as director of Salt Creek too.

"SALT CREEK board members should be asking the people if they will use the programs Greenberg will create if he is hired," Schnell said

Among the issues Schnell would like to see the board resolve is the question of dissolution of the district. He said board members should begin to look into the good and bad points of such a move

He said that if Salt Creek would dissolve the residents should have the say whether they will go to another district or not

In getting new recreational facilities for the district, Schnell said Salt Creek had little need for a sharing program with other nearby park districts. He said while people in Salt Creek could use other district's pools he doubted the other districts would go for the arrangement in which all Salt Creek could offer was its playground equipment in return

Schnell did point to a need for Salt Creek to build instructional pools.

HE ALSO CITED the need to further develop local parks To find out what the people want in development, he suggested the board distribute a questionnaire

Schnell said he saw advantages in shortening the board term of office to four years. The current six-year terms discourage many qualified people from running

He said, however, that five people on the board is enough. He said increasing membership on the board from five to seven members would only lead to chaos and longer meetings.

He also saw a need to develop Willow Lake into a recreational area. While it would cost $70,000 to landscape and installation of equipment, he pointed out that Salt Creek residents may not use the area to the fullest.

Man Is Arrested; Faces Three Charges

Palatine police arrested a Schaumburg man yesterday, charging him with three counts of contributing to delinquency of a child and one count of disorderly conduct

William H Mellman, 23, of 1304 E. Algonquin Rd., was arrested by police yesterday in the vicinity on Colfax and Schubert streets in Palatine.

Police said he is being held in custody, and that his bond will be determined today in the Arlington Heights branch of the Cook County Circuit Court.

Mellman is also scheduled to appear in that court on April 30 on the four charges.

Police said they have been investigating complaints received during the last five weeks that a man allegedly identified as Mellman was exposing himself near Palatine High School and several elementary schools.

The arrest and charges steemed from this investigation.

Mrs. Miramonti: Asks Programs

by JIM HODL

According to candidate Mrs. Patricia Miramoniti, the people feel that the Salt Creek Rural Park District does not offer enough programs for them.

"Our parks have a fairly good summer program for children but nothing but baseball for adults," she said "There are a lot of people with no children who pay taxes to Salt Creek. They should have some programs for them."

Mrs Miramonti said there are many things the district could use like tennis courts, and swimming pools, but these projects have never gone past the blueprint stage on the park board

"It all adds up to a thing called money," she said

FOR NEW PROGRAMS, Mrs. Miramonti suggested the district hire an art instructor to teach drawing courses. She also suggested the district look into programs the district could use as bait to get sharing programs with other nearby park districts

She pointed out that Salt Creek already has sort of shared facility programs with Arlington Heights. During the winter, western Arlington Heights does not have an ice skating rink, so the children go to the rink in Arlington Crest.

What the district should do is try to get deals with other districts so that if their people use Salt Creek facilities, the district gets something in return.

Mrs Miramonti is the only declared write-in candidate for Salt Creek She said she is running because her neighbors in Arlington Crest asked her to do so

She said the people in Salt Creek, particularly Arlington Crest, do not favor the district dissolving as has been suggested. If this occurred, their children would have to cross either Wilke or Palatine Road to get to the facilities in other districts they would join

"PARENTS IN Arlington Crest, even those of 12 year olds, don't want their children to have to cross those busy streets to get to other park district's programs," Mrs. Miramonti said "I would rather see an active local program and a pool locally"

She also criticized the terms the other park districts have set for annexing Salt Creek neighborhoods after dissolution, that Salt Creekers pay off its $55,000 debt before they can be admitted.

"I sort of wonder whether they really want us in their districts or just the business property within Salt Creek," she said.

Deihl: Need Better Facilities

by JIM HODL

Candidate Henry C. Deihl Jr. said that the Salt Creek Rural Park District is not meeting the needs of the residents it serves.

"I don't think the district's facilities are adequate," he said. "The park board should do something about this situation."

Deihl suggested that the board begin by developing Rossiter Lake into a recreational area and then offer it to other park districts. To use the Rossiter recreational area, the other districts would have to offer Salt Creek something in return.

Through such a reciprocal agreement, Palatine or Arlington Heights park districts would have a recreational lake to use and Salt Creek residents could get into the other district's pools and golf courses at resident rates, he pointed out

DEIHL PREVIOUSLY served as the director of the Palatine Park District. He had planned to run for the Salt Creek board in 1969 but withdrew from the race

He is also a professor of park administration at Triton College.

He pointed to mobile recreation as something the district should look into. He said he district could get a portable pool and send it from area to area to serve all residents

Deihl said he was not sure of many of the specifics of Salt Creek and how it operates. He said he doesn't even know if the district has a recreation tax or if the current park board knows if it has this tax either.

If elected, Deihl said he would look into what Salt Creek has and figure out what it can offer. Then, he will make suggestions as to what it can do.

DEIHL SAID HE has no opinion of the proposed dissolution of Salt Creek

"I'm not sure the public wants this," he said. "I do not like the deal the other park districts are offering to make us pay for the district's fieldhouse. Their proposal is taxation without representation."

Under the Arlingtn Heights plan, its park district would get the Arlington Crest subdivision and the fieldhouse, on which Salt Creek still owes $55,000 To pay off the debt, Arlington Heights has suggested taxing all Salt Creek people, even if they are annexed into other park districts after dissolution and can no longer use the fieldhouse.

Deihl also pointed out that the district has the power to dissolve itself, but would be foolish to do so without the consent of the people.

He also pointed out that the residents of Winston Park Unit 6, where he lives, are not trying to take over the park board as some fear. He said all they want to do is develop their park.

Palatine S&L Celebrates Anniversary

This weekend marks the 15th anniversary of the Palatine Savings and Loan, the village's largest financial institution with some $15 million in assets.

On April 1, 1956 the Savings and Loan first opened its doors to local savers and those looking for a home loan within the community.

William W. Heise II, now chairman of the board of Palatine Savings, can remember how it was when he was one third of Palatine Savings original staff.

"We really didn't know how the Palatine area people would receive us or whether we could provide the financial services they needed," Heise said. "But time has proven us right."

Mrs. Vera Brockington, the Savings original secretary, retired about two years ago and is on leave of absence from its board. The other member of the original staff is Mrs. Betty Bostrand, the current secretary.

TODAY, THE Palatine Savings employs close to 30 people.

To mark this growth, the Savings will give away five pieces of crystal today and tomorrow. "This is our crystal anniversary," Heise said, calling attention to the Lalique and Waterford pieces in the lobby.

In addition, all visitors to the Palatine Savings will receive a free gift of a crystal clear plastic letter opener this weekend.

Since the Palatine Savings began, two key founders, William W. Heise and attorney Chalres J. Walters, have died.

Others of the original board of directors now deceased are Harry Schoppe, Freeman McCord and George C. Butler. In retirement and moved away are Chalres Mankenberg and Ralph W. Burden.

Currently, Theodore E. Heise, is president of the Palatine Savings. Other officers are Robert E. LeBreck, M. I. Braun, Anthony DiBenedetto and Norman J. Risoya, vice presidents, Delbert M. Oberst, comptroller, Mrs. Betty Bostrand, secretary, and Mrs. Mayrine Frohne, assistant secretary.

Brass Ensemble Sets

The brass ensemble of the Palatine Village Band will perform Sunday in special Palm Sunday worship services at Southminster United Presbyterian Church, Central Road and Dryden Place, Arlington Heights.

Performing at 9:30 and 11 a.m. the ensemble will play accompaniment to the Church Sanctuary Choir.

Both will combine to perform Vaughn William's "O Clap Your Hands" and a recital arrangement of Psalm 47.

In the band's brass ensemble are two cornets, three trombones, a tuba, a percussionist and cymbals. The ensemble is under the direction of Arthur D. Kotter of Palatine.

Each year the 60 member Palatine Village Band performs 14 free concerts sponsored each year by the village and the Park District. In fact, the band is noted for its indoor and outdoor concerts.

Performing at the Palm Sunday services will be members of the High School band directed by Miss C. E. Wright.

Wednesday is the last day to apply in person at the Palatine Rolling Meadows School District 15 office for an absentee ballot to vote in the April 10 school board election.

For those applying for an absentee ballot by mail the deadline is Monday at 4 p.m.

Application to receive an absentee ballot can be picked up at the District 15 administration building, 505 S. Quentin Rd. All affidavits must be notarized before the absentee ballots are provided.

Group Forces Removal Of Park Sled Hill

Strong objections by a group of homeowners along Cardinal Drive recently forced the board of the Rolling Meadows Park District to agree to remove a sled hill in Kimball Hill Park that lies adjacent to the homeowners' property

However, there's nothing that can be done about the hill for at least another month, or until the weather warms up enough to permit the ground to thaw and dry

Mounds of dirt were dumped in the park near Salt Creek last fall as spillage from the Salt Creek Improvement Project work done in the city by the Bongi Construction Co Some dirt was placed in Kimball Hill Park while the remainder was piled in an open area behind the Sports Complex on Owl Drive

The dirt near the complex was graded and formed into a sled hill in time for winter and was used quite heavily by residents during the winter sledding season The shape of the dirt mound near the Cardinal Drive homes, however, was not improved and the hill remained unusable throughout the winter

In October, some 15 residents on Cardinal Drive attended a park board meeting protesting the size of the hill and its location One resident explained the base of the hill was within several feet from his property

Besides the hazards the almost 30-foot hill presented to children playing near or on it, residents complained that the hill would block off the natural drainage from their property to Salt Creek during rainy seasons

They also feared the ungraded hill would hurt their property values, making their property unattractive and blocking off their views of the park from their rear windows

In late fall the park board said grading would begin on the hill and the size of the dirt mound reduced to 15 feet by 20 feet Some work was done, but ensuing cold weather forced the grading to be delayed

After passing most of the winter with the ungraded hill close to their property, more than 20 Cardinal Drive residents attended last month's park board meeting to continue their protest and demand that the hill be removed

Park board commissioners were hesitant to reach a decision to remove the hill in order to appease the homeowners because such removal would have eliminated a major park facility on the north side of the city However, after lengthy discussion the board voted to remove it, but neglected to point out where the dirt would be removed to

According to Dean Hallerud, park district director the district will have to remove the dirt itself, either by paying an outside agency to haul the dirt away or have district maintenance workers do the job

There has been no board action on where to place the dirt, and Hallerud said what will probably be done is use the dirt to upgrade various low spots in park land throughout the city

But until the weather changes and warmer temperatures become more consistent, the hill will remain in Kimball Hill Park ungraded, and, according to the Cardinal Drive residents, unsightly

THE UNGRADED SLED hill in Kimball Hill Park near Salt Creek has been more of an obstacle than a recreation facility throughout the winter. Objections raised by homeowners along Cardinal Drive whose property lies adjacent to the hill forced the park board to agree to remove it at its meeting last month. Nothing can be done on it, however, until the weather warms up.

Countryside 'Y' Fund Drive To Start

At 8 p.m today, the Countryside YMCA building fund drive will begin with a special meeting at Howard Johnson's, U S 14 near Rte 53, Palatine.

Leaders are confident that the drive, when it concludes on May 21, will be a success. About $1 7 million in contributions and pledges will be needed for Countryside to break ground on its proposed building facility this fall

To be held in two phases, the first of which begins tonight, members of various leadership and investment committees in the drive will be asking everyone in the Countryside service area to contribute toward constructing the Y's building facility

In the first phase, lasting three weeks, only members and friends of the "Y" will be asked to contribute On April 23, the second phase of the drive will begin. Everyone else will be asked to donate toward the building then.

By May 21, the goal should be reached, according to drive chairman William Branham.

Branham said the drive will succeed because of the interest it has already generated

HE POINTED to Countryside's over 2,000 contributing members and to the 10,000 adults and children who took part in the Y's programs last year, despite a lack of a "Y" facility. He also pointed to the 750 people taking part in the drive

"With support like this in the community, there is no doubt in my mind that Countryside will be able to break ground this fall and open its building facility a year later," Branham said.

Dr Robert O Nesheim, chairman of the Business, Industry and Organizations Investments Division of the drive, said he was optimistic that the drive would be a success too.

"Never before has a "Y" gone into a major capitol fund drive like this with such a broad base of support," Nesheim said

Nesheim said he hopes area business and industry will recognize the importance of the "Y" to the community that they live and serve in. He added that he was confident they will.

R Jack Fisher, chairman of the Residential Investments Division, said he was "extremely confident" that the drive would reach its goal

Fisher said his confidence was based on the fact his committee has workers from every major community in the area, working for the drive's success He pointed out that he even had a worker helping in Tumber Lake, in Lake County

COUNTRYSIDE YMCA currently serves an area stretching from northwest Arlington Heights and Rolling Meadows to Tower Lake and North Barrington. When built, the "Y" building facility will stand near the intersection of Baldwin and Colfax Roads, Palatine, centrally locating it between the geographical extremes.

Fisher added that this is the first joint community effort to be held in this area.

"We are all involved," he said. "We do not call this the Barrington YMCA project or the Palatine YMCA project, but the area YMCA project."

Land Purchase Eyed In Subdivision

The Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 board will make an offer to purchase about one-half an acre of land in the Dawngate subdivision of Rolling Meadows to provide access to seven acres the district already owns in the subdivision

The land is located immediately south of Dawngate Lane and east of California Avenue in Rolling Meadows. According to Frank Whiteley, Dist. 15 superintendent, the additional one-half acre will be used for construction of an access road to the seven-acre school site off of Dawngate Lane

Although there has been some question as to who exactly currently owns the half-acre lot, Whiteley said the board will proceed with an offer to purchase from Kennedy Brothers, Inc., developers of the Dawngate subdivision who are listed as owners of the land on county records.

WHITELEY SAID the purchase should be concluded in approximately three weeks, although he said he could not give figures on the purchase until the deal is completed. Money from the district building fund will be used for the purchase.

There are no definite plans for use of the Dawngate site for construction of a school, Whiteley said. The district purchased the original seven acres in the subdivision in 1965.

Whiteley said the district has completed purchase of an additional three and one-half acres adjacent to the Smith Street school site from Carl and Gertrude Bondeson. District officials began procedures to acquire the additional acreage two weeks ago

Total property now owned by Dist 15 at the Smith Street site is approximately 19 acres The additional acreage would provide the district, in emergency measures, with enough land to build a small elementary school, if the need would arise, Whiteley said

Construction of Palatine Hills Junior High School on the Smith Street site is expected to begin this summer so the building can be opened for use in September 1972

Negotiations for acquisition of a 20-acre plot near Bradwell Road in the far northwest section of the district are still being conducted, Whiteley said. Procedures for purchase of the land began two weeks ago.

Flood Asks Meet On CCPA Action

John Flood, president of the Combined Counties Police Association, formerly Cook County Police Association, has requested a meeting with city officials to discuss city patrolmen's decision to join the CCPA, a collective bargaining agency.

Sixteen of the city's 20 patrolmen voted two weeks ago to join the CCPA, who will ask to represent the patrolmen on economic and job conditions.

A meeting with officials of the bargaining group and Mayor Roland Meyer is expected this month Before the CCPA can represent the patrolmen, the city council must approve the group as the sole bargaining agency

Police Probe Arson Attempt

Rolling Meadows police are investigating a possible arson attempt at Cardinal School, 2300 Cardinal Dr., early Wednesday morning.

Detective Charles Smith said a police patrol discovered burned papers at the back door of the school. The door had been singed by the flames.

School officials said there was minor damage, and the incident may have been a kids' prank.

A cordial invitation is extended to the public by the Community Church of Rolling Meadows, located at Kirchoff and Meadow Drive, to enjoy their cantata which will be presented at the 11 a.m. service on Palm Sunday, April 4.

The highlight of this service will be a rendition of the "Seven Last Words of Christ," by composer Dubois, as sung by the adult choir under the direction of Mr. John DeGaard

Members of the choir include sopranos Marge Ek, Barbara Wever, Linda Daut, Margaret McGinnis, and Gayle Huffman. The altos are Peggy Ballantine, Ann Huffman, Rose Miller, Virginia Borgardt, Beverly Lauzon, Leslie Troutman (visiting member), the tenors Robert Bell, Laverne DeBonis, Diane Poyer, Harold Hill, and the basses Victor Ponzo, George Grunwald, Gene Porten, Robert Miller, William McGinnis, Howard Mehn, and George Huffman

THE THREE SOLO portions of this beautiful musical composition will be ably performed by Margaret McGinnis, Gayle Huffman, and Howard Mehn

Speaking of tin cans, Mrs. Alice McFeggan is also saving tin cans, glass, newspapers, and aluminum. She is providing her garage as a drop-off place to encourage more people to save these items If you're looking for a way to make those garbage bags go farther, saving these items is the ideal way. Mrs. McFeggan takes the items to be recycled and donates the money to many non-profit organizations here in Rolling Meadows

ALICE REPORTS that she received 3,000 pounds of newspapers for last month and her son, James Jr., also an avid ecology worker, received 1,750 pounds of glass in a three-week period. If any youth group in Rolling Meadows is conducting any drives for these articles, Alice says she would be happy to contribute.

College Grant Okay Unlikely: Adlai

Sen Adlai E. Stevenson III, D-Ill, said Thursday that higher education institutions are facing a financial crisis but it is unlikely that Congress will pass a $6 5 billion federal grant program for college students that he is cosponsoring.

Stevenson, speaking to the Illinois Financial Aid Administrators at the Arlington Park Towers Hotel, said the bill he and Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., have introduced would cost $5.5 billion more than a Nixon administration bill that places heavy emphasis on student loans, rather than grants.

"I don't know if anyone can make any intelligent predictions about what will happen in the 92nd Congress," Stevenson said. "But the Nixon administration is already predicting an $11 billion deficit for the next fiscal year and if that prediction is as inaccurate as the last one, the deficit could run to $30 billion."

Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III

Stevenson said budget problems would hamper increased aid to students.

HE TOLD the administrators, who are responsible for student aid programs at Illinois colleges, that he hoped a compromise "pay as you earn program" could be worked out

"I don't think it's the best answer but I think we ought to consider a program similar to the Yale University plan in which graduates pay a small percentage of their income after graduation," he said.

He said such a program could last as long as 26 years after a student's graduation.

Under the Yale program, students with higher earnings after graduation pay more to the university than do students with lower earnings.

"I think the program could be run on a federal level, rather than by the universities," Stevenson said "And possibly we could allow students to decide if they wanted to seek conventional loans or the pay-as-you-earn loans I think the pay as you-earn program would be more attractive to students expecting to enter lower paying fields after graduation."

STEVENSON SAID institutions of higher education are facing a financial crisis and that many of them have responded by passing increased costs on to the students, making it more difficult for students to attend college.

"The real paradox is that our society is demanding more and more education but the rising costs of that education are making it more and more difficult for low and middle income families," he said

"Our institutions of higher learning are becoming citadels for the privileged " Stevenson said.

He said access to higher education is rapidly being determined by family income rather than intellectual ability.

Stevenson said most families hoping to send their children to college need financial assistance and that the average cost to send a student to college is 18 per cent of the nation's median family income — higher than annual tax payments.

One Candidate, Four Citizens At Forum

Only one candidate from two elementary districts — and four citizens — attended the first hour of a candidate's night last night in Wheeling.

Jo Ellen Clawse, 203 N. Parkway, Prospect Heights, was the only one of four Dist. 23 candidates to attend the forum at Wheeling High School, sponsored by the Educators for Political Action (EPA).

She chatted with four residents and the three teachers who conducted the forum.

Two other forums delayed the arrival of other candidates. A forum at John Muir School, Prospect Heights was being held for Dist. 23 candidates.

In Arlington Heights, a forum was being held at South Junior High School for six candidates from High School Dist. 214, and eight candidates for Harper college.

Those candidates were expected to arrive at Wheeling High School at 9 p.m.

Two candidates from Dist. 21, both running unopposed for reelection, did not attend the forum

MRS. CLAWSE labeled financing as the district's greatest problem. She said that the district has to carefully evaluate administrators. She asserted that every budget has some "fat" in it, and "we can cut other ways than the actual education of the children."

She added later that she was concerned about some board members who are elected to the board of education and "they forgot how they got there."

She also said, "Every once in a while, somebody should remind them."

Salt Creek Rural Park District Candidates

Salski: Needs Communication

Candidate Ronald A Salski said he was running for a seat on the Salt Creek Rural Park Board because he felt the park district was not meeting the needs of the community

I am running because I feel the problems of the district is a definition of needs," he said Some people feel we need a swimming pool Others feel the district didn't need a field house Others just want a fence "

However, these needs are getting sidetracked by Salt Creek factionalism, Salski said

He said he has been to Salt Creek meetings coffee klatches and homeowners' meetings that discussed the district's problems

"Nobody asks if they need any park equipment Salski said "They all talk about factionalism."

He said factionalism kept him off the Salt Creek ballot two years ago Salski and other candidates were taken off the ballot when irregularities were found on their candidacy petitions

"WHEN I RAN, I and two other candidates who lived in Winston Park Unit 6 were accused of trying to take over the board," he said "This was not true "

Salski indicated these suspicions may be flourishing due to a lack of communication between the board and the community He said the board would survey the people to find out what they want out of the district

He added that the board members, as elected officials, owe it to the public to communicate with them However, the community never even finds out who nominates people to fill vacancies on the board, let alone who gets the appointment

Salski said he doesn't feel the proposed dissolution of Salt Creek is an issue this year He did, however criticize the Palatine, Arlington Heights and Rolling Meadows park districts for going ahead on the matter without consulting with the residents of Salt Creek

"THIS REALLY BURNED me up" Salski said "Nobody surveyed us to get our opinions but Palatine wants to annex Winston Park Unit 6 and triple our taxes in return for two and a half months of swimming each year

"An Arlington Heights lawyer indicated there was some prestige connected with going with the other park districts districts He said we should pay our debt before we can be admitted"

Salski said dissolution will eventually be decided by the people

He also said Salt Creek should shorten its board terms to two years, due to the transient nature of the community. The entire board would be elected every election year, he said

Mrs. Miramonti: Asks Programs

by JIM HODL

According to candidate Mrs Patricia Miramoniti, the people feel that the Salt Creek Rural Park District does not offer enough programs for them.

"Our parks have a fairly good summer program for children but nothing but baseball for adults," she said "There are a lot of people with no children who pay taxes to Salt Creek. They should have some programs for them."

Mrs. Miramonti said there are many things the district could use like tennis courts, and swimming pools, but these projects have never gone past the blueprint stage on the park board.

"It all adds up to a thing called money," she said.

FOR NEW PROGRAMS, Mrs. Miramonti suggested the district hire an art instructor to teach drawing courses She also suggested the district look into programs the district could use as bait to get sharing programs with other nearby park districts

She pointed out that Salt Creek already has sort of shared facility programs with Arlington Heights. During the winter, western Arlington Heights does not have an ice skating rink, so the children go to the rink in Arlington Crest.

What the district should do is try to get deals with other districts so that if their people use Salt Creek facilities, the district gets something in return.

Mrs Miramonti is the only declared write-in candidate for Salt Creek. She said she is running because her neighbors in Arlington Crest asked her to do so

She said the people in Salt Creek, particularly Arlington Crest, do not favor the district dissolving as has been suggested If this occurred, their children would have to cross either Wilke or Palatine Road to get to the facilities in other districts they would join.

"PARENTS IN Arlington Crest, even those of 12 year olds, don't want their children to have to cross those busy streets to get to other park district's programs," Mrs. Miramonti said. "I would rather see an active local program and a pool locally."

She also criticized the terms the other park districts have set for annexing Salt Creek neighborhoods after dissolution, that Salt Creekers pay off its $55,000 debt before they can be admitted.

"I sort of wonder whether they really want us in their districts or just the business property within Salt Creek," she said

Schnell: Issues To People

If elected candidate Denis L. Schnell promises to take the issues concerning the Salt Creek Rural Park District to the people

He said the current board is not talking with the people and lacks professionalism When an issue comes up before the board it takes several months before anything is resolved In the meantime the board just talks

Schnell, who has been attending Salt Creek board meetings for the past year as a concerned citizen, said the board should try to present the issues or its plans to the people to see how they feel about them.

He referred to the district's plan to hire Ron Greenberg, the Prospect Heights park director, to work part-time as director of Salt Creek, too.

"SALT CREEK board members should be asking the people if they will use the programs Greenberg will create if he is hired," Schnell said.

Among the issues Schnell would like to see the board resolve is the question of dissolution of the district. He said board members should begin to look into the good and bad points of such a move

He said that if Salt Creek would dissolve, the residents should have the say whether they will go to another district or not

In getting new recreational facilities for the district, Schnell said Salt Creek had little need for a sharing program with other nearby park districts He said while people in Salt Creek could use other district's pools, he doubted the other districts would go for the arrangement in which all Salt Creek could offer was its playground equipment in return.

Schnell did point to a need for Salt Creek to build instructional pools.

HE ALSO CITED the need to further develop local parks. To find out what the people want in development, he suggested the board distribute a questionnaire

Schnell said he saw advantages in shortening the board term of office to four years. The current six-year terms discourage many qualified people from running.

He said, however, that five people on the board is enough He said increasing membership on the board from five to seven members would only lead to chaos and longer meetings.

He also saw a need to develop Willow Lake into a recreational area. While it would cost $70,000 to landscape and installation of equipment, he pointed out that Salt Creek residents may not use the area to the fullest.

Deihl: Need Better Facilities

by JIM HODL

Candidate Henry C Deihl Jr. said that the Salt Creek Rural Park District is not meeting the needs of the residents it serves

"I don't think the district's facilities are adequate," he said "The park board should do something about this situation "

Deihl suggested that the board begin by developing Rossiter Lake into a recreational area and then offer it to other park districts. To use the Rossiter recreational area, the other districts would have to offer Salt Creek something in return.

Through such a reciprocal agreement, Palatine or Arlington Heights park districts would have a recreational lake to use and Salt Creek residents could get into the other district's pools and golf courses at resident rates, he pointed out.

DEIHL PREVIOUSLY served as the director of the Palatine Park District. He had planned to run for the Salt Creek board in 1969 but withdrew from the race.

He is also a professor of park administration at Triton College.

He pointed to mobile recreation as something the district should look into. He said he district could get a portable pool and send it from area to area to serve all residents

Deihl said he was not sure of many of the specifics of Salt Creek and how it operates. He said he doesn't even know if the district has a recreation tax or if the current park board knows if it has this tax either.

If elected, Deihl said he would look into what Salt Creek has and figure out what it can offer. Then, he will make suggestions as to what it can do.

DEIHL SAID HE has no opinion of the proposed dissolution of Salt Creek.

"I'm not sure the public wants this," he said. "I do not like the deal the other park districts are offering to make us pay for the district's fieldhouse. Their proposal is taxation without representation "

Under the Arlingtn Heights plan, its park district would get the Arlington Crest subdivision and the fieldhouse, on which Salt Creek still owes $55,000. To pay off the debt, Arlington Heights has suggested taxing all Salt Creek people, even if they are annexed into other park districts after dissolution and can no longer use the fieldhouse.

Deihl also pointed out that the district has the power to dissolve itself, but would be foolish to do so without the consent of the people.

He also pointed out that the residents of Winston Park Unit 6, where he lives, are not trying to take over the park board as some fear. He said all they want to do is develop their park.

Man Is Arrested: Faces Three Charges

Palatine police arrested a Schaumburg man yesterday, charging him with three counts of contributing to delinquency of a child and one count of disorderly conduct.

William H. Mellman, 23, of 1304 E. Algonquin Rd., was arrested by police yesterday in the vicinity on Colfax and Schubert streets in Palatine.

Police said he is being held in custody, and that his bond will be determined today in the Arlington Heights branch of the Cook County Circuit Court.

Mellman is also scheduled to appear in that court on April 30 on the four charges.

Police said they have been investigating complaints received during the last five weeks that a man allegedly identified as Mellman was exposing himself near Palatine High School and several elementary schools.

The arrest and charges steemed from this investigation.

Filed At Request Of Road Zoning Committee

Suit Attempts To Void Annexation Of Wheeling

The state's attorney's office has filed a suit seeking to cancel Wheeling's annexation of 40 acres south of St. Alphonsus Catholic School. The site is on Wheeling Road, formerly in Prospect Heights.

The suit was filed Tuesday against the Village of Wheeling at the request of a group of Prospect Heights residents called the "Wheeling Road Zoning Committee."

The village recently annexed the land, which is owned by Arthur Liebling, and rezoned it for apartments.

Attorney Don Kreger, who is representing the Prospect Heights group, explained, "We are taking a quo warranto action, which, in effect is an objection to the village exercising jurisdiction over the 40 acres. We are claiming they can't make a ruling on the zoning of the land if the annexation is not valid."

The annexation is not valid, according to Kreger, because there is not "sufficient contiguity." The only portion of the 40 acres that borders the village is the northeast corner. Excluding that corner, the land is surrounded by the proposed City of Prospect Heights.

THE SUIT WAS filed by the state rather than the Prospect Heights residents because it is a statutory action, not a common law action. Kreger said the state statutes permit people to question a municipality's jurisdiction over land in the name of the people of Illinois.

Paul Biebel, assistant state's attorney, said he will handle the suit together with Kreger. He said a date has not yet been set for the court hearing.

The Prospect Heights group is composed of five persons: Lloyd Demel, Max Lyle, Fred Darmstadt, John Moss and Sam Beltran. They raised funds for the suit in a door-to-door campaign near the 40 acres.

Demel said the fund "is in the four figure range. If any money is left over, the contributors will be paid back in proportion to what they paid.

"We are not just trying to be an annoyance," said Demel. "We believe that the Wheeling officials are indiscriminate in some decision making processes. Our conflict is not with the residents of Wheeling, but with their officials."

The Wheeling Road Zoning Committee is closely affiliated with the Prospect Heights Improvement Association (PHIA). Both groups are represented by Kreger and both groups are opposed to some of the village's zoningpractices.

MEMBERS OF THE two groups have voiced objections to Liebling's proposal to build apartments on his land at recent hearings before the Wheeling Village Board and zoning board. They say the proposal will create problems such as "flooding, danger to children from increased traffic, decreased property values and overloading of schools."

"We want to stop Liebling's development plans and show Wheeling that Prospect Heights has influence," said Jack Gilligan, a PHIA leader, "even though we are not yet a city."

"We're not going to lie down and let them (Wheeling) walk over us," added Gilligan. "Liebling's development is completely and totally unacceptable to us."

20 Residents Hear School Candidates

by TOM WELLMAN

Voter disinterest in four school board races hung over Wheeling High School last night like a pall. A total of 20 persons, including three teachers heard five candidates from High School Dist. 214 talk about the issues.

One candidate, Don McGlothlin of Wheeling, even threatened to withdraw from the race because of the slight turnout. He later said he would stay in the race and "work harder than ever."

He added that maybe one or two persons were attending the forum from the Wheeling area and "maybe you don't want me."

Following the appearance of the candidates from Dist. 214, six of the eight Harper College board candidates were expected to speak. They are: Larry Moran, Milton Hansen,. Ross Miller, Eugene Nugent, Hannah Wilson, and Robert Fuchs.

Here's a brief summary of the statements of the Dist. 214 candidates:

Leah Cummins: "We're in serious trouble if we concentrate on expansion based solely on bricks and mortar. She asserted the district has to plan for a peak enrollment of 25,000 students and eight or nine high schools, or additions to existing buildings.

Raymond Pettersen commented, "the administration and staff must run the schools, not the kids." He also suggested that vocational programs should have parity with college preparatory programs and that the district must learn to educate the 25 per cent of the students who drop out of college.

Jack Matthews: "The district has an excellent administration and faculty and a sound financial base." However, he wondered if teachers have support for disciplining students, and he said he was interested in developing a sound system for merit pay for excellent teachers.

Robert Winkle, along with McGlothlin, was concerned about the turnout. He said a large percentage of the tax dollar goes to the schools but that people don't bother to vote in elections. An improvement in the collection of tax monies is a must for all school districts, he commented.

McGlothlin added that teachers' time in school is more than one-half wasted. He said he was concerned about student supervision and the fact that "students don't use available time.

The final educators for political action forum will be held tonight at 7:30 at Prospect High School, 801 West Kensington Rd., Mount Prospect.

Eye OK Of $42 Million Office Complex

by GERRY DE ZONNA

Annexation and zoning of William Alter's $42 million office, apartment and recreation center will probably be approved Tuesday by the Mount Prospect Village Board.

The board indicated Wednesday it will probably approve the 54-acre development at Algonquin and Elmhurst roads, despite two objections to annexation and zoning of the site.

Trustees postponed their decision until Tuesday after spending more than an hour debating the merits of annexation and zoning with George Flaherty and Wes Pinchot, both members of the village's industrial development and economic commission.

Trustee John Kilroy suggested the board delay its decision after Village Atty., John Zimmermann said he needed 15 more minutes to correct typographical errors and insert two paragraphs in the preannexation agreement.

"Due to the lateness of the hour (midnight), why don't we postpone our decision until next week. We'll have corrected copies of the agreement and can vote on the issue with very little discussion. I think most of our questions have been answered tonight, so we probably won't need to spend much time on the issue next week," Kilroy explained.

THE BOARD, by a 3 to 2 vote, followed Kilroy's suggestion and adjourned.

After, of Unity Ventures Inc., owner of the site, is seeking annexation and commercial (B-3) zoning with special uses permitting the construction of multiple family dwellings, a hotel and indoor recreational facilities.

This is not a planned-unit development by ordinance because Alter is seeking additional zoning with variations. The parcel is currently unincorporated, and zoning for the development was approved by the Cook County Board in December.

The county board approved a combination residential zoning classification despite objections filed by the City of Des Plaines. Des Plaines residents who live near the site have objected to the development because they think it will increase traffic problems in the area.

Plans call for the construction of several office buildings ranging in heights from 8 to 16 stories; three 12-story and two 10-story apartment buildings with a maximum of 1,200 living units; theaters, restaurants, a hotel with convention facilities and year-round recreation.

AN UNDERGROUND parking lot is one of the highlights of the center. A sports arena, schools, churches and museums may be included in the development at a later date.

Alter estimates construction and development of the site will take about five to eight years depending on the economics of the country and the market for office space.

The village's plan commission and zoning board of appeals have both recommended the village board approve annexation and zoning of the site. Members of the plan commission, zoning board and village board feel if the site is not annexed by the village, Alter will develop the property in the county.

At the public hearing Wednesday, Flaherty asked the board to reject Alter's project and sue the Cook County Board for granting the zoning and thus "ramming this project down the throats of suburban homeowners."

Flaherty indicated the Alter development is only one example of zoning blackmail in the Northwest suburban area. Flaherty indicated suburban communities have no choice but to accept county zoning decisions, whether they like the project or not, because a developed can build in the county.

MAYOR ROBERT TEICHERT told Flaherty he would not sue the county board and thus jeopardize the village's opportunity to expand its tax base, especially when the project will be developed anyway.

Teichert pointed out that four years ago the village tried to sue the county for a zoning decision but failed. "We've tried litigation in the past and were defeated. We kept appealing the court's decision until we were finally thrown out of the Illinois Supreme Court."

The board indicated it will probably approve annexation and zoning on the site because the property will be developed anyway. A majority of trustees indicated the village would lose more by rejecting the proposal and losing control over development of the project.

$176,000 Road Budget Approved

A $176,000 road budget for Elk Grove Township was approved at a meeting Tuesday by about 15 voters. The budget represents a $25,000 increase over last year's budget.

Though originally proposed as a $156,000 budget, $20,000 was added for the blacktopping of some roads in the township.

The township has 24 miles of road in unincorporated areas bounded by Central Road, Devon Avenue, Mount Prospect Road, and Ill. Rte. 53.

"I just better not find any holes in the road," said one member of the audience after he voted in favor of the budget.

College Grant Okay Unlikely: Adlai

Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III, D-Ill, said Thursday that higher education institutions are facing a financial crisis but it is unlikely that Congress will pass a $6.5 billion federal grant program for college students that he is cosponsoring.

Stevenson, speaking to the Illinois Financial Aid Administrators at the Arlington Park Towers Hotel, said the bill he and Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R I., have introduced would cost $5.5 billion more than a Nixon administration bill that places heavy emphasis on student loans, rather than grants.

"I don't know if anyone can make any intelligent predictions about what will happen in the 92nd Congress," Stevenson said. "But the Nixon administration is already predicting an $11 billion deficit for the next fiscal year and if that prediction is as inaccurate as the last one, the deficit could run to $30 billion."

Stevenson said budget problems would hamper increased aid to students.

HE TOLD the administrators, who are responsible for student aid programs at Illinois colleges, that he hoped a compromise "pay as you earn program" could be worked out.

"I don't think it's the best answer but I think we ought to consider a program similar to the Yale University plan in which graduates pay a small percentage of their income after graduation," he said.

He said such a program could last as long as 26 years after a student's graduation.

Under the Yale program, students with higher earnings after graduation pay more to the university than do students with lower earnings.

"I think the program could be run on a federal level, rather than by the universities," Stevenson said. "And possibly we could allow students to decide if they wanted to seek conventional loans or the pay-as-you-earn loans. I think the pay-as-you-earn program would be more attractive to students expecting to enter lower-paying fields after graduation."

STEVENSON SAID institutions of higher education are facing a financial crisis and that many of them have responded by passing increased costs on to the students, making it more difficult for students to attend college.

"The real paradox is that our society is demanding more and more education but the rising costs of that education are making it more and more difficult for low and middle income families," he said

"Our institutions of higher learning are becoming citadels for the privileged." Stevenson said

He said access to higher education is rapidly being determined by family income rather than intellectual ability.

Stevenson said most families hoping to send their children to college need financial assistance and that the average cost to send a student to college is 18 per cent of the nation's median family income — higher than annual tax payments

Deadline Tomorrow For Absentee Ballots

Noon tomorrow is the deadline for residents to pick up absentee ballots for Tuesday's Mount Prospect Park District election.

Ballots are available at the park district's office in the Mount Prospect Community Center, 600 See-Gwun Ave, in Mount Prospect. All ballots must then be turned into the office by 5 p.m. tomorrow to be counted.

Robert Jackson, current president of the park board, will be the only person on the ballot for the one open post. Anyone wishing to challenge Jackson's reelection bid must do so with write-in votes.

The park district serves a major portion of Mount Prospect and the Eighth Ward in Des Plaines.

Traffic, Flooding And Public Transportation

Candidates View Three Problem Areas

This is the last of a 10-part newspaper debate among the five candidates seeking election to the Mount Prospect Village Board April 20

The candidates answered 10 questions sent to them by the Herald. Their responses have appeared in daily issues of the paper beginning March 22

The five candidates for village trustee are George Anderson, Richard Hendricks, Richard Monroe, Lloyd Norris and Kenneth Scholten Norris, an incumbent trustee, and Hendricks are seeking election as independent candidates

Anderson Monroe and Scholten are running under the banner of the United Village Party Three of the five candidates will be elected to serve four-year terms on the village board

Question 10: How would you solve area problems such as traffic, flooding and public transportation?

ANDERSON

I believe we must determine what our needs and requirements are and then meet with our neighboring communities and discuss means to resolve these problems, which are generally mutual problems

For example we have already established a mutual fire aid and transportation study with other communities Also, the DAMP (Des Plaines, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Palatine) Committee has been working on area water supply Flooding and traffic also require the same approach and should be implemented without delay

As a trustee, I will work vigorously toward developing the rapport needed to resolve these problems on a community level, as I have previously indicated, as well as on an inter-community level.

HENDRICKS

Traffic, flooding and public transportation problems — in my opinion — do not lend themselves to a local solution We can pass local ordinances until we are blue in the face, and we will be unable to prevent excessive storm water and sewage from being dumped into Weller Creek from points as far as Arlington Heights, Palatine, Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates

The same principle would apply to traffic and public transportation problems. Although I favor local control in dealing with problems, wherever possible these problems dictate that multiple communities jointly ban together in working toward a solution.

MONROE

Elected officials of neighboring government units must set aside petty jealousies and provide the resources of talent, planning and long-term financing to realize real solutions to traffic, flooding and transportation problems.

If we continue present stop-gap methods, we will pass the problems of the sixties into the 1980s. I would suggest a "Small Town Politician" badge be presented annually by the collective press to the elected officials voted most "obstructionist to inter-governmental cooperation"

NORRIS

The Governor has made and will make proposals to provide mass public transportation on a state-wide basis. The board should look into these proposals when they are made to bring into focus the problem of Mount Prospect.

The traffic problem in Mount Prospect is a delightful experience for drivers, if it is compared to the problem in the Chicago Loop between 9 a.m. and 6 p.m. on weekdays. Good public transportation is a necessity if we expect to relieve the traffic congestion

The flooding problems can best be handled by adoption of the suggested plans of the Drainage and Clean Streams Commission calling for water management project in an area north of Central Road

SCHOLTEN

On problems such as traffic, flooding and public transportation, one must have all the acts before making a decision. I am aware of the traffic survey and have reviewed it, and I am in basic agreement with it

The one thing that was not taken into consideration was public feeling. These feelings are important and should be heard. I would make myself available to hear these feelings before deciding on any action

Flooding is a different situation in that when it occurs, people affected are irrational, and I speak from experience: I've flooded twice. I am sympathetic with the problem and will push for a final solution.

Public transportation is becoming more of a problem all the time. People must have the ability to move from one point to another within the community, and this is the only answer. How this can be accomplished is another matter. It seems as though a need is determined by how many persons would really use public transportation and give up the convenience of their own cars? All of these are problems that must be faced and faced squarely

I can only pledge to give it my utmost attention and base my decisions on what I feel is best for Mount Prospect.

7 Turn Out To Hear 4 Candidates

Seven people went to hear the four school board candidates in Elk Grove Township Dist 59 speak and answer questions at Holmes Junior High School in Mount Prospect Wednesday night

The audience didn't even fill one row in the school's multi-purpose room And, out of the seven who attended, one was a current board member and four were members of a committee working for passage of the bond referendum for a new junior high school

The people aren't apathetic, they're just busy said Albert Domanico one of the candidates vying for the two seats open in the April 10 elections

Despite the small audience Domanico, Erwin Poklacki, Theodore Staddler and incumbent Allen Sparks answered questions from the audience

Sparks, 908 Spruance, Des Plaines listed his qualifications and accomplishments as a current board member

We have eliminated part of a budget deficit and reduced borrowing without affecting educational programs," he said. "I would like to continue to help improve cost efficiency and educational programs"

SPARKS LISTED other goals including better communication between the parents and community, increasing the experience of the teaching staff and helping the junior high population problem"

Domanico, who served on the board for 16 months to fill a vacancy, said as a board member he would want to determine if the district utilizes its staff at maximum efficiency" He also said "more program budgeting to find out where the money is spend specifically" is needed

Filling the currently vacant position of an assistant superintendent to handle curriculum is one of Domanico's goals for the district

Domanico, 7 Grange Pl, Elk Grove Village, also said he would like to see "a smoother transition for sixth graders coming to the junior high."

Staddler, 1032 Brantwood Ave, Elk Grove Village, said the district needs "a creative faculty — one that understands that how a student learns is more important than what he learns"

He said it is not necessary to spend more money but that "changing the attitude of personnel in the district is what is needed. He called the present attitude of teachers, administration and the superintendent "insensitive to student need and experimentation"

POKLACKI, WHO ran for the board want to do something relevant and per wants to be on the board "because I want to do something relevant and eprtinent in education.

"I would begin contributing at the first meeting," said the candidate of 1223 Fernandex St., Arlington Heights. "My background as a scientist has taught me how to think logically I am my own man"

Poklacki said he wanted to bring "openness, responsiveness, innovation and love back on the board of education."

The candidates gave their views on merit pay:

Sparks said he believed in the merit system "if a teacher is doing an outstanding job."

"I am in the middle ground," Domanico admitted. "I do support performance contracts but want evaluation tools that the profession agrees with"

Staddler "strongly backs merit pay: It works in industry. It can work in the educational field."

"IT SOUNDS like something we should have," said Poklacki, "But the teachers would probably say they would not want it because the teaching profession is unified for the common good."

The candidates were also asked what they would do as board members if the referendum April 10 for money to build a new junior high school was voted down.

"If it was voted down," said Pocklaki, "I would restrict the junior high to seventh and eighth grade only. That would put more kids, then, in the kindergarten through fifth grade schools."

Domanico said he would favor a split shift but "hopes the community passes the needed referendum."

Sparks said he had no alternative solution.

Staddler said the district would then have o consider the possibilities of six-day week, a longer school year or shifts.

None of the candidates felt Dist. 59 was ready for a 12-month school year.

Discharge Diversion Set

Discharges from a Highland Park sewage plant formerly planned for the Des Plaines River will be diverted, instead, into an upper branch of the Chicago River as a result of a state order this week

The Illinois Pollution Control Board Wednesday ordered the North Shore Sanitary District (NSSD) to send effluent from its expanding Clavey Road plant in Highland Park into the Skokie Ditch, a Chicago River tributary

The board also ordered the NSSD to provide tertiary on third-stage treatment for the Clavey plant's effluent, according to board assistant George Sullivan

Several west Cook County suburbs, led by Riverside and Franklin Park, had objected to the NSSD's plans to Discharge Clavey road sewage that would have received less complete two-stage treatment into the Des Plaine River.

UNDER THE DISTRICT'S expansion program designed to end sewage discharges into Lake Michigan, however, effluent that has received third-stage treatment will still be dumped into the Des Plaines River from NSSD plants in Waukegan and Gurnee

Discharges from those plants could amount to more than 35 million gallons per day by 1990, according to Raymond Anderson, NSSD general manager. The NSSD currently sends discharges into the Des Plaines River

The pollution control board Wednesday ordered the NSSD to go ahead with its expansion program, and authorized the sanitary district to issue up to an additional $35 million in bonds without a referendum

In its order, the pollution board said the NSSD could only meet water quality standards for planned Clavey Road discharges into the Des Plaines River if it used more highly treated effluent from the proposed Gurnee plant to dilute it.

Because the pollution board has been seriously considering requests of Riverside and Franklin Park for higher standards, and because the Skokie Ditch has been in need of a greater water volume to flush sludge and wastes, the board ordered more treatment and the diversion into the Skokie ditch.

The board said the difference in cost for the NSSD would be minimal.

THOUGH THE addition of third-stage treatment at the Clavey Road plant will cost an estimated $6 million, the board said, the NSDD would save $4 million in sewer costs by discharging into the Skokie Ditch

"It's worth the $2 million to provide good water to the Skokie Ditch," the order said.

Cancer Control Month Is Set

Mayor Robert Teichert has proclaimed the month of April as Cancer Control Month in Mount Prospect.

In a proclamation signed last week, Teichert said:

Whereas, there are more than 1,500,000 Americans alive today who have been cured of cancer;

Whereas, 25 years ago fewer than one in five cancer patients was being saved. Today one out of three is cured of cancer;

Whereas, one out of two cancer patients can be cured with present knowledge and methods of treatment if diagnosed in time and properly treated;

Whereas, public education can help save thousands of lives now being lost to presentable cancers;

Whereas, the American Cancer Society is stepping up its research efforts in search for causes and cures of cancer;

Now, therefore, be it resolved that all residents of this community be urged to support the educational and fund-raising efforts of the American Cancer Society as part of Cancer Control Month in April.

Slight Tax Hike May Accompany School Issue

by JUDY MEHL

A slight increase in taxes may accompany the approval of the $2.3 million junior high school referendum April 10 in Elk Grove Township Elementary School Dist. 59, school officials said yesterday.

Officials had been quoted earlier on several occasions that there would be no increase if the referendum passed.

However, it would cost the average homeowner a $3 increase in the tax rate in 1972 and 1973, the officials said.

The school is proposed for a 5.4 acre site on Janice Avenue in Des Plaines, across the street from South Park, and near St. Zachary Catholic Church and school.

THE SCHOOL IS proposed to house the increased junior high school population estimated at least at 750 students before 1975.

In early March, when the district announced there would be a referendum, no schedule of bond and interest payments had been determined.

In an effort to provide more definite figures, a schedule of costs through 1985 were calculated this week.

It shows that the total tax rate in the bond and interest fund will be increasing in 1972 and 1973 without passage of the referendum.

This would mean the taxpayer with a $30,000 home will be paying $3 more for that fund for those years if the country's economy remains about the same as it is now.

After 1973 the total tax rate in this fund drops rapidly and ends by 1985 without the construction of more schools in the district.

IF TAXPAYERS approve construction of the junior high school, the tax rate for the bond and interest fund for 1972 and 1973 would increase three cents on $100 of assessed valuation, or about another $3 for the average homeowner. This would be out of a total estimated elementary school tax for one year of $252 for the nine tax funds.

After 1973 the tax rate will decline rapidly, even if the referendum is approved, according to estimates by Arthur Perry, finance director.

Without referendum approval, a taxpayer with a $30,000 home will be paying $50 in the bond and interest fund in 1971, $52 in 1972, $55 in 1973, $51 in 1974 and $47 in 1975. In following years the taxes continue to decrease, he said.

The figures are based on an assumed assessed valuation increase of $20 million for each of the years until 1975 when it is increased to $30 million.

The usual assessed valuation increase is $30 million annually but Perry said he used low figures because of the slumping economy.

IF THE ECONOMY picks up, taxpayers will be paying less, Perry said.

Board Expected To Approve Huge Office Complex

by GERRY DE ZONNA

Annexation and zoning of William Alter's $42 million office, apartment and recreation center will probably be approved Tuesday by the Mount Prospect Village Board.

The board indicated Wednesday it will probably approve the 54-acre development at Algonquin and Elmhurst roads, despite two objections to annexation and zoning of the site.

Trustees postponed their decision until Tuesday after spending more than an hour debating the merits of annexation and zoning with George Flaherty and Wes Pinchot, both members of the village's industrial development and economic commission.

Trustee John Kilroy suggested the board delay its decision after Village Atty., John Zimmermann said he needed 15 more minutes to correct typographical errors and insert two paragraphs in the preannexation agreement.

"Due to the lateness of the hour (midnight), why don't we postpone our decision until next week. We'll have corrected copies of the agreement and can vote on the issue with very little discussion. I think most of our questions have been answered tonight, so we probably won't need to spend much time on the issue next week," Kilroy explained.

THE BOARD, by a 3 to 2 vote, followed Kilroy's suggestion and adjourned.

After, of Unity Ventures Inc., owner of the site, is seeking annexation and commercial (B-3) zoning with special uses permitting the construction of multiple family dwellings, a hotel and indoor recreational facilities.

This is not a planned-unit development by ordinance because Alter is seeking additional zoning with variations. The parcel is currently unincorporated, and zoning for the development was approved by the Cook County Board in December.

The county board approved a combination residential zoning classification despite objections filed by the City of Des Plaines. Des Plaines residents who live near the site have objected to the development because they think it will increase traffic problems in the area.

Plans call for the construction of several office buildings ranging in heights from 8 to 16 stories; three 12-story and two 10-story apartment buildings with a maximum of 1,200 living units; theaters, restaurants, a hotel with convention facilities and year-round recreation.

AN UNDERGROUND parking lot is one of the highlights of the center. A sports arena, schools, churches and museums may be included in the development at a later date.

Alter estimates construction and development of the site will take about five to eight years depending on the economics of the country and the market for office space.

The village's plan commission and zoning board of appeals have both recommended the village board approve annexation and zoning of the site. Members of the plan commission, zoning board and village board feel if the site is not annexed by the village, Alter will develop the property in the county.

At the public hearing Wednesday, Flaherty asked the board to reject Alter's project and sue the Cook County Board for granting the zoning and thus "ramming this project down the throats of suburban homeowners."

Flaherty indicated the Alter development is only one example of zoning blackmail in the Northwest suburban area. Flaherty indicated suburban communities have no choice but to accept county zoning decisions, whether they like the project or not, because a developed can build in the county.

MAYOR ROBERT TEICHERT told Flaherty he would not sue the county board and thus jeopardize the village's opportunity to expand its tax base, especially when the project will be developed anyway.

Teichert pointed out that four years ago the village tried to sue the county for a zoning decision but failed. "We've tried litigation in the past and were defeated. We kept appealing the court's decision until we were finally thrown out of the Illinois Supreme Court."

The board indicated it will probably approve annexation and zoning on the site because the property will be developed anyway. A majority of trustees indicated the village would lose more by rejecting the proposal and losing control over development of the project.

Jackson's 'Lonely'; He's Only Candidate

by KAREN RUGEN

Robert Jackson thinks "it would be a lot more fun" if he wasn't the only candidate in the Mount Prospect Park District election.

"I guess it's just a sign of the times," sighed the 48-year-old incumbent and current park board president.

Jackson, the only commissioner whose term expires this spring, was elected to the board in 1965 and is now seeking his second six-year term. There is little doubt he'll get it; he's the only candidate listed on the ballot in Tuesday's election.

No one else has filed for a chance to fill the position. The only way he won't win is by an overwhelming write-in campaign. "But there seems no sign of that afoot," Jackson said.

THE CANDIDATE, who has five children, became interested in the district in 1955 "when it spent most of its time trying to build a ball diamond. Now we spend more of it on our recreation programs.

"I've lived in Mount Prospect practically all my life and usedt to play golf out here when I was a kid," said the resident of almost 20 years. "After I was out of the service, I wanted to come out to live in Mount Prospect. So I did."

Jackson said he has seen the park district grow from an "operation-oriented body to a recreation-oriented one. The park district's biggest job now is to supply recreational services for this community which has less open space per capita than the City of Chicago."

Jackson has seen many changes in his six-year term. He saw the district acquire more land including the sites for South and West Parks. He saw the upgrading of all the parks and the addition of a golf course to the district's facilities. He was a referendum passed to build a new recreation center at Lions Park. And he saw Kopp Pool switched from a summer-only facility to a year-round swimming center.

"AND THERE HAVE been internal changes," Jackson said. "The park district is set up and run like a business. We have never had to borrow on tax anticipation warrants. We don't have a surplus, but we also pay our bills on time."

But the park district's job is never done, according to Jackson. Some of his goals include purchasing more land, enough for two more park sites, and developing South Park in Des Plaines like Lions Park in Mount Prospect. The park district serves a major portion of Mount Prospect and the Eighth Ward in Des Plaines.

"Of course, these would require a referendum," said the candidate. "But the park district is no where near using its total bonding power. Two or three bond issues will be retired in the next five or six years and residents could pass another referendum without raising their taxes."

Jackson's short-term goals, which require time but not a lot of money, are improving the park operation and public relations.

"We have to let people know about the park district," said the candidate. "The people thought we were unresponsive to the community but that image is changing pretty rapidly."

WITHOUT ANY contest, it's hard to have election issues. But Jackson had this to say on the controversy last year over teens using Meadows Park on the west side of Mount Prospect:

"There used to be no place for teens to go. The park district realized it needed some more programs. I hope now that the facilities at Lions Park Recreation Center wil give them a place to go. But if the kids still go to the park, it's their privilege."

And on senior citizens: "The park district has a darn good senior citizen program and we are expanding it with the proposed center. We have to plan for changes in the comumnity which will be a lot different in the years ahead. No longer are there just young children. We have to make sure we don't end up with all ball diamonds and only senior citizens.

Jackson has been involved in the district since it began in 1955 and he doesn't plan to stop now. "As my wife said, I wouldn't know what to do with myself on Monday nights," he said.

Budget Approved

A $176,000 road budget for Elk Grove Township was approved at a meeting Tuesday by about 15 voters. The budget represents a $25,000 increase over last year's budget.

The township has 24 miles of road in unincorporated areas bounded by Central Road, Devon Avenue, Mount Prospect Road, and Ill. Rte 53.

College Grant Okay Unlikely: Adlai

Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III, D-Ill, said Thursday that higher education institutions are facing a financial crisis but it is unlikely that Congress will pass a $6 5 billion federal grant program for college students that he is cosponsoring.

Stevenson, speaking to the Illinois Financial Aid Administrators at the Arlington Park Towers Hotel, said the bill he and Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., have introduced would cost $5.5 billion more than a Nixon administration bill that places heavy emphasis on student loans, rather than grants.

"I don't know if anyone can make any intelligent predictions about what will happen in the 92nd Congress," Stevenson said "But the Nixon administration is already predicting an $11 billion deficit for the next fiscal year and if that prediction is as inaccurate as the last one, the deficit could run to $30 billion"

Stevenson said budget problems would hamper increased aid to students.

HE TOLD the administrators, who are responsible for student aid programs at Illinois colleges, that he hoped a compromise "pay as you earn program" could be worked out.

"I don't think it's the best answer but I think we ought to consider a program similar to the Yale University plan in which graduates pay a small percentage of their income after graduation," he said

He said such a program could last as long as 26 years after a student's graduation.

Under the Yale program, students with higher earnings after graduation pay more to the university than do students with lower earnings.

"I think the program could be run on a federal level, rather than by the universities." Stevenson said. "And possibly we could allow students to decide if they wanted to seek conventional loans or the pay-as-you-earn loans. I think the pay-as-you-earn program would be more attractive to students expecting to enter lower-paying fields after graduation."

STEVENSON SAID institutions of higher education are facing a financial crisis and that many of them have responded by passing increased costs on to the students, making it more difficult for students to attend college.

"The real paradox is that our society is demanding more and more education but the rising costs of that education are making it more and more difficult for low and middle income families," he said.

"Our institutions of higher learning are becoming citadels for the privileged," Stevenson said

He said access to higher education is rapidly being determined by family income rather than intellectual ability

Stevenson said most families hoping to send their children to college need financial assistance and that the average cost to send a student to college is 18 per cent of the nation's median family income — higher than annual tax payments

Deadline Tomorrow For Absentee Ballots

Noon tomorrow is the deadline for residents to pick up absentee ballots for Tuesday's Mount Prospect Park District election.

Ballots are available at the park district's office in the Mount Prospect Community Center, 600 See-Gwun Ave in Mount Prospect. All ballots must then be turned into the office by 5 p.m. tomorrow to be counted.

Robert Jackson, current president of the park board, will be the only person on the ballot for the one open post. Anyone wishing to challenge Jackson's reelection bid must do so with write-in votes.

The park district serves a major portion of Mount Prospect and the Eighth Ward in Des Plaines.

Traffic, Flooding And Public Transportation

Candidates View Three Problem Areas

This is the last of a 10-part newspaper debate among the five candidates seeking election to the Mount Prospect Village Board April 20

The candidates answered 10 questions sent to them by the Herald Their responses have appeared in daily issues of the paper beginning March 22

The five candidates for village trustee are George Anderson, Richard Hendricks, Richard Monroe, Lloyd Norris and Kenneth Scholten Norris, an incumbent trustee, and Hendricks are seeking election as independent candidates

Anderson, Monroe and Scholten are running under the banner of the United Village Party Three of the five candidates will be elected to serve four-year terms on the village board.

Question 10: How would you solve area problems such as traffic, flooding and public transportation?

ANDERSON

I believe we must determine what our needs and requirements are and then meet with our neighboring communities and discuss means to resolve these problems which are generally mutual problems

For example we have already established a mutual fire aid and transportation study with other communities. Also the DAMP (Des Plaines, Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Palatine) Committee has been working on area water supply Flooding and traffic also require the same approach and should be implemented without delay.

As a trustee, I will work vigorously toward developing the rapport neded to resolve these problems on a community level, as I have previously indicated, as well as on an inter-community level.

HENDRICKS

Traffic, flooding and public transportation problems — in my opinion — do not lend themselves to a local solution. We can pass local ordinances until we are blue in the face, and we will be unable to prevent excessive storm water and sewage from being dumped into Weller Creek from points as far as Arlington Heights, Palatine, Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates

The same principle would apply to traffic and public transportation problems Although I favor local control in dealing with problems, wherever possible, these problems dictate that multiple communities jointly ban together in working toward a solution.

MONROE

Elected officials of neighboring government units must set aside petty jealousies and provide the resources of talent, planning and long-term financing to realize real solutions to traffic, flooding and transportation problems.

If we continue present stop-gap methods, we will pass the problems of the sixties into the 1980s. I would suggest a "Small Town Politician" badge be presented annually by the collective press to the elected officials voted most "obstructionist to inter-governmental cooperation."

NORRIS

The Governor has made and will make proposals to provide mass public transportation on a state-wide basis. The board should look into these proposals when they are made to bring into focus the problem of Mount Prospect.

The traffic problem in Mount Prospect is a delightful experience for drivers, if it is compared to the problem in the Chicago Loop between 9 a.m. and 6 p.m on weekdays. Good public transportation is a necessity if we expect to relieve the traffic congestion.

The flooding problems can best be handled by adoption of the suggested plans of the Drainage and Clean Streams Commission calling for water management project in an area north of Central Road.

SCHOLTEN

On problems such as traffic, flooding and public transportation, one must have all the acts before making a decision. I am aware of the traffic survey and have reviewed it, and I am in basic agreement with it

The one thing that was not taken into consideration was public feeling These feelings are important and should be heard I would make myself available to hear these feelings before deciding on any action

Flooding is a different situation in that when it occurs, people affected are irrational, and I speak from experience: I've flooded twice. I am sympathetic with the problem and will push for a final solution.

Public transportation is becoming more of a problem all the time. People must have the ability to move from one point to another within the community, and this is the only answer How this can be accomplished is another matter. It seems as though a need is determined by how many persons would really use public transportation and give up the convenience of their own cars? All of these are problems that must be faced and faced squarely

I can only pledge to give it my utmost attention and base my decisions on what I feel is best for Mount Prospect.

7 Turn Out To Hear 4 Candidates

Seven people went to hear the four school board candidates in Elk Grove Township Dist 59 speak and answer questions at Holmes Junior High School in Mount Prospect Wednesday night

The audience didn't even fill one row in the school's multi-purpose room And, out of the seven who attended, one was a current board member and four were members of a committee working for passage of the bond referendum for a new junior high school

The people aren't apathetic, they're just busy, said Albert Domanico one of the candidates vying for the two seats open in the April 10 elections

Despite the small audience, Domanico, Irwin Poklacki Theodore Staddler and incumbent Allen Sparks answered questions from the audience

Sparks, 908 Spruance, Des Plaines listed his qualifications and accomplishments as a current board member

We have eliminated part of a budget deficit and reduced borrowing without affecting educational programs," he said. "I would like to continue to help improve cost efficiency and educational programs"

SPARKS LISTED other goals including better communication between the parents and community, increasing the experience of the teaching staff and helping the junior high population problem"

Domanico, who served on the board for 16 months to fill a vacancy, said as a board member he would want to determine if the district utilizes its staff at maximum efficiency" He also said "more program budgeting to find out where the money is spend specifically" is needed

Filling the currently vacant position of an assistant superintendent to handle curriculum is one of Domanico's goals for the district

Domanico, 7 Grange Pl., Elk Grove Village also said he would like to see "a smoother transition for sixth graders coming to the junior high"

Staddler, 1032 Brantwood Ave., Elk Grove Village, said the district needs "a creative faculty — one that understands that how a student learns is more important than what he learns"

He said it is not necessary to spend more money but that "changing the attitude of personnel in the district is what is needed He called the present attitude of teachers, administration and the superintendent "insensitive to student need and experimentation"

POKLACKI, WHO ran for the board want to do something relevant and perwants to be on the board "because I want to do something relevant and eprtinent in education

"I would begin contributing at the first meeting," said the candidate of 1223 Fernandex St., Arlington Heights. "My background as a scientist has taught me how to think logically. I am my own man"

Poklacki said he wanted to bring "openness, responsiveness, innovation and love back on the board of education."

The candidates gave their views on merit pay:

Sparks said he believed in the merit system "if a teacher is doing an outstanding job."

"I am in the middle ground," Domanico admitted. "I do support performance contracts but want evaluation tools that the profession agrees with."

Staddler "strongly backs merit pay: It works in industry. It can work in the educational field."

"IT SOUNDS like something we should have," said Poklacki, "But the teachers would probably say they would not want it because the teaching profession is unified for the common good."

The candidates were also asked what they would do as board members if the referendum April 10 for money to build a new junior high school was voted down.

"If it was voted down," said Pocklaki, "I would restrict the junior high to seventh and eighth grade only. That would put more kids, then, in the kindergarten through fifth grade schools."

Domanico said he would favor a split shift but "hopes the community passes the needed referendum."

Sparks said he had no alternative solution.

Staddler said the district would then have o consider the possibilities of six-day week, a longer school year or shifts.

None of the candidates felt Dist. 59 was ready for a 12-month school year.

Discharge Diversion Set

Discharges from a Highland Park sewage plant formerly planned for the Des Plaines River will be diverted, instead, into an upper branch of the Chicago River as a result of a state order this week

The Illinois Pollution Control Board Wednesday ordered the North Shore Sanitary District (NSSD) to send effluent from its expanding Clavey Road plant in Highland Park into the Skokie Ditch, a Chicago River tributary

The board also ordered the NSSD to provide tertiary or third-stage treatment for the Clavey plant's effluent, according to board assistant George Sullivan.

Several west Cook County suburbs led by Riverside and Franklin Park, had objected to the NSSD's plans to discharge Clavey road sewage that would have received less complete two-stage treatment into the Des Plaine River.

UNDER THE DISTRICT'S expansion program designed to end sewage discharges into Lake Michigan, however, effluent that has received third-stage treatment will still be dumped into the Des Plaines River from NSSD plants in Waukegan and Gurnee

Discharges from those plants could amount to more than 35 million gallons per day by 1990, according to Raymond Anderson, NSSD general manager. The NSSD currently sends discharges into the Des Plaines River

The pollution control board Wednesday ordered the NSSD to go ahead with its expansion program, and authorized the sanitary district to issue up to an additional $55 million in bonds without a referendum.

In its order, the pollution board said the NSSD could only meet water quality standards for planned Clavey Road discharges into the Des Plaines River if it used more highly treated effluent from the proposed Gurnee plant to dilute it.

Because the pollution board has been seriously considering requests of Riverside and Franklin Park for higher standards, and because the Skokie Ditch has been in need of a greater water volume to flush sludge and wastes, the board ordered more treatment and the diversion into the Skokie ditch.

The board said the difference in cost for the NSSD would be minimal.

THOUGH THE addition of third-stage treatment at the Clavey Road plant will cost an estimated $6 million, the board said, the NSDD would save $4 million in sewer costs by discharging into the Skokie Ditch

"It's worth the $2 million to provide good water to the Skokie Ditch," the order said.

A Herald Editorial

For Village Board: Harms, Ryan, Salinsky, Clarbour

The Herald strongly recommends that Arlington Heights voters elect the following candidates to the Village Board of Trustees in Tuesday's election.

—Alice Harms, for a two-year term.

—James T Ryan and Theodore Salinsky, for four-year terms.

—The Herald also recommends the election of Ralph Clarbour to a four-year term as a village trustee.

These selections were made without regard to party affiliation after a careful review of the qualifications of all eight candidates.

We believe election of these candidates will add to the board a blend of experience, responsiveness and decisiveness which will be of value to the community.

In recent months it has become evident that many residents of Arlington Heights feel a sense of alienation from their elected officials. It is important that candidates aware of the need for meaningful communication with the taxpayers be placed in policy-making positions.

In five years as a member of the Zoning Board of Appeals, and three years on the Village Plan Commission, Mrs Harms has accumulated an impressive store of knowledge about the problems of Arlington Heights and has demonstrated her concern for the needs of all residents.

That concern is needed on the village board.

James T. Ryan served three years on the Plan Commission before his appointment to the village board in early 1970. He also has the knowledge to enable him to take a realistic view of village problems. It was this knowledge, and his civic responsibility, which enabled him to take a politically unpopular stance in favor of the utility tax, though he probably knew he would be a candidate in this election.

That responsibility is an asset to the village board.

A relative newcomer to Arlington Heights, Theodore Salinsky has gained experience and demonstrated his concern in other communities as a school board member and United Fund director. He has challenged the present administration to a more thoughtful approach to the concerns of residents and exhibits personal qualities which could make him an effective voice for other "newcomers"

That challenge and that voice can be of value to the village board

Though not deeply involved in governmental affairs, Ralph Clarbour has a thorough understanding of Arlington Heights, cultivated over 22 years of residence here. He is deeply respected by his associates in business, Chamber of Commerce affairs and community activities, to which he has devoted many hours.

He is a man of mature judgment and decisive action, and should be on the board.

Budget Slashes Force Shifting Of Handicapped

by WANDALYN RICE

Next year for the first time since 1964 students living in the Westgate-Dwyer attendance area will all be under one roof

All students who live in the neighborhood served by the schools on a common lot at Grove Street and Dwyer Avenue will be housed in Westgate School and Dwyer School will be rented out to a special education district

The Board of Education of Arlington Heights Dist 25 approved the plan for closing Dwyer School to district students at a board meeting Wednesday night at which budget cuts for the 1971 72 school year were passed

The budget cuts were made necessary by the district s loss of a tax rate referendum March 13 projected loss of state aid money for next year and a ruling declaring personal property tax on corporations unconstitutional

Presently Dwyer School has two sections of physically handicapped students three sections of first graders and three sections of kindergarten, according to Robert Boos, director of administration and planning for the district

The two physically handicapped classes will be moved to a wing of Berkley School, 2501 N Chestnut Ave , which is not being completed, Boos said The 167 kindergarten and first grade students will be moved into Westgate Teachers parents witness budget cutting. See Page 4.

IN ORDER TO make room for all the neighborhood children at Westgate, a class of educable mentally handicapped (EMH) now housed there will be moved to Patton School, Boos said

Dwyer School will then be rented to the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization (NSSEO) which will use the building for special education classes

NSSEO will pay the district for all maintenance and operating costs and will also pay some money toward the bonded interest fund on the building Supt Donald Strong told the board Wednesday night

NESSEO is a special education district funded through contributions by the ten Northwest Suburban school districts in the state

NSSEO programs are for children who have problems rare enough to make it difficult for individual districts to serve them. The three major NSSEO programs are for multiply handicapped, emotionally distributed and trainable mentally handicapped students

Boos said NSSEO has not yet made final decisions on what program or programs will be housed at Dwyer

STRONG TOLD THE board that long-range plans in the district had indicated that Dwyer could eventually become a special education building The move has been speeded up because of the district's financial problems, he said

The rental of the building will be on a year-to-year basis and the district is not committed to rent the building to NSSEO indefinitely, he said

Dwyer School, an eight-classroom building, was opened in the fall of 1964, at the same time as Thomas Junior High School and Greenbrier School.

The school was planned, at maximum

Girl Critical After Being Hit By Car

An 8-year-old Arlington Heights girl was taken to Northwest Community Hospital in critical condition following a hit-and-run accident on Marion Street near Hickory Avenue yesterday afternoon, according to Arlington Heights police.

Injured was Barbara Bourgeois, daughter of Mr. and Mrs L. H Bourgeois Jr., 706 E Marion St. Hospital personnel reported late last night that she was in the intensive care unit for treatment of head and internal injuries.

About 45 minutes after the accident, police arrested a 16-year-old Arlington Heights girl and charged her with leaving the scene of a personal injury accident, failure to yield the right-of-way to a pedestrian, and driving without a license.

Police received a call about 3:45 p m. from the mother of an 8-year-old boy who reportedly pulled the injured child from the street after she was struck by the car. Police said the girl was found 118 feet east of Hickory on Marion Street

Shortly after their first call, police said, they received another call which led them to the 16-year-old girl. The name of the caller was not revealed by police. The arrest of the girl believed to be the driver came about 4:30 p m , police said.

The accident was still under investigation late last night and police indicated another arrest would follow.

LOW-BUDGET . During discussion of budget cuts at the Dist. 25 board of education meeting Wednesday, board member Robert Powell said he thought lobbying by the district should attempt to get changes in laws governing school district borrowng and state aid. College Grant Okay Unlikely: Adlai

Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III, D-Ill, said Thursday that higher education institutions are facing a financial crisis but it is unlikely that Congress will pass a $6.5 billion federal grant program for college students that he is cosponsoring.

Stevenson, speaking to the Illinois Financial Aid Administrators at the Arlington Park Towers Hotel, said the bill he and Sen. Claiborne Pell, D-R.I., have introduced would cost $5.5 billion more than a Nixon administration bill that places heavy emphasis on student loans, rather than grants.

"I don't know if anyone can make any intelligent predictions about what will happen in the 92nd Congress," Stevenson said. "But the Nixon administration is already predicting an $11 billion deficit for the next fiscal year and if that prediction is as inaccurate as the last one, the deficit could run to $30 billion."

Stevenson said budget problems would hamper increased aid to students.

HE TOLD the administrators, who are responsible for student aid programs at Illinois colleges, that he hoped a compromise "pay as you earn program" could be worked out.

"I don't think it's the best answer but I think we ought to consider a program similar to the Yale University plan in which graduates pay a small percentage of their income after graduation," he said.

He said such a program could last as long as 26 years after a student's graduation.

Under the Yale program, students with higher earnings after graduation pay more to the university than do students with lower earnings.

"I think the program could be run on a federal level, rather than by the universities," Stevenson said. "And possibly we could allow students to decide if they wanted to seek conventional loans or the pay-as-you-earn loans. I think the pay-as-you-earn program would be more attractive to students expecting to enter lower-paying fields after graduation."

STEVENSON SAID institutions of higher education are facing a financial crisis and that many of them have responded by passing increased costs on to the students, making it more difficult for students to attend college.

"The real paradox is that our society is demanding more and more education but the rising costs of that education are making it more and more difficult for low and middle income families," he said.

Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III

"Our institutions of higher learning are becoming citadels for the privileged." Stevenson said.

He said access to higher education is rapidly being determined by family income rather than intellectual ability.

Stevenson said most families hoping to send their children to college need financial assistance and that the average cost to send a student to college is 18 per cent of the nation's median family income — higher than annual tax payments.

4-year term

Rather than continue to ask the taxpayers for more money to operate our parks, we must, through proper financial and budgeting procedures, operate with greater efficiency. We must insure that our money is being used to reach the greatest number of people per dollar spent. As an MBA graduate of the Executive Program of the University of Chicago, I have the background to implement this program. As the father of 4 active children, I am familiar with all the parks in Arlington Heights and the programs offered.

20 Residents Hear School Candidates

by TOM WELLMAN

Voter disinterest in four school board races hung over Wheeling High School last night like a pall. A total of 20 persons, including three teachers heard five candidates from High School Dist. 214 talk about the issues.

One candidate, Don McGlothlin of Wheeling, even threatened to withdraw from the race because of the slight turnout. He later said he would stay in the race and "work harder than ever."

He added that maybe one or two persons were attending the forum from the Wheeling area and "maybe you don't want me."

Following the appearance of the candidates from Dist. 214, six of the eight Harper College board candidates were expected to speak. They are: Larry Moran, Milton Hansen, Ross Miller, Eugene Nugent, Hannah Wilson, and Robert Fuchs.

Here's a brief summary of the statements of the Dist. 214 candidates.

Leah Cummins: "We're in serious trouble if we concentrate on expansion based solely on bricks and mortar. She asserted the district has to plan for a peak enrollment of 25,000 students and eight or nine high schools, or additions to existing buildings.

Raymond Pettersen commented, "the administration and staff must run the schools, not the kids." He also suggested that vocational programs should have parity with college preparatory programs and that the district must learn to educate the 25 per cent of the students who drop out of college.

Jack Matthews: "The district has an excellent administration and faculty and a sound financial base." However, he wondered if teachers have support for disciplining students, and he said he was interested in developing a sound system for merit pay for excellent teachers.

Robert Winkle, along with McGlothlin, was concerned about the turnout. He said a large percentage of the tax dollar goes to the schools but that people don't bother to vote in elections. An improvement in the collection of tax monies is a must for all school districts, he commented.

McGlothlin added that teachers' time in school is more than one-half wasted. He said he was concerned about student supervision and the fact that "students don't use available time.

The final educators for political action forum will be held tonight at 7:30 at Prospect High School, 801 West Kensington Rd., Mount Prospect.

Reward Fund On Dog Death Established

A reward fund to attract information about the person responsible for the death of a dog found in a garbage can in Arlington Heights early last month has been established at an Arlington Heights bank.

Fred Wolf, cashier at the Northwest Trust and Savings Bank, 111 S. Arlington Heights Rd., said the fund was set up at the request of Mrs. Dennis Santoni of 1216 S. Kaspar Ave., who said she wanted to contribute to a reward in the name of her St. Bernard, Angel.

Wolf said any contributions can be sent to the bank, in his care, with checks payable to the Reward Fund.

The amount of the fund will be paid to any person who provides information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person responsible for the dog's death. Capt. Maury Eberle, of the Arlington Heights Police Dept., will make the determination of any payoff of the reward money, Wolf said.

The dog was found in a garbage can and near death by Lasesc Disposal Service workers March 1. Patrolman Gene Korn, animal welfare officer, said the dog had been hit over the head with a blunt object. He said the dog's skull was fractured and splintered and the dog was totally blind. The dog was in such pain it had to be destroyed.

Korn has sought in vain since that time to find out who owned the dog, which were no identifying tags.

Anyone with any information concerning the incident or the identity of the dog's owner is asked to contact Korn at the Arlington Heights Police Department.

Woods Supports The Village Party

Former Village Pres. John G. Woods yesterday issued a statement endorsing Village Party candidates for election to the Arlington Heights Board of Trustees.

Woods, who served as village president for eight years, cited home rule provisions of the new Illinois constitution and said the Village Party candidates "have the ability and experience to utilize this tool wisely."

He said the four candidates — Charles O. Bennett, Ralph Clarbour, Alice Harms and James T. Ryan — "represent an enlightened and progressive view of the challenges facing our community in the next four years."

Woods appointed Mrs. Harms as the first woman member of the zoning board of appeals and the Plan Commission and also appointed Ryan to the plan commission.

The Village Party candidates are opposed by Caucus Party nominees Kenneth Banet, John J. Collins, Eugene L. Griffin and Theodore Salinsky.

Car Wash Is Taken Through The Wringer

The Colonial Car Wash North was taken through the wringer Wednesday night.

Representatives of the proposed auto laundry appeared before the village Plan Commission requesting rezoning to B-2, upon annexation to Arlington Heights, to permit the construction of the car wash, equipped with gasoline pumps, at 211 W. Rand Rd., across from Korvette shopping center.

The petitioner was also requesting a special use to allow the gasoline pumps, pumps and a special land use to allow an M-1 (limited manufacturing) use in a B-2 area. Bill Moore, attorney for the petitioner, told the board he has filed a similar request with the village Zoning Board of Appeals.

Of the seven plan commissioners attending, six voted to recommend to the village board of trustees that the requests be denied. Commissioner Vic Bosler voted "pass."

MOORE, CITING the existing zoning in the surrounding area, said the Rand Road area is no longer suited for single-family homes. He said it is a "booming commercial area," and is a "logical place to put a very necessary facility."

George T. March, a traffic engineer testifying for the petitioner, told the commission the internal traffic flow design for the project was sufficient to prevent a backup of cars onto Rand Road. March explained there are four vehicle lanes planned on the site, leading into the wash facility, which would handle approximately 75 cars on the property.

March also told the commission the developer would provide a left turn bay and a right turn deceleration lane on Rand Road. He said the lanes, which would cost the developer close to $20,000 to install, were approved by state highway department engineers.

THE COMMISSIONERS based their decision on problems of traffic storm water runoff in the area, and the future development of the entire triangle bounded by Rand, Palatine and Arlington Heights roads. They expressed concern that a string of petitioners would bring the area in for annexation in small pieces for various uses such as drive-ins.

Several long time residents of the area appeared at the meeting to object to the proposed development.

The residents listed problems expected from the car wash and asked what protection from the business the village would offer.

Commissioner Richard Durava, noting many of the lots in the area are for sale, suggested the homeowners join together and seek annexation to the village under an R-1 (single-family) classification.

"IF YOU GIVE up the grand tax saving of about $100 and come into the village," Durava said, "the whole parcel would be rezoned. You wouldn't face the problem of being chipped away by these trying to make a fast buck and get out as you are trying to do."

Durava, explaining the village has little or no jurisdiction over the entire area, added, "Each of you think you are sitting on a pile of gold. It's just a matter of who is going to sell out first for the greatest price. If you will petition for annexation we will guarantee the planned, orderly development of the land."

When one of the homeowners in the rear of the room expressed she would not consider annexing, Durava added, "They want their cake and eat it too."

In making the motion to recommend the village board deny the request, Commissioner John Langhenry said he did so in light of the traffic situation and in regard to the petitioner's responsibility in a special-use request.

For a special use permit the petitioner must prove that the use requested is desirable or necessary for the convenience and welfare of the community.

Fire Damage Repair Is OKd

The Board of Education of Arlington Heights Dist. 25 approved plans Wednesday night for repair of fire-damaged Miner Junior High School.

A representative of the architectural firm of Ganster and Henninghausen, that designed the building, presented plans for restoration of the cafeteria and gymnasium of the school, heavily damaged by fire on Saturday.

The loss to the district is completely covered by the fire insurance policy, Supt. Donald Strong told the board because the district carries a "declining deductible" policy. "For any loss over $5,000 we are completely covered."

Repairs to be made include replacing the roof of the cafeteria, rebuilding the stage and fixing the gym floor which buckled from water damage, the architect said.

General contractor for the repairs will be Cornell Forrell, Inc., the company now completing Rand Junior High School, Strong said. The district does not have to ask for bids on the work because it is for an emergency.

The architect said he expects the cost of repairs to be more than $140,000 for general and special contractors. This does not include replacement of the equipment lost by the district in the fire.

Restoration of the building is expected to take about four months.

Youth's Car Stolen

One 1965 Mustang in Arlington Heights left Hersey High School before its owner did yesterday.

Paul Hartung, 1701 N. Fernandez Ave., told Arlington Heights police that his car was stolen from the parking lot at the high school which he was in school.

He said he parked the car in the lot at 8 a.m. and found it missing at 2 p.m.

Legion To Honor Cardinal Players

The Arlington High School basketball team will be honored tomorrow night by the American Legion at Merle Guild Post 208, 121 N. Douglas Ave.

The team will be guests at the monthly steak fry at the post, enjoying steak dinners with all the trimmings. Post members invited the team to salute them for their successful season, which carried them to within one game of the "Sweet 16" and a berth in the state championship playoffs.

WHO IS THE PERFECT FOOL?

Although they say no one is perfect, we feel that at the first of April, our definition of a "perfect fool" is appropriate.

He is someone who does not believe in going to a doctor or dentist for a periodic check-up. Moreover, he will always try to cure his own illness and yours, too, if you will listen to him. His medicine cabinet is filled with half-empty unlabeled bottles. He usually is the first one to try that new "gadget" or "elixir," and is an expert on all current health fads from dieting to exotic seeds. He is a menace to himself and to others.

Bloodletting: No Laughing Matter

by WANDALYN RICE

More than 200 teachers principals and residents gathered in the gymnasium of South Junior High School Wednesday night to watch the bloodletting

They came in small groups greeted friends and made wry jokes Be nice to him he's losing his job one teacher said to a friend while the object of the joke laughed

The laughter was strained but the surface gaiety among the crowd served to cover up the fear Teachers arrived who already knew their jobs would be cut but they came to see the board take the final action

Parents came to see if programs they were familiar with would remain and perhaps to get some hint of what their children's education will be like

As the meeting began the board quickly became entangled in the detailed discussion of the ruling on the constitutionality of the corporate personal property tax The words assessed value tax warrants and anticipation were tossed around and many in the audience became confused

LINNEY BOARD Pres Theodore Seiler recognized a woman sitting in the back of the room who had raised her hand Can anyone explain to me the effect of the personal property tax on this district? the woman asked her voice full of emotion I don't understand I'm from the Westgate area and I'm in the PTA and I don't understand and I'm really getting very angry

Seiler was firm We are trying to conduct our business and I'm sorry but this cannot be an open forum Any of us will be glad to talk to you afterward His hand shook slightly as he gripped his microphone

The board's business was to cut more than 50 jobs from the district payroll for 1971 because of the loss of a recent tax rate referendum and a sudden drop in state aid monies

And besides the cuts proposed by Supt Donald Strong at the beginning of the meeting the board had to decide whether to make more cuts to guard against the possible loss of corporate personal property tax Without more cuts they would risk further worsening of the district's financial position

THE BOARD discussed the problem and adjourned to a brief executive session to discuss the personnel implications of their budget cut

A the board and administration took great pains to avoid any administrative snafu It's instrumental music

And so it was The board voted to eliminate all instrumental music for kindergarten through eighth grade including strolling strings and band The cut would not affect the whole loss from corporate personal property tax but board member William Boos said This is a reason for hiring or firing between the district and its personnel

Personnel action which might result in honorable termination of teachers of instrumental music program who cannot be placed elsewhere in the district was delayed until Monday night

I think we have an obligation to talk to the people in these programs before making a personnel report Strong said

STRONG ADDED he regretted the music cut even on a temporary basis "If we move toward elimination of breadth in our program we run some very real risks

The cuts decided on by the board will mean a reduction of sixty nine and one half positions in the district forty six and one half of them certificated That amounts to a 10 per cent reduction in the total staff in the district

Full effects of the cuts will not be completely known for some time because the district will make as many cuts as possible by not refilling positions that become vacant because of normal resignations

Strong said the cuts would involve readjustment and increases of class size in all schools in the district Also, final decisions have not yet been made as to what positions will be eliminated when eight administrative and consultant positions are cut

As the meeting broke up and the crowd moved away one administrator shook his head The cuts, he noted, were just the beginning of those needed to balance the budget for the next two years "We've just started and look what we've already done he said

Budget Cuts Force Student Shifting

ce to accommodate the kindergarten first and second grades from the Westgate Dale Carnegie neighborhood It housed kindergarten and first grades from 1964 until 1969

In the 1969-70 school year the building housed kindergarten through second grade The second grades were moved back to Westgate this year when the trainable handicapped classes were moved in

The move Boos said would cause no real problem for the district although it is going to tighten the situation at Westgate a little He said the budget cuts made by the board will increase class sizes somewhat at all the schools in the district

ANOTHER BUDGET cut decided by the board Wednesday night will come in for further study before its impact is determined Boos said The district will study its lunchroom policy and try to reduce the number of students eating lunch at school in the elementary schools he said and then decide if reductions in the number of lunchroom supervisors can be made

School Control Will Be Issue Of 70's: Bakalis

by LEON SHURE

Michael Bakalis, State Superintendant of Public Instruction, said yesterday that school boards as they presently exist may be obsolete and greater state powers over school districts may be necessary.

Bakalis, speaking to 200 Maine Township High School Dist. 207 teachers and administrators at Maine West High School in Des Plaines, said the greatest controversy in education during the 1970's will concern who controls the schools.

A need exists to centralize education decision-making at the state level, although local school boards with broadened representation may continue to make decisions in a state-local board "federalism," he said.

He also warned teachers that seeking to control public education is misguided. The state legislature resents teachers demands for higher wages without better education, and Bakalis said, he would seek to apply labor-management negotiation laws to teachers

Bakalis, 32, who has been in office since January following an upset over Ray Page, said social changes in the last ten years have caused groups to challenge the power of local school boards to make decisions, and have eroded board authority.

The first challenge to local school boards was by school administrators, he said. Administrators have grown in professionalism to the point where they have a much better understandng of educational goals than board members.

FIRST IN COLLEGES and now in high schools teachers and students are demanding more voice in decisions, Bakalis said. Now the community is asking how it can get back control of its schools.

He feels that part of the answer is a system in which the state makes some decisions and local boards make other decisions.

Many functions, such as rational financial planning and setting of some standards, need to be centralized in the state superintendent's office, he said.

The state should be able to "take over" a district if the education of children is being harmed by strikes, maladministration or financial disaster, as long as there are adequate checks on state power, he said.

The state should provide more funds and take more responsibility for public education financing, Bakalis told the Herald.

The new kind of school board might keep conflict inside of itself by having representatives of parents, administrators, teachers and students, he said.

Bakalis said legislators are now anti-education because teachers are demanding more and more money without showing improved education. He urged teachers to become more responsible for their actions and teaching performance. He also said teachers should seek change through political action.

ABOUT TEACHER strikes, he said, "If confrontation between teachers and the district is to exist, and I think it will, a legal framework must be created in which negotiztions can be handled rationally and in good faith."

Bakalis had been invited to speak before the teachers and school district administrators by the Maine West social science department

SEVERAL THOUSAND STUDENTS from Maine Township High School Dist. 207s four schools and surrounding schools were on hand Wednesday night for the annual career night at Maine East High School, Park Ridge. The students and their parents visited exhibits, displays and discussion sessions with representatives from more than 100 business and industrial firms.

Abrams Gets Behrel Nod

Des Plaines Mayor Herbert H Behrel yesterday formally announced his support of Alan Abrams, 514 Westmere Rd., candidate for eighth ward alderman

In a statement, Behrel said Abrams, an attorney, has "excellent qualifications for public office," including a law degree and training as a chemical engineer

Abrams' opponent is Ald Edward Shillington (8th), 645 S Dara James Rd., who is campaigning for a third term on the city council

"Both the needs of the city and the eighth ward, now more than ever before, require skilled and qualified leadership, the kind of leadership that Abrams can offer, to combat the growing urban problems challenging our community and city," said Behrel

Behrel, the first person to sign Abrams' nominating petition, has made no secret of his support for him and joins the other eighth ward alderman, Robert Michaels, in endorsing Abrams.

"The eighth ward is the ward in which I make my home It is one of the finest residential areas in the city, and in fact, the surrounding community," said Behrel, who lives at 950 Beau Dr

The west side ward, however, faces many complex urban problems which may in time destroy its residential character," the mayor said He mentioned the proposed sewage treatment plant at Oakton Street and Elmhurst Road, O'Hare Airport expansion, and a huge apartment complex to be built west of Elmhurst Road, as issues facing the ward

I have heard Abrams publicly discuss these issues many times and know he is thoroughly conversant with them as well as the many critical issues facing the eighth ward," said Behrel.

"While I do not agree with Abrams' views on all of these issues, I do thoroughly agree that his solutions are sound and well-developed, reflecting, I am sure, his background as a successful attorney and chemcial engineer," he said

I have known Abrams' opponent for many years, and appreciate his sincere desire to help the citizens of my home ward," Behrel said of Shillington. "I know too, however, the time and problems have changed "

The mayor said his endorsement of Abrams comes "after long and careful study of both candidates."

Career Night Clears Future For Students

The future became more clear Wednesday night for several thousand students in the Des Plaines area at the annual careers night sponsored by Maine Township High School Dist. 207.

Representatives from more than 100 business and industrial firms displayed their wares at Maine East High School in Park Ridge for the students from Maine West, East, South and North high schools and other public and parochial high school and junior high school students in the area.

The purpose of the special program, called "Project Big," was to help students find a vocation best suited to their interest and aptitudes by providing an opportunity to learn the advantages and disadvantages of many occupations. Potential compensations and the possible stages of advancement in these fields were discussed, district school officials said.

STUDENTS ALSO learned what employers expect in the way of education, training and experience, officials said.

The program was arranged by the cooperative education departments of the four Maine high schools. It was sponsored by the Des Plaines Kiwanis Club, the Park Ridge Rotary Club and other service clubs in the area.

WHAT DOES the future look like? For Richard Freer, a Des Plaines resident and junior at the newly opened Maine North High School, a special career night Wednesday at Maine East High School may have provided some of the answers. Part of the material in his hands is about the U.S. Marine Corps. The exhibit is about electronics. He has many opportunities to choose from.

Discharges Into River Ruled Out

Discharges from a Highland Park sewage plant formerly planned for the Des Plaines River will be diverted, instead, into an upper branch of the Chicago River as a result of a state order this week.

The Illinois Pollution Control Board Wednesday ordered the North Shore Sanitary District (NSSD) to send effluent from its expanding Clavey Road plant in Highland Park into the Skokie Ditch, a Chicago River tributary

The board also ordered the NSSD to provide tertiary on third-stage treatment for the Clavey plant's effluent, according to board assistant George Sullivan.

Several west Cook County suburbs, led by Riverside and Franklin Park, had objected to the NSSD's plans to Discharge Clavey road sewage that would have received less complete two-stage treatment into the Des Plaine River.

UNDER THE DISTRICT'S expansion program designed to end sewage discharges into Lake Michigan, however, effluent that has received third-stage treatment will still be dumped into the Des Plaines River from NSSD plants in Waukegan and Gurnee.

Discharges from those plants could amount to more than 35 million gallons per day by 1990, according to Raymond Anderson, NSSD general manager. The NSSD currently sends discharges into the Des Plaines River.

The pollution control board Wednesday ordered the NSSD to go ahead with its expansion program, and authorized the sanitary district to issue up to an additional $55 million in bonds without a referendum.

In its order, the pollution board said the NSSD could only meet water quality standards for planned Clavey Road discharges into the Des Plaines River if it used more highly treated effluent from the proposed Gurnee plant to dilute it.

Because the pollution board has been seriously considering requests of Riverside and Franklin Park for higher standards, and because the Skokie Ditch has been in need of a greater water volume to flush sludge and wastes, the board ordered more treatment and the diversion into the Skokie ditch.

The board said the difference in cost for the NSSD would be minimal.

THOUGH THE addition of third-stage treatment at the Clavey Road plant will cost an estimated $6 million, the board said, the NSDD would save $4 million in sewer costs by discharging into the Skokie Ditch

"It's worth the $2 million to provide good water to the Skokie Ditch," the order said.

'Rapunzel And Witch' Is Scheduled Here

The Des Plaines Park District's version of "Rapunzel and the Witch" will be performed today and Saturday at Rand Park fieldhouse.

The play, performed by the Des Plaines Footlighters, will begin at 8:30 p.m. both nights.

Tickets, available at the door, are 50 cents.

Six Walkie-Talkie Radios Are Stolen

Six Walkie-Talkie radios were reported stolen Wednesday in a burglary at a Central Telephone Co office, 301 W. Oakton St., Des Plaines, according to Des Plaines police.

Charles F. Burton, a Central Telephone official told police that the radios, valued at $4,800, were taken from a small storage room at the office early Wednesday morning.

Scratches on the storage room lock indicate the burglars probably used a screw driver to gain entrance, police said.

Keane: Ability To 'Sell'

Edward Keane candidate for Des Plaines park board commissioner thinks he can reflect the feelings of the people of Des Plaines to the park board

Because of my ability to market and sell a program said Keane, of 2048 Webster Ln ' I can help the problem of lack of communication between the board and the residents

Keane a contract sales representative for General Electric Corp worked against the recent park district referendum for a sports complex ' I m running for park commissioner he said because people I contacted in the city suggested I run to express the opinions of the people to the board

Keane thinks that the park district s biggest problem is that the park board is not aware of the specific problems that exist in the district

For instance the tot lots have been let go — I m not sure why maybe there s not enough money There isn t enough money to do everything for everyone

ACCORDING TO KEANE, the park district serves young people more than it does older residents That will always be the nature of a park district,' he said, but there are opportunities for greater service to older people

I d like to see benches flower gardens and a place where people can just sit and converse at Lake Opeka I d like to see more land for just recreation

Keane thinks the park district should acquire more land We need more land I have no ideas or plans on how to get the land but I m sure that federal funds are available The only land right now that is available is where there is vacant land I would condemn land if it were absolutely necessary All the facts concerning the condemnation would have to be made known to the public first, though

Keane has not had any recreation ex perience but he is confident that his expertise in sales and marketing will improve communications between the board and city residents

"I WILL BE able to make the peolpe aware of what the district does I would like to see the park board meeting minutes published so people would know everything that the board does '

Keane said he would be in favor of cutting down a commissioner's term to four years "because the board would have less opportunity to become static "

Keane has been a resident of Des Plaines since 1952 He is a member of the Chicagoland Homebuilders Association, Northwest Builders, the St Stephens Mens Club, the DePaul University Lettermen's Club and the Lakeview Towers Civic Association

Keane and his wife Gloria, have two children, Timothy and Monica

Benning: Support Youth Facilities

William Benning doesn t think that Des Plaines has taken the youth ' thing ' seriously enough and he would like to see the Des Plaines Park District do something to correct that situation

' The city and the park district should take the responsibility of giving financial backing to facilities for youth ' said Benning who is a candidate for the Des Plaines Park Board of Commissioners

The park district has a terrific program for kids who are interested in athletics he said but those junior and senior high school kids who don't like athletics don t have a place to go The park district just doesn t serve the needs of the non athletic minded children

Benning has been a member of the First Congregational Church youth board for the past three years and has been a volunteer staff member of the First Congregational Church youth board for the last three years and has been a volunteer staff member of the Place for Plan A Youth Drop In Center One of his main interests is working with young people

'Involvement with youth has always been important to both myself and my wife Suzy Benning said "Eventually I d like to see the park district have a place in town for all the youth of the city '

Benning would also like to see an improvement in neighborhood parks ' The concentration has been placed on the larger community parks he said ' where there are pools the little league or some big thing

"THE TOT LOTS get used a lot, too " he continued I would put neighborhood parks on a higher priority The neighborhood parks are getting down The tot lots are always cut from the budget so improvements can be made on the bigger parks The board needs someone to help get action on the tot lots and neighborhood parks

Benning would like to see the park district acquire more land but ' I have no plans on how this could be done I also think we can use the schools a lot more than we have been

For instance Benning said the Golden Agers could meet in the Maine

William Benning

West High School cafeteria or auditorium But the schools are reluctant to let outside groups use the schools on school days because they have to clean it up The park and the schools should work closer

Benning thinks the biggest problem facing the park district is that of land acquisition ' or just keeping the land they have There s always pressure to build on open land

We don t have that much property " he continued, "and any attempt to build on whatever land we have would really have to be needed before I'd let anyone take away park land

"I'd like to see the parks that are already bought — like Blackhawk and Iroquois — I'd like to see something done with them already They should be planted and a ball diamond and playground equipment should be put up "

BENNING, WHO IS a postal supervisor thinks the board needs someone who is interested in what programs are provided by the park district and who the programs reach

' Some opponents use their background in administration and computers as a platform for running The park board has a lawyer and a bookkeeper and experienced people in finance and administration I don't think the park board is so much administrative as it is there to serve the needs of Des Plaines "

Benning and his wife Suzette live at 270 Graceland with their two sons Doug and Danny Benning has been a resident of Des Plaines since 1946

Sherden: Make More Use Of Facilities

The Des Plaines Park District is made for athletic kids said park board candidate Dewey Sherden

And that s not good he said More people should make use of the park district programs and facilities The park district is for the people

Sherden who is a systems engineer with the IBM Corp said he decided to run for the park board when his company moved their offices to Devon and Higgins Road

I saw this as a chance to become more a part of the community Sherden said After I decided the first thing I did was get as much information about (illegible) I could

I FOUND THAT when you talk about participants in the Des Plaines park district s activities you re actually talking about a small percentage of Des Plaines people There s no reason we can t double participation in park activities

Sherden said the park district doesn t publicize its programs well enough

The park district distributes flyers through the schools he said ' I recommend that we use a mailing list and send out the programs bulk rate The board is actually looking into this now he said

Sherden said the biggest problems facing the park district are financial

There is only so much to work with so priorities must be set In my mind the first thing is to expand the district s programs

' THEN WE SHOULD get more facilities —land if you will I would also like to see a central area in the downtown district set off for park district facilities The central southeast section of the city would be the second area where I d like to see a park

He added that the one thing that he is really "hot about is junior leader training which will be starting soon We should develop kids to be leaders in their own programs Sherden said

Sherden commented on the relationship between the park district and the local school districts Any facility in the city belonging to either the school or park board should be used fully by either one The relationship could be expanded though

Sherden said he doesn t think the people of Des Plaines know how much time and real work it takes to be a board commissioner Why don t the people know ' he asked The basic answer is because none tells them I really wonder how to accomplish better dissemination of information on meetings We should send out reports and the agenda should certainly be available

AS FOR THE Place for People which meets at Rand Park Sherden said ' There s no reason why the park district can't give them a permanent home They certainly ought to have a place '

Sherden and his wife Nancy who is a candidate for School Dist 62 s board of education have four children They live at 1019 Sixth Ave They have lived in Des Plaines 15 years

Newport: Primary Function Is Recreation

I believe the Des Plaines Park District s function is to meet the recreational needs of the community Its primary function certainly isn t education or health services

This is the view of William Newport candidate for the Des Plaines park board of commissioners

I think there is a broad program here said Newport of 180 Drake Ln, which goes from the Footlighters to the Golden Agers Before we enter into the cultural field I d like to see if another agency covers it or should

Newport who is an assistant vice president for the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago has lived in Des Plaines since 1947 He and his wife Eunice have three children Timothy Teresa and Cathy

My knowledge of the park district comes from using it " Newport said My family and I have used the park district over a number of years and of course I ve worked with the little league and I manage the midgets baseball team

Newport served as a member of the Maine Township High School Dist 207 board of education for 10 years from 1960 to 1970

I enjoyed working on the Dist 207 board he said I don t do things I don t enjoy but I didn ' want to get into that much work again I don t think the park district demands quite as much time

Newport said he d like to bring communication to the community I learned that on the school board talking to people newspapers asking for a spot on

civic group agendas Working with the school board has also given me experience with taxation funding problems salaries and administration

Any you re always faced with the allocation of resources he continued I m faced with that all the time I can bring my management experience with me onto the job

Newport said he d like to see the park district acquire more land "I'd study this if I were elected There is a big problem getting land though because of the pressure of the population in urban centers

Newport thinks the emphasis of park district programs are on younger people and it s my feeling that this is the proper place for emphasis This is a home and child raising community "

If elected Newoprt said he would look at the sources of revenue available to the park district and note how they are distributed

'I may find that there is some community need that I myself am not aware of and the need may be that of a lot of people It s the duty of the board to get things for the people of the community '

Where Money Buys Happiness

Wilson: More Programs With More Involvement

G Rex Wilson

G Rex Wilson has served on the Des Plaines Park Board of Commissioners for two years and was a member of the Dist 62 Board of Education for nine years

Wilson thinks the Des Plaines Park District programs have been outstanding in the past but would like to see "more programs for more people with more interest and more involvement

Wilson chairman of the board and president of the Des Plaines National Bank thinks he can help the community because of his financial background

'I've had experience in setting policies he said 'and many of the decisions the commissioners must make concern financing of programs and activities construction of new facilities and purchase of equipment

WILSON THINKS the creation of a Northwest Park District would help to create better parks "The citizens would be able to use park districts interchangeably and everyone would be able to use one large general facility"

He added the park board must think of building a new recreational facility for the young people in Des Plaines who are not athletic

Wilson is a trustee for the Place for People youth organization which now meets in the Rand Park fieldhouse and he is active in the Des Plaines Redevelopment Association

He thinks the city's comprehensive plan is not adequate in respect to open space for parks and recreation "It calls for open space Wilson said, "but we need beautification Maybe we should have a large park in the heart of downtown Des Plaines The more green open space we have the better off we'll be"

Wilson thinks that land for the park district will always be necessary "As the population grows and the tax base grows the park district will have more ability to buy property"

WILSON SAID the park board has been doing an outstanding job "The board has been acting in the best interest of the people It is difficult to accomplish much more than what they're already accomplishing"

He added that only through time, will the programs and the district change

Wilson and his wife Marjorie live at 1145 Van Buren They have three children, Mary, Thomas and John

Arrigo: Aid Communication

John Arrigo

John Arrigo would like to become a Des Plaines park board commissioner because he has been "active in many city functions' and is, by his own definition "the type of person who likes to get active"

Arrigo who is a native of Des Plaines, would like to solve the communications problem he thinks the park board now has with Des Plaines residents

"They lack communication with the people' Arrigo said 'People don't know in advance of park district meetings I'd get more publicity even if just to notify people that there will be a meeting and let them see the agenda"

ARRIGO SAID he has attended a couple of the Des Plaines park district board meeings and he worked against the "super complex" (sports complex referendum held in January) proposed by the board because he felt 'it was too expensive for people

"I'm also against any type of building complex" Arrigo said, "which is to attract people from other communities to pay for it"

He thinks the board has acted in the best interest of the people except in this one case of the sports complex

Arrigo said he thinks the park district program is geared to residents of all ages but not everyone knows there are activities and many people don't take advantage of the program

'Older people people without children and high school youths don't know about the programs," Arrigo said, "because only elementary school children are given flyers to take home

"I think mailing twice a year," he added, "would help keep people informed"

ARRIGO DOESN'T think it's feasible to look for more land for the park district "The cost of land makes it impractical If land becomes available it should be looked into" Arrigo continued But we shouldn't go whole hog into looking for land

Arrigo who lives with his wife Janet and their five children at 1871 Ashby owns John's Barber shop in Des Plaines He is also a member of the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors and works for Amherst Realty

College Grant Passage Unlikely: Adlai

Sen. Adlai E. Stevenson III

Sen Adlai E Stevenson III D Ill said Thursday that higher education institutions are facing a financial crisis but it is unlikely that Congress will pass a $6 5 billion federal grant program for college students that he is cosponsoring

Stevenson speaking to the Illinois Financial Aid Administrators at the Arlington Park Towers Hotel said the bill he and Sen Claiborne Pell D R I have introduced would cost $5 5 billion more than a Nixon administration bill that places heavy emphasis on student loans rather than grants

'I don't know if anyone can make any intelligent predictions about what will happen in the 92nd Congress Stevenson said 'But the Nixon administration is already predicting an $11 billion deficit for the next fiscal year and if that prediction is as inaccurate as the last one the deficit could run to $30 billion

Stevenson said budget problems would hamper increased aid to students

HE TOLD the administrators who are responsible for student aid programs at Illinois colleges that he hoped a compromise 'pay as you earn program' could be worked out

"I don't think it's the best answer but I think we ought to consider a program similar to the Yale University plan in which graduates pay a small percentage of their income after graduation he said

He said such a program could last as long as 25 years after a student's graduation

Under the Yale program students with higher earnings after graduation pay more to the university than do students with lower earnings

I think the program could be run on a federal level rather than by the universities Stevenson said And possibly we could allow students to decide if they wanted to seek conventional loans or the pay as you-earn loans I think the pay as you earn program would be more attractive to students expecting to enter lower paying fields after graduation

STEVENSON SAID institutions of higher education are facing a financial crisis and that many of them have responded by passing increased costs on to the students making it more difficult for students to attend college

The real paradox is that our society is demanding more and more education but the rising costs of that education are making it more and more difficult for low and middle income families," he said

"Our institutions of higher learning are becoming citadels for the privileged" Stevenson said

He said access to higher education is rapidly being determined by family income rather than intellectual ability

Stevenson said most families hoping to send their children to college need financial assistance and that the average cost to send a student to college is 18 per cent of the nation's median family income — higher than annual tax payments

Oakton College: Elections '71

Stories By Leon Shure

Loska Has Kept Close To Issues

Stephen Loska of Des Plaines is a scientist and when he speaks about his candidacy for the Oakton Community College board, he talks with the assurance of someone who has done his research on issues.

Loska, 49, a well known figure in the movement to create the junior college district that has become Oakton, has kept in constant touch with the school and its board - attending board meetings, leading a community opinion study, watching the issues.

He ran in the first trustee election, and he missed election by about 400 votes. In that election six Des Plaines candidates were among the more than 40 who sought election.

Now he is the only Des Plaines resident among four candidates for two board seats.

LOSKA FEELS HE has the interest and the qualifications to serve on the Oakton board. But the issue that has been the focus of his campaign is representation.

The State Junior College Act states that junior colleges shall be responsive to community needs and be a service to the community.

Loska feels that Des Plaines ought to be represented on the Oakton Board. At present five members of the Oakton board are from Niles Township, and two are from Park Ridge. None are from Des Plaines.

Stephen Loska

He believes it is in the best interests of Oakton college, its students and residents of both townships that there be balanced representation on this board," Loska said.

Des Plaines is the second largest municipality in the district, and it's residents have interests and desires different from residents in other parts of Oakton's district because of social, political and economic patterns, he said.

THE PRINCIPALS of democratic government representation and the positive value of blending diverse ideas, are violated, Loska said.

His election is unusual. Loska said because in Maine Township school board elections caucuses are formed, and candidates are endorsed on a geographic basis. He said his attempts to create an Oakton Caucus in which a candidate specifically from Des Plaines might be endorsed received no positive response from Niles groups, or Maine Township school caucuses.

He said he did not want to cite specific cases in which Des Plaines representation would have made a difference, or in which the Des Plaines point of view was not represented. He said he would rather concentrate on future issues.

He was critical of the board's handling of a controversy over the student newspaper, and he said that not enough had been done to gather community opinion, or to involve the community in Oakton.

He said that the issue involving the student newspaper was not one of censorship because students have the right to present their views, if they act within the law and good taste.

But he felt the taxpayers should not have to support "the kind of trash and obscenity" which have appeared in the newspaper.

HE SAID Mrs. Doris Sopkin, incumbent board member who is seeking reelection, spoke in praise of the student editors, "but had little to say about the newspaper as the controversy grew."

Loska, who was co-chairman of a committee which prepared an assessment and polling of community opinion about what the junior college would need, said that the board, though it has done a good job, has not done enough to continually assess community needs.

He said local community talent should be used to prepare long-range plans for the school. He would like to see resident committees on many aspects of Oakton activities — cultural and academic.

Loska said that Oakton's student body represents a cross-section of the community, and he does not feel that student activism will be a problem. He does not feel students will disrupt the operation of the school.

He praised and endorsed board member Griff MacDonald, of Park Ridge, who is seeking reelection. Of his two other opponents, both from Skokie he said, "I am particularly opposed to any candidates from Skokie who would perpetuate representation from one narrow corridor."

HE FEELS HIS interest and experience more than offsets the experience of an incumbent candidate. He feels the board lacks in scientific and technical knowledge which he feels he could provide.

Loska is a senior scientist and group product leader for a major food manufacturer and processor in Glenview. He was a teacher early in his career at Wright Junior College in Chicago.

He has a bachelor of Science degree from DePaul University, and a Master of Science degree from Kansas State University.

He has been a member of the Maine West High School Parent Teacher Council and of the PTA's at Algonquin Junior High School, and Central School.

Loska was co-chairman of a subcommittee of the Maine Township Community College study committee, an offshoot of the American Association of University Women. This committee did studies and supported creation of the junior college district.

Before becoming a Des Plaines resident, Loska was director of radiological civil defense for the city of Minneapolis.

He and his wife, Elba, have seven children ranging in age from 9 to 19.

King Pushes For Higher Learning

The phone on Sherwin "Larry" King's desk is almost always ringing. He heads the largest academic division at Harper, a junior college in Palatine.A chart near his desk lists the number of students in the social science department — 4,762, "at least triple the number of students at Oakton," he said.

Larry King, who has been active in junior college affairs at Harper and throughout the state has doubts about Oakton. Among other state junior colleges, "the impression of Oakton, is that it is two-bit."

When asked what he liked about Oakton, he said it was hard to think of anything.

KING HAS BEEN interested in Oakton since he was a member of a group supporting the creation of a Niles-Maine junior college district. He made 15 speeches in support of the referendum.

He has not talked to any board member at Oakton. He has attended several board meetings, as a resident and taxpayer. He once wrote Mrs. Doris Sopkin, Oakton trustee whom he knew from the prereferendum days, offering his services to the school, but he says, he received no reply.

King knows Richard Jordan, Oakton's dean of faculties, and King also talked to students during an open house.

He does not feel there is "conflict of interest" in a Harper official seeking the Oakton board seat. He is a resident of the district, a taxpayer, and his 15-year old son will probably attend Oakton, he said.

King is running because of his "concern for the quality of higher education in Maine and Niles Township. I feel a district such as this should provide, and is capable of providing, the highest level of college instruction, in line with the will of the community," and in line with the high school districts, considered by many to be the best in the state.

HE FEELS THAT his being a resident of Skokie would not prevent him from representing residents of other parts of the district. What is important, he said, is his "total commitment to higher education."

LARRY KING

King feels he can bring an expertise about junior colleges to the Oakton board. He feels he can help establish high quality standards for curriculum, instruction and administration.

He also feels Oakton has not been responsive to community needs, and he has some doubts that Oakton will be able to achieve accreditation and state approval of its vocational programs.

The candidate cited the student newspaper controversy as an example of the school not being responsive to the community, and of students running the school.

He said this endangered all of higher education in the state, because the legislature is looking for an excuse for cutting funds and to begin "ten years of repression."

HE DOES NOT ADVOCATE censorship, which he defines as telling students what they can print. He feels the Oakton administration, should have taken the students aside and explained to them what their responsibility to the community is. This is what Harper did in a similar situation, early in the four year history of the school, he said.

King did not know if the Oakton student paper had a supervisor in its early stages. He feels the Oakton board acted well after the newspapers were printed.

He learned of the newspaper controversy from his neighbors, who he said were "appalled" by the alleged pornography of the newspaper. He said he could not rely on the community newspaper reporting of the controversy.

King said Harper has had controversies over speakers and student activities. He believes in academic freedom, and feels Harper president Dr. Robert Lahti has been responsive to the community interest, as he sees it.

He feels that students should participate on many levels of school government, especially in those areas that directly affect their lives, like curriculum. He did not know how Oakton students are allowed to participate in Oakton government.

THE CANDIDATE feels that Oakton students are similar to Harper students, who attended the first year. "But the new campus is attracting better students," he said.

He feels Oakton has not been projecting a "positive image" and has not been doing a good job of "selling" itself to the public.

If the school had been doing a good job, the public would not have been upset about the school newspaper, he said.

He said the number of incompleted courses at Oakton might affect its accreditation.

King said no faculty organization exists, and that the school will have difficulty when teacher contract negotiations begins. Teachers should negotiate their contracts, not draw up salaries individually as they do now. "What will happen when there are a few hundred teachers?"

He said as a trustee he would be available to students, and would go to Oakton during certain specified hours each week. He would encourage more surveys of community needs.

He would be available to community adults and encourage development of adult programs, lectures, seminars, and cultural events. He feels, like his colleague Michael Bartos, a Harper official, who is a Maine Township High School Dist. 207 trustee, that Oakton should not "try to take over" the Maine township adult program.

HARPER HAS BEEN able to set up adult programs without taking over the Dist. 214 program.

He feels he could aid in an area he feels Oakton has been weak —cooperation and coordination with other schools. He said Oakton had been invited to a junior college meeting at Harper, and although 32 state junior colleges were represented, Oakton wasn't.

King has been active in the junior college movement. He recently helped the University of Illinois in its coordination and cooperation efforts with junior colleges.

King, 37, and his wife Joyce, have two children, Lawrence, 15 and Susan 12.

He has taught at Harper for four years, and has served for two years as a department head. He will ask to return toteaching soon, and will edit a book on U.S history, he said.

He is a member of several professional associations, including the American Historical Association, the Organization of American Historians, and the Illinois, Academy of Social Science. He is a visiting lecturer at the University of Illinois, Chicago Circle.

MacDonald: A Stickler For Details

Griff MacDonald likes to nail down details.

The vice chairman of the Oakton Community College board of trustees comes to subcommittee meetings, rolls up his sleeves, checks the pages of facts and figures, looks the architect in the eye, and tries to really find out if there is an easier or more economical way of doing things.

MacDonald, of Park Ridge, a prominent leader in the Maine Township movement to organize the junior college district that has resulted in the creation of Oakton, feels that Maine Township and Des Plaines might need representation on the Oakton board.

He feels that discussion about the Oakton student newspaper is a "tempest in a teapot," blown out of proportion by candidates who could find nothing else to criticize. He also feels it was a case of administration laxness.

AND HE IS seeking reelection, so he can "finish the job."

MacDonald said that Maine Township has been adequately represented by LeRoy Wauck and himself, both residents of Park Ridge.

"But I'm a firm believer in the one man-one vote principal. We should achieve a more equitable geographic distribution. I would hope someday that an Oakton caucus would be created to embody and protect community interests so that candidates could be chosen on the basis of qualifications and geography.

MacDonald hopes that Des Plaines opinion has not been slighted because no board member is now a Des Plaines resident.

It is difficult to know, he said, because he is not a Des Plaines resident. He has tried to make himself available to hear Des Plaines opinion, he said.

HE SAID HE could not officially endorse any of the other three candidates, including Stephen Loska of Des Plaines.

GRIFF MACDONALD

"I think all three are qualified."

MacDonald informally checked Maine Township school board caucuses to see if an Oakton caucus could be set up but no caucus was created. "No one had the time," he said. "It has to be a grass roots effort." He feels that someday a caucus will be created.

About the school newspaper, he said, "personally, I was not happy with it." He sees it as an incidence of laxness by the administration.

MacDonald feels that comments about the newspaper have been overemphasized and "because its hard to find a campaign issue."

As a board member, he feels he expressed community opinion on the quality of the newspaper. "I haven't heard any positive comment about the paper," he said.

The issue has not been censorship, he said, but the "perimeters of propriety and good taste.

"It is a question of right versus responsibility. As long as freedom of expression doesn't infringe on other individual rights, fine."

A collective effort has been made to give guidance about community response, and he feels there will be a rise in the level in the quality and professionalism of the paper.

HE FEELS THE board shouldn't interfere in academic freedom. Opinions can be "right, left or down the middle," by individuals at the school, and the board shouldn't get involved, unless "something is totally contrary to policy, procedure or good common sense."

He does not feel student activism will be a problem at Oakton, because surveys nationwide indicate that junior college students show little student activism. Living at home and being under some parental guidance, he said, discourages student activism, he said.

Students have a responsibility to conduct themselves in an orderly, reasonable and prudent fashion, within the guidelines of the staff and trustees, he said.

The board and administration have made adequate provisions for students to become involved in school government, and sufficient opportunities are available for students to communicate their opinions.

ON OAKTON'S innovative educational program, MacDonald said the board had acted on programs only after receiving in-depth research and rationale from the administration.

He isn't in favor of "completely obliterating what hs historically and traditionallly sound," but, "we have to be open-minded.

"We would be making a mistake to create a totally traditional school. The community would be disappointed." The high level of the high school districts have encouraged residents to expect the same kind of "high calibre" treatment for college undergraduates.

MacDonald said he wanted to be reelected so he could finish the job he started in 1968, when he first got involved in the junior college movement.

He is chairman of the site acquisition ad hoc committee that is seeking to establish a permanent campus. He feels nothing will be built within the next five years, and much has to be done in planning.

He feels Oakton has a good physical plant in the four buildings which make up the school's interim campus in Morton Grove. The administrative staff is good, he said, and the faculty is strong.

THE SCHOOL has received positive, good comments from outside groups, like the Illinois Junior College board, but the ultimate test of success is the approval of those who use the college.

He feels there may be pressure soon by the community to allow a bigger student population than the school is ready to serve.

MacDonald, 35, was co-chairman of the Niles-Maine Community College Committee, which worked for the creation of the junior college district.

MacDonald is an insurance executive. He was on the faculty of Notre Dame High School, Niles, and was head football coach of a Peoria high school.

He is a graduate of Lewis College, Lockport, and has done graduate work at DePaul University.

He and his wife, Mary Love, have five children. MacDonald is a member of the Park Riege Chamber of Commerce and Kiwanis Club. He is also president of a grade School PTA in Park Ridge.

Doris Sopkin: Apathy Is A Problem

Doris Sopkin is the Oakton Community College board member who is almost always at the school preparing reports and doing research before board meetings.

A small, brown-haired woman, Mrs. Sopkin, 42, speaks with enthusiasm about Oakton, and with obvious pride in the school's progress.

Mrs. Sopkin, board secretary, and the only woman trustee, feels she can be a representative of all the residents of the Oakton district.

She feels the nucleus of an innovative junior college which will serve community needs has been created, and students, teachers and state junior college officials have shown their approval.

As a Skokie resident living in Niles Township facing two candidates from Maine Township, Mrs. Sopkin feels that she will be able to represent the interests of all in the Niles-Maine Junior College Dist. 535.

Mrs. Sopkin, who was one of the early backers of the movement to form a junior college district in the two townships, said the interests and desires of each section of the district have not been slighted.

"IT HAS BEEN part of the college's duty to unite the two townships. The board has served the community as a whole."

She does not feel that Des Plaines is significantly different, socially or economically, from the rest of the Oakton district.

As board secretary, she has kept in close touch with Maine Township High School district 207, school counselors and civic officials, she said. She has always been available to talk to parent groups, and has kept contact through her active membership of the Skokie Valley Council of PTA's.

Being the only woman on the board, she feels she has represented the women in the district, and helped to make the board more responsive to the academic and vocational needs of women.

On the progress of the school and its responsiveness to community needs, Mrs. Sopkin points out that the state junior college board has given the new junior college a high rating. Indications from the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools are that Oakton may receive full accreditation in less the time than most junior colleges, she said.

SHE EXPRESSED confidence in the school's administration and faculty, and said their greatest accomplishment is the creation of a school where "students feel comfortable and are able to learn."

When asked if too much student freedom existed at Oakton, she said that they have as much freedom as they have in their parents' homes. There has been no student vandalism, she said.

The problems at Oakton has not been student activism, but student apathy. Most students at Oakton did not do well academically in high school, and few were leaders, she said.

The goal at Oakton has been "to bring the best out of each student," which is what a community college is all about, she said.

About the student newspaper, she feels the administration was correct in setting up a publications board to aid and guide the student editors.

SHE SAID the student editors had never received journalism training. The early issues reported very little about Oakton, because very little was happening in the early stages of the school's first semester, she said.

Community newspaper reports stressed the negative aspects of the paper, she said.

The student newspaper was not financed through resident tax funds, as has been reported in community newspapers. It was financed by students through student activity fees.

The student editors "put out the time and effort and were criticized for it. It was a learning experience, and they learned from their mistakes. By and large, I think the result was positive," she said.

Mrs. Sopkin, who was a grade school teacher, said she had never seen as much enthusiasm in a faculty as she has seen at Oakton. Students say their teachers "really care," she said.

Indications of teacher response to Oakton are the 1,000 applications already filed for 60 teaching positions next year, she said.

SOME OF THE innovations at Oakton should have happened at most junior colleges 10 years ago. She said that teaching has become the primary goal, and students are benefitting from it.

On the possibility of combining adult education programs with high school districts, she feels cooperation between districts is possible and local control will not be diminished.

For the future, she would like more courses, seminars and lectures for senior citizens, as well as day care facilities for housewives who want to take courses at Oakton.

She favors long range planning for the school and more community surveys of community needs.

Mrs. Sopkin said she is seeking reelection because of her continued interest in education, the community and young people.

She feels her research has given her knowledge about junior colleges in the state and nation. She feels her reelection will help to ensure continuity of present programs.

As board secretary, Mrs. Sopkin has served on several board committees, and has done research on many topics including transportation problems. She has the best attendance record of any board member, and she spends up to three days a week on junior college research. She also attends many junior college conferences.

She became interested in the junior college when she helped PTA groups in their support of the junior college referendum.

She is a native of Gary, Indiana, and she received her bachelor's degree from the University of Wisconsin.

She does substitute teaching in Skokie and teaches a Sunday school course in Evanston.

Her husband, Louis, is an electrical engineer. She has three daughters, Barbara, 14, Sandy, 12 and Carol, 10.

Four candidates, including two incumbents, are competing for two Oakton Community College board posts. The school board election is April 10.

Candidates are Stephen Loska, Jr., 49, of 1694 Van Buren, Des Plaines; Griff MacDonald, 35, of 401 N. Ashland, Park Ridge; Doris Sopkin, 42, of 8441 Kedvale, Skokie, and Sherwin "Larry" King, 37, of 5018 Pratt, Skokie.

Dr. Middleton Granted Continuance

Dr. James Middleton was granted a continuance in hearing proceedings yesterday by a medical examining committee from the Illinois Department of Registration and Education.

Dr. Middleton, a Des Plaines area physician indicted by a Cook County grand jury on charges of deviate sexual assault, was granted a continuance to May 6 on charges placed against him by the department for unethical practice and deception in applying for his Illinois medical license.

Dr. Middleton's attorney, Edward Genson, was granted the continuance on the grounds that Middleton recently hired him and he needed time to get acquainted with the case.

ACCORDING TO Edward Price, attorney for the department, Gensen made if very clear that this would be the last continuance he would request. "He said he would be prepared for the May 6 hearing and we will subpoena our witnesses," Price said.

Dr. Middleton is scheduled to appear in criminal court today before Judge Robert Downing. He is facing charges of deviate sexual assault originally placed against him by Cook County Sheriff's police who raided his office at 969 Elmhurst Rd. in unincorporated Des Plaines last Dec. 1.

Dr. Middleton was indicted last February on two separate charges of deviate sexual assault on two of his women patients.

Dr. Middleton is also facing federal charges of illegal possession of explosives found in his office Feb 12 by federal agents. No new action has been taken on those charges.

Antique Pistols Reported Missing

Three antique pistols have disappeared from Schneller's Furniture Store, 16 N. Vail Ave., Arlington Heights.

The pistols had been on display along with some sabers and other antique weapons and were gone when store owner Joseph Schneller returned from his vacation March 20.

Schneller told Arlington Heights police none of his employes recalled noticing the pistols for at least three or four weeks. They hung near the door of the store.

The pistols, Schneller said are a German percussion pistol, dated 1840, a German flintlock pistol from the 17th century and a dueling pistol. The pistols are reproductions and were made in Austria.

Schneller told police he valued the three pistols at more than $500.

People Apathetic? 'Just Busy,' Candidate Says

7 Turn Out To Hear 4 Campaigners

Seven people went to hear the four school board candidates in Elk Grove Township Dist 59 speak and answer questions at Holmes Junior High School in Mount Prospect Wednesday night

The audience didn't even fill one row in the school's multi-purpose room. And, out of the seven who attended, one was a current board member and four were members of a committee working for passage of the bond referendum for a new junior high school

"The people aren't apathetic; they're just busy," said Albert Domanico, one of the candidates vying for the two seats open in the April 10 elections

Despite the small audience, Domanico, Erwin Poklacki, Theodore Staddler and incumbent Allen Sparks answered questions from the audience

Sparks, 908 Spruance, Des Plaines, listed his qualifications and accomplishments as a current board member

"We have eliminated part of a budget deficit and reduced borrowing without affecting educational programs," he said "I would like to continue to help improve cost efficiency and educational programs."

SPARKS LISTED other goals including better communication between the parents and community, increasing the experience of the teaching staff and helping "the junior high population problem."

Domanico, who served on the board for 16 months to fill a vacancy, said as a board member he would want to determine if the district utilizes its staff at maximum efficiency." He also said "more program budgeting to find out where the money is spend specifically" is needed

Filling the currently vacant position of an assistant superintendent to handle curriculum is one of Domanico's goals for the district

Domanico, 7 Grange Pl., Elk Grove Village, also said he would like to see "a smoother transition for sixth graders coming to the junior high."

Staddler, 1032 Brantwood Ave., Elk Grove Village, said the district needs "a creative faculty one that understands that how a student learns is more important than what he learns."

He said it is not necessary to spend more money but that "changing the attitude of personnel in the district is what is needed. He called the present attitude of teachers, administration and the superintendent "insensitive to student need and experimentation."

POKLACKI, WHO ran for the board want to do something relevant and perwants to be on the board "because I want to do something relevant and eprtinent in education.

"I would begin contributing at the first meeting," said the candidate of 1223 Fernandex St., Arlington Heights. "My background as a scientist has taught me how to think logically. I am my own man."

Poklacki said he wanted to bring "openness, responsiveness, innovation and love back on the board of education."

The candidates gave their views on merit pay.

Sparks said he believed in the merit system "if a teacher is doing an outstanding job."

"I am in the middle ground," Domanico admitted. "I do support performance contracts but want evaluation tools that the profession agrees with."

Staddler "strongly backs merit pay: It works in industry. It can work in the educational field."

"IT SOUNDS like something we should have," said Poklacki, "But the teachers would probably say they would not want it because the teaching profession is unified for the common good."

The candidates were also asked what they would do as board members if the referendum April 10 for money to build a new junior high school was voted down.

"If it was voted down," said Pocklaki, "I would restrict the junior high to seventh and eighth grade only. That would put more kids, then, in the kindergarten through fifth grade schools."

Domanico said he would favor a split shift but "hopes the community passes the needed referendum."

Sparks said he had no alternative solution.

Staddler said the district would then have o consider the possibilities of six-day week, a longer school year or shifts.

None of the candidates felt Dist. 59 was ready for a 12-month school year.

Slight Tax Hike May Accompany School Issue

by JUDY MEHL

A slight increase in taxes may accompany the approval of the $2.3 million junior high school referendum April 10 in Elk Grove Township Elementary School Dist. 59 school officials said yesterday.

Officials had been quoted earlier on several occasions that there would be no increase if the referendum passed.

However, it would cost the average homeowner a $3 increase in the tax rate in 1972 and 1973, the officials said.

The school is proposed for a 5.4 acre site on Janice Avenue in Des Plaines, across the street from South Park, and near St. Zachary Catholic Church and school.

THE SCHOOL IS proposed to house the increased junior high school population estimated at least at 750 students before 1975.

In early March, when the district announced there would be a referendum, no schedule of bond and interest payments had been determined

In an effort to provide more definite figures, a schedule of costs through 1985 were calculated this week.

It shows that the total tax rate in the bond and interest fund will be increasing in 1972 and 1973 without passage of the referendum

This would mean the taxpayer with a $30,000 home will be paying $3 more for that fund for those years if the country's economy remains about the same as it is now

After 1973 the total tax rate in this fund drops rapidly and ends by 1985 without the construction of more schools in the district

IF TAXPAYERS approve construction of the junior high school, the tax rate for the bond and interest fund for 1972 and 1973 would increase three cents on $100 of assessed valuation, or about another $3 for the average homeowner. This would be out of a total estimated elementary school tax for one year of $252 for the nine tax funds.

After 1973 the tax rate will decline rapidly, even if the referendum is approved, according to estimates by Arthur Perry, finance director.

Without referendum approval, a taxpayer with a $30,000 home will be paying $50 in the bond and interest fund in 1971, $52 in 1972, $55 in 1973, $51 in 1974 and $47 in 1975. In following years the taxes continue to decrease, he said.

IF THE ECONOMY picks up, taxpayers will be paying less, Perry said.

Harper Receives Accreditation

Harper College in Palatine has gained full accreditation from the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools

The North Central Assn announced yesterday in Chicago Harper was among five two-year colleges in a 19-state area to gain full accreditation, according to UPI yesterday

The accreditation concludes a six-year process for the college, which was created in 1965 and began holding classes in 1967

Harper first applied for accreditation in 1965 and 1967 it was granted "correspondent" status by North Central In April 1969 Harper was granted "candidacy" status prior to the college's development of a self evaluation

In January, a team of six educators from the midwest held a two-day examination of the college with the college's self examination study as a guide.

The next step was for Harper president Robert Lahti to review the results of the study and to respond to any further questions from the team

Accreditation has been a major goal for Harper officials, as full accreditation means automatic acceptance of Harper courses by colleges and universities across the United States

The college's self-examination study covered Harper's history, organization, resources, curriculum, faculty morale, student achievement, student life, supporting services to the instructional program and the college's effect on the community

Lahti will officially announce the accreditation today at Harper, located at Algonquin and Roselle Roads in Palatine

Senior Center Plan Tentative

Though space is not yet available, the Mount Prospect Park District has already drawn up tentative plans for its senior citizen drop-in center.

A stove, refrigerator and sink will be installed in one of the rooms next week, but most of the work cannot be started until park officials move into new offices at Lions Recreation Center. Officials estimate the move will not be made until June. The center will be located in what is now the district offices

The center will consist of four rooms at 600 See-Gwun Ave. Plans include a kitchen area, a sitting and reading room, a craft and sewing room, a game room and a bathroom. The center will also have a television set.

Dick Julison, director of building and maintenance, drew up the plans. No architect will be involved because the only structural change needed is an extra doorway.

"The plans are our idea of a drop-in center," said Tom Cooper, park director. "When we get out of here is when we'll really start the work." Cooper said then the committee members of Young At Heart Club, the district's senior citizen group, will be called in to help select equipment.

THE KITCHEN equipment, valued at approximately $1,000, was donated by the Illinois Range Co. office in Mount Prospect. Other furnishings for the center will be paid for with park district funds. However, Paul Caldwell, assistant park director, said any donations would be appreciated.

The idea to provide a center for senior citizens came in December. Park district officials wanted a center for the 70 members of the Young At Heart Club that meets every Monday. Caldwell said the district wanted to provide a place for them that would be open more than once a week. Hours have not yet been set for the center.

The district then invited the Extensioneers, another local senior citizen group, to consider the possibility of sharing the center. However, members of that group are worried about transportation to the community center and about the rooms being too small.

The center will remain under the jurisdiction and be staffed by the park district. It will be open to all senior citizens living in the park district, which includes a major portion of Mount Prospect, the eighth ward in Des Plaines, and small secions of Arlington Heights and Elk Grove Village.

SUNDAY'S NOT THE ONLY day the apartment is open. Friends are constantly in and out — to eat, watch television, or just rap.

A STARRED SCARF covers a lampshade and keeps the light dim in Bill's corner of the dormitory style sleeping quarters, where mattresses are on the floor and comic books paper the walls.

Bachelors' Pad Reflects Their Life Style

Comic book covers paper the walls in a section of the dormitory style bedroom. Hundreds of different colored carpet square samples are tacked down on the floors. Books and records compete for space on shelves, tables and corners. A monstrous blond wood television squats atop an equally monstrous chest. Suburbia? Young suburbia, anyway.

This particular crash pad — one of hundreds in the northwest suburbs — is tucked away on the second floor and attic of a large old house in a quiet residential neighborhood in Des Plaines. It has been in existence as a pad for more than a year. Occupants have come and gone with eight living there at one time and three there now.

THE FURNITURE IS old, but clean and functional. "They're donations from the world," grinned Sesu, senior resident of the group. "It's from second hand stores, garbage days, some is our own and some is from others who have lived here."

A red bathtub with feet greets you as you walk through the front door. Surrounding the bathroom fixtures and a large chest is the first taste of psychedelia in the apartment. Green, blue and yellow blend and swirl around pictures, signs, jokes and posters.

The kitchen is like most any other kitchen unless you consider the wall decor. George Washington gazes down from above the refrigerator; the Taj Mahal and Declaration of Independence hang above the stove; over the table is a full-sized American flag and next to it, a sign proclaiming "Open on Sunday."

ANN LANDERS' COLUMNS combine with W. C. Fields, the Beatles, anti-war and other posters as wall cover in the living room. Look up and instead of ceiling there is a billowy parachute.

A steep, open stairway leads to the sleeping area upstairs. The garret-like room is quartered by shelves, dressers, flags and blankets, giving its inhabitants some semblance of privacy. Mattresses rest on the floor rather than on frames, and each cubbyhole reflects the personality of its occupant.

A stereo, hooked up to 14 speakers and the "guts of a Wurlitzer jukebox," is the focal point of Harry "Bill" Cox's corner.

"Bill provides us with the basic necessities of life — food, car repair and music," agreed his roommates. Bill accepts the title of cook, mechanic and sound man.

A NATIVE OF California, Bill moved to Chicago with his family at 16. At 19 he enlisted in the Air Force, served in Vietnam, attained the rank of sergeant and was discharged at 22.

Bill attends Harper Junior College in Palatine, a pre-law student in his senior year. His future? Social work.

Crossed sabres, face masks, a ceremonial robe and hundreds of books surround Francis Gregg Stafford's niche. He is the household's self-described chief resident mtyhologist, historian and money earner.

One of four sons of an upper middle class Glenview family, Gregg was raised in New England and moved to Arlington Heights in his teens. A star swimmer in high school, Gregg graduated and took to California, living as a street hippie for several months.

THREE YEARS OF COLLEGE were followed by a year as an "up and coming young executive" in the business world. Disillusioned with his establishment work, Gregg got a job as an apprentice welder.

Now Gregg works as an orderly at a local hospital, seeking medicine as his career In his free hours he writes and intends to continue in both fields simultaneously

Incense burners, religious artifacts and art fill Sesu Hayaknwa's quarters His peers refer to the quiet Sesu as the spiritual and visual coordinator, artist and dishwasher

His background is a low-income broken home in Chicago his teens were spent as a friendless, introverted bookworm Sesu decided to enlist in the Marine Corps the day John Kennedy was assassinated He served four years – 14 months in Vietnam — was decorated five times and discharged as a non-commissioned officer

"I WORKED ODD JOBS, trying to adapt to society after the Marines," he said.

His life changed when he worked at the Psychic Research Foundation in Chicago and became a staff member of the Theosophical Society in America "It made me more harmonious with the world," he said.

Sesu also is a student at Harper with a major in the theater He plans on going into the arts

Their life style" "Basic survival," smiled Gregg "It's more than living together on a physical level — there is a spiritual togetherness "

Each of them has participated in the "real" world, and each has chosen to live as they are today

"I joined the Air Force for patriotic reasons " Bill said "I got out because I could no longer accept or condone a huge organization that was proud to consider itself the greatest killing machine on the face of the earth "

"I BECAME DISENCHANTED with the business world and decided to live the way I wanted to live," Gregg said "I decided not to compromise myself anymore "

"I want to make America smile," said Sesu

Their home, their life style and their philosophy tie together They sum it up We can allow everybody to be and do what they want to do We want the same for ourselves.

The Potting Shed

by Mary B. Good

More people are growing herbs than you can shake a thyme at.

There's a challenge to studying, growing, and using herbs for flavoring, perfumery, or medicine.

The Chinese administered herbs as cold and flu remedies . . . the tops for head miseries, the middle for chest aches, the roots for pains in the extremities. (Before Excedrin was, ginger was!)

Old Chinese proverb say: "All of man's diseases enter mouth and all his mistakes fly out of it."

Fish and onions were always considered a pair for gastronomic as well as hygienic reasons, since inland waters of China were not very pure. Garlic was considered to have a germicidal effect.

MAGIC HERBAL POTIONS were used to cure illness because people knew little of medicine. That's how witches, medicine men and their ilk got to be big.

The practice of brewing repulsive mixtures as medicine gave us much food for stories. Remember MacBeth? When Socrates wanted to fly out on his dramatic last trip he chose biennial hemlock. (Socrates was probably the first well-known drug abuse case.)

If you had lived in pioneer days, you might have made medicine from gingseng or asafetida (an herb that smells like garlic). A pinch of herbs and a whole lot of superstition were the order of the day.

A rattlesnake heart was supposed to cure epilepsy. A dead spider hung around the neck spooked ague. If they didn't scare a person to death, they cured them

SOME HERBS ARE said to have carminative effects like fennel, anise, and basil. Sage is a nervine and also makes an astringent. (The owner of a Greenwich Village shop called Aphrodisia asserts that she washes her hair with a mixture of sage, camomile and rosemary.) Thyme is a tonic: marjoram, a stimulant

What could be more self-indulgent than a rose-geranium bath? Or a long soak in a tub of flowers? It you grow your own rosemary, lemon balm, lemon verbena, sweet marjoram, lavender or bergamot, you can enjoy a harem-type scented bath.

Mrs. H. R. Ritchie of Palatine, the local herb lady, mentions Stewart Smith, a Grayslake seedsman, is a source of extensive seed varieties. Mr. Smith is located at Route 120 and Haynesville Road.

HERBS are the lazy gardener's helpmate. They don't even like a real rich soil. If given such a soil, they'll provide large leaves, but little fragrance and flavor. Don't fertilize. All herbs ask is good drainage (they hate "wet feet"), sun and alkaline soil.

Mix some well-broken plaster, crumbed eggshells or wood ashes into the herb bed, together with a little bone meal and well-rotted manure Then coast along on the organic goodies without interference.

Before planting herb seeds, soak them for several hours or overnight to speed germination.

Another good trick is to mix the little seeds with dry sand for better seed distribution. Who needs thinning? You have enough work to do!

Those herbs most frequently used also happen to be the easiest to grow. And that's a comfort.

Dear Dorothy You help so many maybe you can help me with my problem I have a long suede coat which had to be packed and stored for awnde Now it is full of wrinkles and the cleaner I contacted did not want to attempt to remove the wrinkles I've been told one should never use steam on suede Can you help" Margaret Luth

Your cleaner sounds reliable not wanting to try something he's not equipped to do If your coat is clean you can press out the wrinkles by placing heavy brown paper between the iron and the surface of the suede The iron should be on the lowest setting and never use steam Press one panel at a time constantly moving the iron to avoid overheating if the coat needs cleaning find a cleaner who does this kind of work and the wrinkles will be taken care of in the renovating job

Dear Dorothy Is there any way to remove the shell from hard-boiled eggs without pulling or tearing the egg to pieces" - Mrs W L Turner

When the eggs have been boiled the proper length of time, pour off the hot water and immediately plunge them into cold water As the water warms up and you add more cold water, give the eggs a little crack or two so some of the water gets in under the shell If the eggs are very fresh, you're going to have to struggle a bit Fresh eggs are wonderful for soft boiling but a bit of a problem in removing the shells when hard boiled

Repeat Of 1970? That's What Poll Says

FORECAST FOR 1971: a repeat of 1970

Herald area baseball coaches and sports writers were polled for their Major League predictions and the final outcome had the same four teams winning their respective divisions — Pittsburgh in the National League East, Cincinnati in the National West, Baltimore in the American League East and Minnesota in the American West.

The playoffs were also predicted to go the same route as 1970 with Cincinnati defeating Pittsburgh and Baltimore downing Minnesota.

In the World Series, once again it will be Baltimore over Cincinnati.

Or so say the area experts.

Filling otu ballots for the poll were high school coaches Roy Schodtler of Palatine, Jerry Cunningham of Conant, Terry Gellinger of Fremd, Larry Pohlman of Prospect, Fran Somers of Arlington, Larry Peddy of Elk Grove, Tom Seidel of Forest View, Ron DeBolt of Wheeling, Steve Chernicky of Hersey, Pat Mahoney of St. Viator, Al Carstens of Maine West, Herb Ward of Maine East, Jim Bachman of Notre Dame, Dave Kennedy of Maine North and Roy Hascup of Schaumburg.

American Legion baseball personnel participating were Lloyd Meyer of Arlington Heights, Bob Grybash of Palatine, Larry Nomellini of Logan Square and Gerry Elisco of Wheeling.

Des Plaines Mid-Teen coaches Ed Haerle, Vic Hanson, Bill Newport, Jon Townes and Adam Warren participated as did Clete Hinton of Harper College, the only pollster to pick all four division winners correctly in 1970's poll.

Herald staff writers Bob Frisk, Jim Cook, Phil Kurth, Paul Logan, Keith Reinhard, Larry Everhart and yours truly took part as did part-time staffers Marv Prellberg, Jim Stuart, Dwight Essau, Greg Shevell and Jay Jenni. Political editor Ed Murnane, who fills in on the sports department time-to-time, also made out a ballot.

Each member of the voting board was asked to predict the divisional places and the winners in certain individual categories.

Though the consensus had the same four divisional winners of 1970 repeating, the poll brought out many interesting aspects.

Of the 24 teams in Major League baseball, no less than 19 received first place votes. In the American League Eastern Division all six teams were awarded first place votes.

Many of those polled certainly did not agree on how some teams would fare in 1971. Nine teams received votes for every position in the standings, one through six

In the individual performer voting there were many interesting choices. In some categories the voting was close and in others individuals ran away with the honor.

The Pittsburgh Pirates were pegged to win the National League East but not without a tough tussle with the Cubs. Most of the voters were impressed with Pittsburgh's potent hitting and depth but some did express doubt about the Pirate pitching staff.

Nearly everyone agreed that this is the year that the Cubs have to make their big move because age is catching up with many of their stars. Chicago's hitting was respected but the bullpen, according to the ballots, left much to be desired.

New York, with strong pitching and defense but a weak offensive attack, was picked for third with St. Louis coming in fourth. Philadelphia was tabbed for fifth place iwth many voters expressing the view that the Phils are the team of the future. Montreal was slated for last.

Cincinnati's Big Red Machine was picked to win the National League West by a comfortable margin despite the loss of Bobby Tolan. It should be noted that most of the ballots were filled out before the injury to Lee May.

If it comes down to pitching, Cincinnati may be a question mark and Los Angeles would be the team to beat. The Dodgers made a fine trade in getting Richie Allen and Allen should beef up the L.A attack, said the experts.

San Francisco was picked to edge out Atlanta for third place with Houston coming in fifth and San Diego for sixth. All of these were noted for their power but also for their weak pitching.

Baltimore was made a runaway choice in the American League East with the real battle coming in the bid for second place. Detroit was picked to edge out Boston for second while Boston, in turn, was tabbed to nudge out New York for third.

Washington and Cleveland were expected to bring up the rear once again though both had first place votes.

The White Sox were given surprising support in the American League West but it looks like the same old story with Minnesota winning the division.

California, after making fine trades during the offseason, was picked for second with Oakland tabbed for third. Many voters expressed that if Charley O. Finley keeps his hands off the club this season, Oakland could make a run for the pennant.

The tailenders in the West, as expected, were Kansas City and Milwaukee.

One of the main factors in Cincinnati repeating as the National League champion will be another banner year from Pete Rose. Rose was the top choice for the National batting crown with Billy Williams a distant second Tony Oliva was selected to bring the Twins back to No 1 in the American West with a batting trophy. Carl Yastrzemski accumulated 13 votes for the title, four less than Oliva.

Willie McCovey and Johnny Bench were given the same number of votes for the National League homer crown (nine) while Frank Howard accumulated 17 out of 38 votes for the American League title. Harmon Killebrew was Howard's closest rival with 13.

Another tie came up in the voting for the National League Cy Young award with both Bob Gibson and Tom Seaver getting nine votes each. Fergie Jenkins was right behind with eight.

Sam McDowell was voted as the top pitcher in the American League with Denny McLain expected to make a big comeback bid. Ironically, last year's winner, Jim Perry, did not receive a single vote.

Though the Cubs were picked to finish second in the National League East, Billy Williams was the runaway choice as the loop's Most Valuable Player. No less than 15 players were voted as MVP in the American League and the final tally had Yastrzemski edging out Brooks Robinson for the honor.

Tabbing the Pirates to win the National League East were Hascup, DeBolt, Gellinger, Mahoney, Jenni, Grybash, Murnane, Carstens, Prellberg, Somers, Hinton, Cunningham, Essau, Newport, Hanson, Frisk and Everhart.

Going with the Cubs were Shevell, Pohlman, Reinhard, Cook, Warren, Ward, Schodtler, Townes, Kurth, Stuart, Meyer, Haerle, Chernicky and Elisco.

Nomellini, Seidel, Peddy, Logan and Bachman went with New York and Kennedy picked St. Louis.

Hascup, Mahoney, Seidel, Jenni, Carstens, Prellberg, Warren, Frisk, Kurth, Stuart, Peddy and DeBolt picked Los Angeles to win the National League East, Murnane picked San Francisco and Nomellini and Newport pegged Atlanta. Everyone else went with Cincinnati.

In the American East Cunningham picked Detroit, Meyer picked New York, Reinhard went with Washington and Gellinger, Seidel and Grybash tabbed Boston. Everyone else went with Baltimore.

Picking the Twins to win the American West were Chernicky, Shevell, Nomellini, Seidel, Kennedy, Prellberg, Schodtler, Somers, Ward, Everhart, Hinton, Cunningham, Murnane, Essau, Haerle and Townes. Cook, Jenni, Carstens, Warren, Stuart, Meyer, Peddy, Logan, DeBolt, Hascup and Grybash went with California and Hanson predicted the White Sox.

Picking Oakland No. 1 were Reinhard, Gellinger, Mahoney, Newport, Frisk, Kurth, Pohlman, Elisco and Bachman.

Last year only one of my picks panned out (Baltimore in the American East) and this season I'm going against the consensus with these tabs:

National East: 1, Philadelphia. 2, Pittsburgh. 3, St. Louis. 4,Chicago. 5, Montreal. 6, New York.

National West: 1, Los Angeles. 2, Houston. 3, San Diego. 4, Cincinnati. 5, San Francisco. 6, Atlanta.

AMERICAN East: 1, Cleveland. 2, Boston. 3, St. Louis. 4, Chicago. 5, troit. 6, Washington.

American West: 1, California. 2, Minnesota. 3, Kansas City. 4, Oakland. 5, Chicago. 6, Milwaukee.

The crystal ball from this columnist has Clarence Gaston and Lou Piniella winning the batting crowns, Nate Colbert and Bill Melton hitting the most homers, Bob Johnson and Sam McDowell as the best pitchers and Richie Allen and Tony Conigliaro as the most valuable players.

No kidding.

Larry Mlynczak

APPEALS FOR JUSTICE

Dear Sirs:

I agree wholeheartedly with your article of Thursday, March 18 (Paul Logan's Column) pertaining to the eligibility of three area athletes. I feel that these boys have been unjustly dealt with and that much reform is needed in our Illinois High School Association rules.

It is my sincere hope that at the next board meeting these young men will be exonerated. The point most extant in your article is the inherent integrity the boys displayed by the straightforward manner in which they attended the event.

If our area can offer every possible educational advantage to our youngsters then we must also insure positive attitudes toward their athletic training.

Michael P. Tikas

Dear Sirs:

I felt your article of March 18, concerning the eligibility of three area athletes was well written and a fair statement of facts. I feel that these boys were unjustly punished after all the facts were heard by the I.H.S.A board. I sincerely hope the I.H.S A. board will see fit to reverse their decision after the April 3 hearing

One point I would like to emphasize is the lack of knowledge concerning the I.H.S.A. rules. IF A RULE IS TO BE FOLLOWED IT MUST BE KNOWN TO EXIST BY THOSE IT GOVERNS.

If such a consequence as one full year of ineligibility in all sports is attached to breaking on the I.H.S.A. rules, then each person concerned should be specifically informed of all the rules which do or could be applied to him.

Roger M. Wilson, Jr.
Arlington Heights

You gentlemen are definitely in the majority in this controversy. We can only hope that the I.H.S.A. board will see the light in its Saturday meeting and give these three young athletes the justice they deserve — Paul Logan

WANTS RACE STORIES

Dear Sirs:

Last year I was very fortunate to have an article on myself and bicycle racing in this area. Soon after the article appeared, your department started carrying the results of the Thursday night races at Northbrook's bike track. I hope to see these results again this year.

However, while you have recognized track racing during summer, how about printing the results of road races which take place during the spring and summer? Each year during April, May, June, July and August, cyclists from Elk Grove Village, Mount Prospect, Des Plaines and Arlington Heights travel all over the midwest to enter races. In most areas these cyclists place very well in their events. Many of these athletes qualify in the state championships and then go on to the national events.

True, you did have a small article on Bob Vehe, who took fifth in the Junior Men's Division in the nationals, and his brother Rich, who won the Midget Division. But these outstanding athletes deserved more credit than they received. There was also no mention of the other area cyclists who went to these events. Although Tim Zasadny and Tim Jilek of Mount Prospect did not finish in the top five in their events, they did show well against the best cyclists in the nation.

I think you have given more coverage to cycling than most papers would. But I do hope that more space can be devoted to this relative unknown sport in the near future.

Rex Gilmore
Elk Grove Village

Thanks for the suggestions. We'll look into it and see if we can develop more coverage on this interesting sport. Encourage the public relations people involved with racing to supply us with the information. We'll be happy to use it. — Bob Frisk

ORR VS. MAGNUSON

Dear Sirs:

Many of my friends who are hockey fans have been downgrading Bobby Orr (of the Boston Bruins) and calling Keith Magnuson (of the Black Hawks) a better defenseman. I disagree with this opinion.

Many people say Orr is overrated because he scores a lot of points and goals. They say he is caught out of position too often because he plays like a fourth forward.

I think they are being very narrow-minded. I agree with impartial experts from Canada who almost unanimously agree that Orr is the greatest in the game, perhaps of all time. This is in all-around ability, not just offensive. It is beyond my comprehension that anyone could say Magnuson is better.

Black Hawk fans falsely assume that just because Orr scores a lot, this means he doesn't play defense. They think this ebcause they don't realize that Orr can do things no other player could do. He has such amazing speed and reactions that he is able to get back and play his position (defenseman) as well as anyone even though he goes for goals. Thus, his defense is still as good as anyone's and better than Magnuson even if you completely disregard scoring. This is just a bonus the Bruins get from Orr.

The telltale proof is the very important statistic showing the difference between the number of goals scored for and against a player's team while he is on the ice. Orr has the best such number on the plus side of anyone in the (National Hockey) league, by far. This wouldn't be the case if he didn't play good defense because he is on the ice so much of the time.

One other thing. I think that Hawk fans who keep assuming that their team will be in the Stanley Cup fianls against Boston are counting their chickens before they're hatched. The Hawks have been coasting all season with no pressure and will have all they can do just to survive the semi-finals, probably against the New York Rangers. The Rangers have the best defensive record in the League Their won-lost record is about even with the Hawks and they compete in a much tougher division.

Mark Goldberg
Mount Prospect

You sound like a Bruin fan but you have some very valid points. Perhaps Hawk fans should be a little more objective. We can only hope the Hawks and Bruins do meet in the finals of the playoffs so Orr and Magnuson can be further compared. Now, fans, how about a rebuttal from "Maggie's" following? — Larry Everhart

Evanston Spoils Demons' Opener

Maine East baseball coach Herb Ward believes that a team can improve greatly by playing top notch competition

Wednesday Maine East played that top notch opposition and lost to Evanston 6-0 in a non-conference contest at Evanston

Evanston won the summer league championship last year," Ward said, "and I think that they should be one of the best teams in the Chicago area this year."

The Demons had runners in scoring position in each of the first four innings up they were unable to come up with the crucial hit and, thus, were shut out

In the first inning Rick Lloyd doubled but was left stranded Tom Groenwald and Gary Shuman walked in the second inning, Bill Kilmer walked and took third on an error in the third frame and later Kilmer doubled.

Doubles by Lloyd and Kilmer were the only hits Maine East connected for.

Evanston managed to score six runs on only five hits with Maine East errors opening the door to Wildkit tallies.

Demon hurler Frank Knopf had a shutout going into the fourth inning before the bottom fell out. Knopf struck out the first Evanston batter and then walked the second. An apparent double play ball was hit and Knopf appeared to be out of the inning but the ball was booted to put runner on first and second.

Knopf made a throwing error on a pickoff play and one run scored. A single and a double followed and the Wildkits had a 4-0 lead

Rick Miller came on to pitch the fifth inning and an error, a triple and a sacrifice fly gave Evanston two more runs.

Ward has four lettermen returning from last year's club: Knopf, Lloyd, Kilmer and Steve Fagerman.

At first base he had Dale Deschamps and at second he has Gary Shuman and Roy Adamski His shortstops are Rick Machun and Jim Cardella. Demon third basemen are Kilmer, and Russ Anderson.

For outfielders, Ward can call on Kilmer, Joe Boeche, Barny Cornfield, Lloyd, John Beusse and Bob Reimer. For catchers he has Groenwald and Mike McDonnell.

Maine East's hurlers this season will be Knopf, Miller, John DeCardy, Tom Kanies, Fred Parker and Beusse.

Of the returnees from last year's squad, Kilmer was the leading hitter. During one eight-game stretch Kilmer batted over .700 before an illness. His average ended up close to .300.

Ward rates LaGrange, Hinsdale Central and Proviso West as the teams to beat in the West Suburban League but adds:

"We have the potential. If we play up to our potential I think that we can make a run for the championship."

Court Ruling On Hiring No Hindrance

A recent U.S. Supreme Court ruling which limits the types of job testing an employer may give has not limited the effectiveness of hiring procedures used by many Northwest suburban industrial companies.

According to several company spokesmen, the high court's ruling, which states that no employer may use any hiring or promotion qualifying test that is not a test directly of the skills needed for the specific job in question, is in concert with their established methods of determining a job applicant's ability. The Supreme Court ruling, given last March 8, was the court's first interpretation of the racial bias provisons of the 1964 Civil Rights Act section on equal employment opportunity.

JIM DEERING, director of personnel for Littelfuse, Inc. a Des Plaines company which manufactures electrical products, said his company is not test conscious.

"We prefer to evaluate a person's background," he said, "the individual's education and previous work history and how he relates to the job in question are the criteria we use for judging an applicant."

Deering added that in the case of a trainee, that is someone without previous work experience, the company might administer a standardized mental aptitude test.

"For people coming in for factory employment," Deering explained, "we give them a manual dexterity test. It has nothing to do with how intelligent they are or what their interests are.

"WE DO NOT use tests for discriminatory purposes. We prefer to evaluate a person on things other than tests. A test would be just one measuring stick within a series of measuring sticks," he said.

Dan Callahan of the H. B. Fuller Co. in Palatine said the only test his company gives a prospective employe is a physical examination.

"We have no academic type testing," Callahan said. "We hire on the basis of past work experience and previous employment. Our office people are hired through an employment agency," he added.

The executive director for the Arlington Heights office of Roland Employment Agency said her company gives clients tests which directly relate to the job they are seeking or jobs they will be placed into.

Eaters Think Of Far East

by KAREN RUGEN

A spoonful of soy sauce, some shrimp, and a dash of Eunice Okuma's culinary savvy can make a person think he's holding chopsticks in the Orient.

Those ingredients cooked up a Cantonese dinner for about 60 people recently at an oriental hors d'oeuvres demonstration sponsored by the Mount Prospect Park District. Hanging lanterns and colorful travel posters took the hungry eaters to the Far East as they tried to pick up their food between two wooden sticks. Plastic forks were available for those who didn't have the knack.

Mrs. Okuma prepared a meal of stuffed shrimp, rice, and egg roll as she showed those she called her "eager gourmet guinea pigs" just how she did it.

"Raw fish, squid of the Japanese," she ite hors d'oeuvres of the Japanese," she told the mostly female audience. "But someone talked me into saving that for another time."

THE PORTLAND, Oregon-born Japanese cook said she couldn't have made the meal without the help of park district employes. They worked hard to make sure that tea, Japanese Jello and fortune cookies were in supply on every table.

"I'll cook for friends, for love, but not for money," said Mrs. Okuma, who does cooking favors for neighbors around her home at 235 Norman Ct., in Des Plaines. She often cooks Japanese style for her husband "Tosh" and her younger son Bobbie, 10. But her son, Mark, of Prospect High School doesn't really go in for the seaweed and sweet and sour sauce.

Mrs. Okuma, who received her degree in sociology from the University of Minnesota, and has been a social worker for eight years in St. Paul and Chicago, said she learned the art of Oriental cooking "from friends, relatives, strangers and even cookbooks."

Her parents were born in southern Japan, and her mother has a lot of good recipes, she said. "But I don't really cook what she cooks," said Mrs. Okuma. "I figure what's the use? — I can eat hers."

WHEN SHE talks about the beginnings of her culinary talents, Mrs. Okuma can't forget her husband. "Tosh claims he taught me everything I know, and I smile," she said. "He did."

"My husband comes home for lunch so I have to feed him," said the cook. She feeds him eel, seaweed, raw fish, and green tea. Trips to the Japanese Star Market near Wrigley Field in Chicago keep her equipped with the exotic ingredients. Her husband uses chopsticks; she uses a fork.

"It's a lot easier," she admits.

Mrs. Okuma explained there are two different styles of oriental cooking. "Our style is Americanized and mostly Cantonese," she said. "The flavor is more subtle in Japanese food than in Chinese. And they use a lot more raw fish because everybody eats on an island."

The kids in her neighborhood know Mrs. Okuma's around. "Kids like crazy here," she said. "Irish and Italian boys used to come over to stock up on Japanese food."

MRS. OKUMA, who also teaches preschool at the park district, keeps pretty busy with her cooking. Soon she plans to cook sukiyaki for first graders in Susan L. Jones' class at Sunset Park School in Mount Prospect.

MARY WALBERG, right, park district secretary, helps Oriental chef Eunice Okuma prepare shrimp for about 60 people. Mrs. Okuma recently gave an Oriental hors d'oeuvres demonstration at the Mount Prospect Park District.

"We want to show them the world is bigger than Mount Prospect. Sukiyaki is like spaghetti or ravioli is to the Italians," said Mrs. Okuma. We'll be using vegetables the children know like celery."

But the cooking isn't always Japanese. Tonight Mrs. Okuma is making "an American Thanksgiving dinner with all the trimmings" for two Japanese friends. And her sons like the old U.S. hot dog and hamburger.

"I cook half Japanese and half American for the family," she said. "My son wants to know why I can't make pizza. I guess I'll have to learn."

Doggone! Rate Your Pet!

by PATRICK JOYCE

They have the look and sound of three men who have gotten in at the beginning of a boom, prospectors who've struck the mother lode or the men who discovered the hoola-hoop.

And maybe they have. The trio has discovered a really new and almost limitless market for insurance: the owners of an estimated one million pets in the Chicago area.

The three men — Burt Schmarak, Herb Singer and Al Nadolna — are officers of the Pet Health Foundation, Inc., an agency that sells all sorts of insurance for pets: health, accident, theft and even life insurance.

"There is a company like this in England," Nadolna said. "They've been in business for 10 years and they have between a half a million and a million dogs insured."

Right now the Pet Health Foundation is a much more modest affair. Its address is Post Office Box 159 in Wheeling and its office is in the basement of a home in Mount Prospect.

THEIR AGENCY is only a few months old and so far they have had only a few hundred responses to their advertising, but the men see a great future for their business. They even talk of marketing health products for pets.

Schmarak, an insurance salesman and Nadolna, who is in marketing, began talking about pet insurance 18 months ago. They thought of setting up their own insurance company but that fell through when they learned that Illinois insurance regulations would make it too expensive.

Then they learned that the Midwest Mutual Insurance Co. of West Des Moines, Iowa, had already begun its own pet insurance plan. They quickly became the company's sole agent in Illinois.

THEIR HEALTH insurance is called Pet-A-Care and, according to Nadolna, it works just like insurance for humans. Owners have their pets treated by a veterinarian and then send the bill to the insurance company. It pays up to $100 for each sickness or accident.

Even though they have not yet sold much insurance, Nadolna sees a great future for the business and he gives detailed reasons.

"The economic aspect is getting more important," he says. "New animal hospitals are opening all the time and they provide the same service as other hospitals. X-rays and even EKG's. Veterinarians are specializing just like M.D.'s. There are pet cardiologists and even psychiatrists."

And, Nadolna says, Americans are tending more and more to think in human terms about their pets. "A lot of owners feel that the animal is part of the family and they want to know that if their dog needs expensive treatment, they won't have to hesitate."

This kind of sentiment, Nadolna says, also moves owners to buy pet life insurance. "So many dogs are a kid's pet and if something happens to the dog he must be replaced. So, the life insurance is really replacement insurance."

ALTHOUGH THEIR headquarters is in the Northwest suburbs, the trio considers the entire Chicago area their market.

"It's not necessarily the economic situation of the family or the price of the dog that makes people buy the insurance," Nadolna says. "It's the feeling the family has for the dog. Many families in the ghetto feel as strongly about their pets as people in the suburbs."

Jackson: Shoo-In For Park Post

by KAREN RUGEN

Robert Jackson thinks "it would be a lot more fun" if he wasn't the only candidate in the Mount Prospect Park District election.

"I guess it's just a sign of the times," sighed the 18-year-old incumbent and current park board president.

Jackson, the only commissioner whose term expires this spring, was elected to the board in 1965 and is now seeking his second six-year term. There is little doubt he'll get it, he's the only candidate listed on the ballot in Tuesday's election.

No one else has filed for a chance to fill the position. The only way he won't win is by an overwhelming write-in campaign. "But there seems no sign of that afoot," Jackson said.

THE CANDIDATE, who has five children, became interested in the district in 1955 "when it spent most of its time trying to build a ball diamond. Now we spend more of it on our recreation programs."

"I've lived in Mount Prospect practically all my life and usedt to play golf out here when I was a kid," said the resident of almost 20 years. "After I was out of the service, I wanted to come out to live in Mount Prospect. So I did."

Jackson said he has seen the park district grow from an "operation-oriented body to a recreation-oriented one. The park district's biggest job now is to supply recreational services for this community which has less open space per capita than the City of Chicago."

Jackson has seen many changes in his six year term. He saw the district acquire more land including the sites for South and West Parks. He saw the upgrading of all the parks and the addition of a golf course to the district's facilities. He was a referendum passed to build a new recreation center at Lions Park. And he saw Kopp Pool switched from a summer-only facility to a year-round swimming center.

"AND THERE HAVE been internal changes," Jackson said. "The park district is set up and run like a business. We have never had to borrow on tax anticipation warrants. We don't have a surplus, but we also pay our bills on time."

But the park district's job is never done, according to Jackson. Some of his goals include purchasing more land, enough for two more park sites, and developing South Park in Des Plaines like Lions Park in Mount Prospect. The park district serves a major portion of Mount Prospect and the Eighth Ward in Des Plaines.

"Of course these would require a referendum," said the candidate. "But the park district is no where near using its total bonding power. Two or three bond issues will be retired in the next five or six years and residents could pass another referendum without raising their taxes."

Jackson's short term goals, which require time but not a lot of money, are improving the park operation and public relations.

"We have to let people know about the park district," said the candidate. "The people thought we were unresponsive to the community but that image is changing pretty rapidly."

WITHOUT ANY contest, it's hard to have election issues. But Jackson had this to say on the controversy last year over teens using Meadows Park on the west side of Mount Prospect.

"There used to be no place for teens to go. The park district realized it needed some more programs. I hope now that the facilities at Lions Park Recreation Center will give them a place to go. But if the kids still go to the park, it's their privilege."

And on senior citizens. "The park district has a darn good senior citizen program and we are expanding it with the proposed center. We have to plan for changes in the comumnity which will be a lot different in the years ahead. No longer are there just young children. We have to make sure we don't end up with all ball diamonds and only senior citizens."

Jackson has been involved in the district since it began in 1955 and he doesn't plan to stop now. "As my wife said, I wouldn't know what to do with myself on Monday nights," he said.

20 Residents Hear School Candidates

by TOM WELLMAN

Voter disinterest in four school board races hung over Wheeling High School last night like a pall. A total of 20 persons, including three teachers heard five candidates from High School Dist. 214 talk about the issues.

One candidate, Don McGlothlin of Wheeling, even threatened to withdraw from the race because of the slight turnout. He later said he would stay in the race and "work harder than ever."

It. added that maybe one or two persons were attending the forum from the Wheeling area and "maybe you don't want me."

Following the appearance of the candidates from Dist. 214, six of the eight Harper College board candidates were expected to speak. They are: Larry Moran, Milton Hansen,. Ross Miller, Eugene Nugent, Hannah Wilson, and Robert Fuchs.

Here's a brief summary of the statements of the Dist. 214 candidates.

Leah Cummins. "We're in serious trouble if we concentrate on expansion based solely on bricks and mortar. She asserted the district has to plan for a peak enrollment of 25,000 students and eight or nine high schools, or additions to existing buildings.

Raymond Pettersen commented, "the administration and staff must run the schools, not the kids." He also suggested that vocational programs should have parity with college preparatory programs and that the district must learn to educate the 25 per cent of the students who drop out of college.

Jack Matthews. "The district has an excellent administration and faculty and a sound financial ba e." However, he wondered if teachers have support for disciplining students, and he said he was interested in developing a sound system for merit pay for excellent teachers.

Robert Winkle, along with McGlothlin, was concerned about the turnout. He said a large percentage of the tax dollar goes to the schools but that people don't bother to vote in elections. An improvement in the collection of tax monies is a must for all school districts, he commented.

McGlothlin added that teachers' time in school is more than one-half wasted. He said he was concerned about student supervision and the fact that "students don't use available time.

The final educators for political action forum will be held tonight at 7:30 at Prospect High School, 801 West Kensington Rd., Mount Prospect.

Square Dance News

HAPPY TWIRLERS

The Happy Twirlers will be dancing tonight at 8 p.m. at the Congregational Church, Graceland and Marion streets, Des Plaines. Char-Lee Weiler is caller and director of the group.

Happy Twirler members are "all agog" over the contemplation of the "once in a lifetime" event that will take place in Webster Hall of the Congregational Church on April 16.

When Bob Osgood, editor of the national magazine of square dancing, "Sets In Order," made the statement that a Golden Wedding Celebration of an active husband-wife caller team was "unheard of" in square dance history, he probably failed to realize the repercussions it would bring about in the square dance world. All the square and round dance publications as well as others are "all het up" about it, and are demanding all the details.

When the president of one of the clubs Char-Lee calls for received his "corny" invitation, he exclaimed, "O boy, this I gotta put in a gold frame, because I know I'll never get another one like it."

The only invitations available, other than those sent to the members of the two clubs Char-Lee calls for, are those sent to some very important people. Included among these are Mayor Behrel of Des Plaines, Governor Ogilvie of Illinois, Spiro Agnew and President Richard Nixon.

Happy Twirlers dance every Friday night at 8 p.m. at the Congregational Church in Des Plaines.

LUTHER SQUARES

Russ Lee will be calling the squares tonight at 8 p.m. when the Luther squares meet at Our Saviour's Lutheran Church, 1234 N. Arlington Heights Road, Arlington Heights, for their regular monthly dance.

Refreshments will be served following the dance and members and friends are invited. More information may be obtained by calling 392-4713.

BELLS AND BOWS

Jim Smith from La Grange will be the guest caller, tomorrow night when the Bells and Bows Square Dance Club meet at the Boy Scouts of America Building, 1622 N. Rand Rd. in Arlington Heights.

Squaring up time is 8:30 p.m. immediately following a round dance session with Edna and Jean Arnfield.

Paul "Foggy" Thompson will be the guest caller at the April 17 dance. All area square dancers are invited. Refreshments are served.

SLOWPOKES

The Slowpokes of Mount Prospect are having a "Spring Thing" dance tonight at 8 p.m. at Euclid School, Euclid-Lake and Wheeling Road, one block east of Randhurst.

Gene Tidwell will be calling the squares, with Paul and Bunny Davis cueing the rounds.

'Sweet Charity' To Be Performed

The musical "Sweet Charity" will be performed this weekend by the drama department at Forest View High School in Arlington Heights.

Tickets are $1.50 per person for performances at 7:30 p.m. tonight and at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday in the little theater at 2121 S. Goebbert Road.

Stars in the cast are Becky Hysel and Cheryl Jorgensen as Charity, John Tofilon and Gary Douglas as Oscar and Nancy Guaglone and Debbie DeFlavio as Nicki. Drama director is Jud Ross and Joseph Hammond is student director. Costumes were made by Andrea Mock.

Tickets may be purchased at the door or by calling the school.

Do-It-Yourself

There is a mistaken notion that a sharp tool is a dangerous tool. A sharp tool misused is a dangerous tool, but a dull tool is dangerous any way you use it. Instead of cutting, it is likely to slip and it still has enough of an edge to injure you. At the very least, a dull tool is an inefficient instrument.

Tools with cutting edges should be kept sharp and it is a job simple enough for you to do yourself!

Buy a stone, the silicon carbide variety, to maintain a sharp edge. A mill file also is a handy sharpening tool.

With more experience you may wish to acquire a variety of stones. They come in different shapes, sizes and grits. Since natural stones have been replaced by artificial materials it is possible to get a single stone with both coarse and fine grits.

If you nick or dull a tool for too long and it gets very dull and nicked, it will need grinding as well as sharpening. Do this with a grindstone or emery wheel. If you use a power driven wheel, avoid overheating the blade which would cause it to lose its temper. Dip the tool in water to cool it.

Move the tool back and forth so that you grind it evenly. If the tool has a bevel, regrind it so the bevel remains the same. The bevel is usually 25 degrees.

After grinding, sharpen the blade on an oilstone. The oil in the stone prevents the tool from overheating. Use a light machine oil. With use, a stone will become clogged with tiny particles. Heat the stone in an oven and wipe off oil that comes to the surface. This will remove the tiny particles.

Grinding and honing (sharpening) are done against the edge. A revolving wheel should turn toward the tool. Sharpen a blade by rubbing it in a circular motion against the stone with the blade raised slightly. This will put the pressure on the edge.

Keep a mill file handy for sharpening garden tools. Clamp the tool in a vise, if possible. Filing edges of spades and hoes will make your work much easier.

For kitchen knives there are hand-and power-operated sharpeners that work when you draw the knife through. Some people still prefer a sharpening steel. Use this by drawing the knife down it in a partly circular motion.

Board Expected To OK Complex

by GERRY DE ZONNA

Annexation and zoning of William Alter's $42 million office, apartment and recreation center will probably be approved Tuesday by the Mount Prospect Village Board.

The board indicated Wednesday it will probably approve the 54-acre development at Algonquin and Elmhurst roads, despite two objections to annexation and zoning of the site.

Trustees postponed their decision until Tuesday after spending more than an hour debating the merits of annexation and zoning with George Flaherty and Wes Pinchot, both members of the village's industrial development and economic commission.

Trustee John Kilroy suggested the board delay its decision after Village Atty., John Zimmermann said he needed 15 more minutes to correct typographical errors and insert two paragraphs in the preannexation agreement.

"Due to the lateness of the hour (midnight), why don't we postpone our decision until next week. We'll have corrected copies of the agreement and can vote on the issue with very little discussion. I think most of our questions have been answered tonight, so we probably won't need to spend much time on the issue next week," Kilroy explained.

THE BOARD, by a 3 to 2 vote, followed Kilroy's suggestion and adjourned.

After, of Unity Ventures Inc., owner of the site, is seeking annexation and commercial (B-3) zoning with special uses permitting the construction of multiple family dwellings, a hotel and indoor recreational facilities.

This is not a planned-unit development by ordinance because Alter is seeking additional zoning with variations. The parcel is currently unincorporated, and zoning for the development was approved by the Cook County Board in December.

The county board approved a combination residential zoning classification despite objections filed by the City of Des Plaines. Des Plaines residents who live near the site have objected to the development because they think it will increase traffic problems in the area.

Plans call for the construction of several office buildings ranging in heights from 8 to 16 stories; three 12-story and two 10-story apartment buildings with a maximum of 1,200 living units; theaters, restaurants, a hotel with convention facilities and year-round recreation.

AN UNDERGROUND parking lot is one of the highlights of the center. A sports arena, schools, churches and museums may be included in the development at a later date.

Alter estimates construction and development of the site will take about five to eight years depending on the economics of the country and the market for office space.

The village's plan commission and zoning board of appeals have both recommended the village board approve annexation and zoning of the site. Members of the plan commission, zoning board and village board feel if the site is not annexed by the village, Alter will develop the property in the county.

At the public hearing Wednesday, Flaherty asked the board to reject Alter's project and sue the Cook County Board for granting the zoning and thus "ramming this project down the throats of suburban homeowners."

Flaherty indicated the Alter development is only one example of zoning blackmail in the Northwest suburban area. Flaherty indicated suburban communities have no choice but to accept county zoning decisions, whether they like the project or not, because a developed can build in the county.

MAYOR ROBERT TEICHERT told Flaherty he would not sue the county board and thus jeopardize the village's opportunity to expand its tax base, especially when the project will be developed anyway.

Teichert pointed out that four years ago the village tried to sue the county for a zoning decision but failed. "We've tried litigation in the past and were defeated. We kept appealing the court's decision until we were finally thrown out of the Illinois Supreme Court."

The board indicated it will probably approve annexation and zoning on the site because the property will be developed anyway. A majority of trustees indicated the village would lose more by rejecting the proposal and losing control over development of the project.
